NINE PERSONS KILLED AS FREIGHT TRAIN IS WRECKED AND BURNED

TODAY

What Does He Mean?
War And Smallpox
Porcupines Are Old
Sir Malcolm On Caution

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

HUEY P. LONG is buried in the soil of Louisiana, at rest forever. Many have had their say concerning him. He was not interested.

Now that he is buried, the Americans no longer interested in him will continue their interest in possibilities that he represents.

They will ask, "If Huey Long could make himself absolute master of one state, dictator, ruler, successfully defying forty-seven other states and the national government, what might another man of greater power, with greater opportunity, do with the forty-eight states?"

We say, "No man could ever establish a Mussolini or Hitler control over the territory that stretches from Seattle to Key West."

How do we know?

OUR EARNEST secretary of state says that war, anywhere, is "the concern of all nations." That is true. The average American would add "smallpox anywhere concerns all citizens, but that doesn't mean that you should get in bed with smallpox patients."

War in Abyssinia doesn't mean that American men and dollars should be put to bed in that war.

DR. GAZIN, paleontologist, which means "one who studies antiquity," proves that porcupines have lived in the United States at least two million years, and two million years ago they were bigger.

In one respect porcupines are like other Americans more recently arrived. They haven't learned to get out of the way of automobiles. The porcupine will stay in the road, thinking no car would dare touch his sharp quills. A second later he knows better, and in another second he knows nothing. He has not read the puncture proof tire advertisement. Fortunately, the rattlesnake has the same belief, thinks the whole world heeds his rattle and will run from its sound.

That makes it easy to kill him with a stick or stone, if you see him before he bites.

SIR MALCOLM Campbell, who took his giant English-built automobile to the smooth surface of the Great Salt desert, west of Salt Lake City, and drove the car faster than three hundred miles an hour, returns to New York, advising motorists to "drive carefully."

Sir Malcolm, who has surpassed every speed record on the surface of the earth, selects the right place for speeding. At home he belongs to English organizations established to promote safety.

Terrific speeds developed by the modern automobile, put at the disposition of reckless youth, and sometimes drunken maturity, is far more dangerous in actual killings than pistols or sub-machine guns.

DR. CUTTEN, learned president of Colgate university, tells the Izaak Walton league that fishing provides opportunity to do "real thinking undisturbed." The learned doctor was talking good naturedly to passionate fishermen of the league.

He would have told young students that there are other ways of achieving "real thinking undisturbed," such as looking at the stars instead of a bobbing cork attached to a fish line, or looking at an apple in its fall, as Newton did, or studying the face of a new born baby, which next to the stars, is perhaps the most interesting thing in the world.

THERE IS interesting new news of stars just now. Dr. Duncan, of Wellesley college, finds the constella-

MEDIATOR TO MAKE ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO AVERT STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A last-minute appeal for president Roosevelt's intervention was planned tonight by Edward F. McGrady, labor department mediator, in a desperate effort to avert Monday's threatened soft coal strike.

He announced this step after operators had rejected a presidential proposal for a 15-day extension of the present Appalachian wage agreement which expires Sunday night with a clause making wage increase in any new agreement retroactive.

McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, told newsmen he would ask the industry and the United Mine Workers to appoint a joint committee to sit with him while he discussed the situation by telephone with Mr. Roosevelt. He expected the president to make another plea for a truce.

Union officials, one after another, berated the producers for turning down the 15-day extension plan with a retroactive clause proposed by the union and McGrady as spokesman for the president.

The operators sat silent.

PARISH OFFICERS ARE DETERMINED TO PROBE DEATHS

Long's Bodyguards And High State Officials Summoned For Inquest

LOUISIANA IS THROWN INTO WHIRL OF POLITICAL TALK

Selection Of Candidates Causes Squabble Among Factions Of State

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—As parish authorities dug today into circumstances surrounding the assassination of Huey P. Long preparatory to resumption of District Attorney John Fred Odom's inquiry Monday, the political turmoil occasioned by the "dictator's" death neared the boiling point.

Determined to obtain an eye-witness account of the gunplay in the statehouse corridor last Sunday night, officials in charge of the investigation announced they had summoned Long's bodyguards, high state officials and several private citizens to appear at the thrice-postponed second session of the inquest into the death of Dr. Carl Austin Weiss, 30-year-old Baton Rouge physician, whose 32-caliber bullet sent the late Senator staggering down a narrow stairway and to his death 31 hours later.

From the lips of the bodyguards and state police who attended the late senator when he was shot, the district attorney said he hoped to obtain a detailed account of events leading up to and including the shooting.

Summoned to appear, he said, were Joe Bates, A. D. Coleman, George McQuiston, Joe Messina, J. P. Wooley, John Kirsch, Louis Heard, Murphy Roden, Paul Voitier and a man nam-

FHA CLINIC WILL BE HELD IN CITY

Field Representative Will Hold Meetings Here Starting Tuesday

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—E. P. Carstens, field representative of the federal housing administration in Louisiana, has been designated by Claudius Dickson, state director of the federal housing administration, to hold an insured mortgage clinic in Monroe.

The clinic will open Tuesday and will be held from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day, it was stated, in the offices of the chamber of commerce, in the Virginia hotel.

The purpose of this clinic is to receive applications on titles No. 1, and 2 of the federal housing act.

This clinic will serve surrounding territory, starting from Ruston, including such towns as Ruston, Monroe, Bastrop, Rayville, Winnsboro, Winnfield, Tallulah and Lake Providence.

Anyone wishing Mr. Carsten's services, may reach him at the clinic headquarters.

The opening of this clinic in Monroe was actuated by the encouragement received by the leading agencies in Monroe.

Mr. Carstens anticipates a large number of callers, and applications for new construction, refinancing, and modernizations, as specified in the act.

He will leave Monday, spending the day in Ruston conferring with applicants. He will proceed to Monroe the following day.

WHERE FREIGHT TRAIN WRECK TOOK NINE LIVES

Above are shown the smouldering ruins of 15 freight cars which were derailed yesterday morning on the Illinois Central railroad. Three bodies were found under the tank car seen in the foreground at the right. The derrick-like structure is the twisted remains of a refrigerator car. The photograph was taken on the north side. Many other cars were piled up on the south side.

Fire Captain Jack Blanks is shown pointing at a spot at the end of a freight car where the first body was found. The boots on the ground were from a car containing merchandise and the white substance in the car is soda ash.

ARIZONIAN FEARS SON WAS KILLED

Frantic Father Believes Boy May Have Perished In Train Wreck

"Help me find my boy!"

With this plea on his lips, a frantic father appeared at the Morning World Saturday morning, some time after news of the wreck of an Illinois Central freight train became generally known.

"I don't know whether he was on that train or not, but God knows I've got to find out," he continued as tears welled in his eyes.

He was Francis Brown, 45, of Tucson, Ariz., and whose son, Floyd Brown, 14, disappeared in Vicksburg recently, while he and his father were en route to Tucson from Virginia by automobile.

"He left me in Vicksburg and I traced him to Baton Rouge and from there to Alexandria, and I have reason to believe he was en route to Monroe," Brown explained.

A reporter tried to soothe him with the explanation that the wrecked train was east bound from Shreveport, and

PROMOTER WILL SELL TITLES TO AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—J. P. Reinach, promoter of an "American nobility" plan by which he would sell title to wealthy citizens, left by plane at 1 p.m. today for a "week-end in Niagara Falls, on the Canadian border.

The prices he asked for various titles of nobility would range from $200,000 for a barony to $1,000,000 for a dukedom.

Reinach answered all questions regarding his plan as follows:

"I will tell all that on the 18th. Won't you come and have cocktails with me at my room in the hotel? There will be lots of other people there. That's all I can say now."

SUICIDE THEORY NOW STRONGER

Fingerprints Of Evelyn Hoey Are Found On Gun Used In Killing

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A Bertillon's report that the fingerprints of Miss Evelyn Hoey were found on the pistol that blasted out her life strengthened the theory tonight that the diminutive blonde Broadway torch singer destroyed herself.

Charles Dunlap, expert of the Chester, Pa., police department, announced after an examination that two finger prints were found on the lethal weapon and that both of them were those of the actress.

After receiving Dunlap's report, Assistant District Attorney Ray B. Reed

FIREMAN IS FATALLY BURNED IN TENNESSEE

DYERSBURG, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Turned into a "human torch" when an explosion of a gasoline tank-truck showered him with flaming liquid, Byron Robb, 40-year-old fireman, was fatally burned here today.

Firemen were engaged in extinguishing a burning street department truck at the city dump when the tank exploded. Robb, drenched with burning gasoline, fled frantically. Other firemen caught him and smothered the flames. He died several hours later in a hospital.

EX-OFFICER SLAIN AT BATON ROUGE

Negro Shoots Willie Wales During Argument And Then Escapes

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Willie Wales, 47, former policeman, was shot and killed tonight by Willie White, 26, a negro, who escaped after the shooting.

Wales was shot twice, in the abdomen and right shoulder, when the negro engaged in an altercation with him after Wales forced a drunken negro woman to stop riding a bicycle in front of his junk shop.

Louis Marks, parish jailer, said the negro had been in jail on a number of occasions, being released the last time on September 9 after serving a term for cutting and wounding with intent to kill.

Doherty Scott, negro employed by Wales, said a drunken negro woman whose name he did not know, kept riding a bicycle in front of the shop and finally Wales took it away from her and brought it in the shop.

Scott said the negro slayer then came into the shop, claimed the bicycle was his, and after an altercation, drew a pistol and fired three shots.

The negro fled down the street immediately after the shooting.

Sheriff R. L. Pettit and several deputies started a search for him.

VAN ZANDT FLAYS REMOVAL OF VETS TO FLORIDA KEYS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Outspoken Commander James E. Van Zandt, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars charged here tonight that scores of veterans who lost their lives in the Florida keys hurricane last Labor day had been sent to the key camps from Washington to forestall another bonus demonstration in the national capital.

Van Zandt and other early arriving delegates predicted the disaster in the veterans camps would have a major place in floor discussions during the 36th annual convention opening here tomorrow, taking rank with the always featured bonus question. The Florida delegation will present resolutions for a further broad investigation of the hurricane deaths, coupled with specific recommendations to prevent a recurrence.

STRIFE IS SEEN IF ACT ENFORCED

District Rearrangement Measure May Cause Bloodshed, Garland Says

OPELOUSAS, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—District Attorney R. Lee Garland said in a statement here tonight that if one of the laws passed in Huey P. Long's last special legislative session to rearrange his district becomes effective, "serious trouble might ensue in the parish of Evangeline" and "if there is any bloodshed," the responsibility will be upon Governor O. K. Allen.

"If the governor of Louisiana permits this act to remain upon the statute books and appoints public officials there under, to carry out this reprehensible scheme," said Garland, "I now warn and serve notice on him that serious trouble might ensue in the parish of Evangeline, and if there is any bloodshed, the responsibility therefor will be upon him."

The district attorney said "The real objective of the legislation is to gerrymander me out of office."

The same bill would also affect the jurisdiction of District Judge B. H. Pavy, father-in-law of Dr. C. A. Weiss, Jr., who shot Senator Long to death in the state house last Sunday night. The bill was generally interpreted at Baton Rouge as being mainly directed at Judge Pavy, an anti-Long official.

District Attorney Garland said of the act: "My judicial district has been dismembered and it is attempted to take away from me the office of district attorney to which I was elected by the people.

"The real and true object and purpose of this legislation is to 'gerrymander' me out of office when it became clear to those responsible for this law that they could not vote me out by the people. The purpose of legislating me out of the office of district attorney at once and making me an assistant district attorney in another district by the exercise of power not conferred upon the legislature by the constitution is that it is not desired that I be district attorney in Evangeline parish at the time of the January election.

"Sometime previous to the meeting of the legislature in special session, I personally warned and notified certain of the political leaders of Evangeline parish that if they should steal the votes of the people of Evangeline, I would prosecute the election commissioners who engeged in this dishonest enterprise to the full extent of the law. Realizing that I meant what I said, they became

ITALIAN CABINET WILL ACCEPT NO CHANGE IN PLANS

Delegates At Geneva Stunned By Decision On Ethiopian Situation

(By Associated Press)

The Italian cabinet in an official communique announced Saturday it would accept no compromise in its dispute with Ethiopia.

The communique also asserted Italy is prepared to meet "any menace from whatsoever direction it may come."

Other developments:

GENEVA.—Delegates to the League of Nations assembly were stunned by word of the Italian communique. A number of nations, including Russia and Canada, pledged full support of the League.

LONDON.—Socialist speakers warned workers in 17 cities against the danger of an "imperialist-capitalist war."

PARIS.—French officials wondered how they could retain the friendship of Italy if economic and financial sanctions are invoked in an effort to prevent war.

ROME, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The cabinet announced today Italy will accept no retreat or compromise on the course she has laid out in east Africa, even in the face of the possible armed opposition of Europe.

It indicated also that consideration is being given to the possibility of Italy's withdrawal from the League

Doctors Amputate Leg Of Young Man Trapped Between Two Boxcars

SEVERAL ARE HURRIED TO SANITARIUM AFTER CRASH

One Of Victims Thought To Have Been Woman; All Are Unidentified

Death, stalking on the trail of an eastbound Illinois Central freight train early Saturday morning, struck with vengeance when 15 freight cars and oil tank cars left the rails just as the train was entering the city limits of West Monroe, snuffing out the lives of at least nine transients and bringing serious injury to seven others.

Those who perished died instantly, and although their bodies were burned to a crisp, there still remained evidence of their horrible deaths in their mangled and twisted remains.

Just how many transients met their death will never be fully known, but the known toll was expected to mount when the tangled and twisted mass of wreckage and the overturned freight cars and oil tank cars are removed from the scene.

At least 40 men were crowded on the oil tank cars, according to Robert Nolan, an Indiana transient, who was aboard the train, and while some of the transients probably filtered through the great crowd that soon gathered, a check by reporters failed to reveal a single survivor at the scene soon after the derailment.

A woman is thought to have been one of the cremated victims. Several bones found in the wreckage were described by physicians as being those of a woman and late Saturday rescue workers uncovered an almost totally burned gingham dress in the ruins of a burned and tangled oil tank car. A pair of women's shoes were also found.

Two oil tank cars burst into flames when they left the tracks, lighting up the surrounding area. The intense heat added to the extreme difficulty of rescue work. Firemen, who were rushed to the scene from Monroe and West Monroe, and volunteer rescue workers were almost powerless against the roaring inferno.

Increasing the misery and horror of the picture were the frantic cries of Pete Griggs, 25, of Calhoun, a transient, who was pinned beneath heavy wreckage between two box cars.

Griggs' right leg was crushed under a heavy iron beam. He was suffering agony of pain and was terrified by flames which he thought were fast creeping upon him.

"Cut off my leg and let me get out of here or give me a knife and let me cut my throat," he screamed in mortal fear.

Volunteers rushed to his aid, desperately cutting a hole in the side of a freight car, and attempted to lift the beam, but were unsuccessful. Physicians were then summoned.

They did all they could to stop the flow of blood and, on examining the leg, found the bone had been crushed almost entirely, and the leg twisted in an awkward shape.

"Please, please, cut my leg off," the youth kept pleading. The doctors decided to amputate.

Dr. C. H. Hill administered the youth a hypodermic and Dr. O. W. Cosby proceeded with the amputation. He had brought a regular surgeon's knife with him, but because of the fact that he had to reach down so far to perform the operation, the physicians decided to use a large pocket knife.

Amid screams of the patient the limb was severed, and Griggs was

BARRYMORE-BARRIE RIFT EXAMINED BY ATTORNEYS OF BOTH

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A sudden rift between John Barrymore and his 19-year-old protege, Elaine Barrie, was examined by counsel for both sides tonight and pronounced beyond the ken of the law.

Attorneys for the 53-year-old actor, who left Miss Barrie's apartment in a huff Thursday night, said there was "no legal situation of any kind" involved.

Miss Barrie's lawyer, Aaron Sapiro, expressed a similar view.

At the apartment building of the young girl, who changed her name from Jacobs to Barrie so it would be somewhat similar to that of the gray-haired Barrymore, it was said that "everybody went out."

The actor, who is being sued for divorce by the former Dolores Costello, and who last month took Miss Barrie on a shopping tour for a $5,000 suite, finally winding up by buying a directoire set, was said by [illegible] to have left the city.

President Speaks As Million Dollar Highway Is Dedicated

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The determined "it can be done" spirit of World war days was cited by President Roosevelt today as he dedicated the new million dollar highway to the top of White Face mountain, highest in the state.

"What I have seen today in this wonderful drive," he told the assemblage which crowded the temporary platform, "makes me more enthusiastic than ever before about four words, They are: 'It can be done.'

"Back in '17 when the United States entered the World war we received in Washington two delegations of military, naval and civilian representatives. One was from France, one was from England."

He described their meeting with President Wilson, which he witnessed.

"I remember Marshal Joffre asking President Wilson how many men he could assemble.

"President Wilson replied: 'We will have a million men and if you need it we will have two million and if you have to have five million men you will have it and if you need the entire man-power of America you will have it.'

"He then used those four words: 'It can be done.'"

The highway was dedicated to the memory of World war heroes.

Previous to the drive up the highway, construction of which he initiated as governor, the president spoke at Lake Placid where he had gone to observe establishment of the state conservation department.

Forest rangers, game protectors and boys of the civilian conservation corps, which the executive has announced he plans to continue on a basis of enrollment reduced by half to 300,000, paraded in the sunshine before the official party in the 1932 Olympic stadium.

Senator William G. M'Adoo Marries 26-Year-Old Girl

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, 71, drove his 26-year-old bride to "Bealls Pleasure" in Maryland today in his own small coupe for a wedding like those in Washington's time.

The small, prettily profiled Miss Doris I. Cross, a nurse in the public health service, and the tall senator made their vows in the intimacy of a quaint living room authentically colonial.

A huge golden harp tinkled the Mendelssohn wedding march. A negro doorman admitted the most distinguished guests to "Bealls Pleasure," the century-old ivy-covered colonial brick home of McAdoo's son-in-law, Brice Clagett.

McAdoo wore a blue-gray business suit. His bride was in a dark blue crepe tunic traveling dress, her dark blue off-the-face hat softened by a mere suggestion of a veil.

Their voices came clearly through an open window, into the country quietude as the lines were read by the Rev. Russell J. Clinch of the Mount Pleasant Congregational church, the senator's as unperturbed as when he speaks in the senate; hers low but unhesitating. The wedding prayer asked for them "great and high adventure on the way of life" as well as "peace, joy, and abundance."

There was the briefest pause in the ceremony as dignified, elderly Miss Mary Addison Ingle, at whose unpretentious home lived the girl chosen by McAdoo as his third wife, gave the bride away.

A second soft twanging of the harp told that the five-minute ceremony was over. Then the old house was filled with wedding gaiety.

Miss Cross and McAdoo were first

The prices he asked for various titles of nobility would range from $200,000 for a barony to $1,000,000 for a dukedom.

Reinach answered all questions regarding his plan as follows:

"I will tell all that on the 18th. Won't you come and have cocktails with me at my room in the hotel? There will be lots of other people there. That's all I can say now."

SUICIDE THEORY NOW STRONGER

Fingerprints Of Evelyn Hoey Are Found On Gun Used In Killing

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A Bertillon's report that the fingerprints of Miss Evelyn Hoey were found on the pistol that blasted out her life strengthened the theory tonight that the diminutive blonde Broadway torch singer destroyed herself.

Charles Dunlap, expert of the Chester, Pa., police department, announced after an examination that two finger prints were found on the lethal weapon and that both of them were those of the actress.

After receiving Dunlap's report, Assistant District Attorney Ray B. Reed

FIREMAN IS FATALLY BURNED IN TENNESSEE

DYERSBURG, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Turned into a "human torch" when an explosion of a gasoline tank-truck showered him with flaming liquid, Byron Robb, 40-year-old fireman, was fatally burned here today.

Firemen were engaged in extinguishing a burning street department truck at the city dump when the tank exploded. Robb, drenched with burning gasoline, fled frantically. Other firemen caught him and smothered the flames. He died several hours later in a hospital.

EX-OFFICER SLAIN AT BATON ROUGE

Negro Shoots Willie Wales During Argument And Then Escapes

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Willie Wales, 47, former policeman, was shot and killed tonight by Willie White, 26, a negro, who escaped after the shooting.

Wales was shot twice, in the abdomen and right shoulder, when the negro engaged in an altercation with him after Wales forced a drunken negro woman to stop riding a bicycle in front of his junk shop.

Louis Marks, parish jailer, said the negro had been in jail on a number of occasions, being released the last time on September 9 after serving a term for cutting and wounding with intent to kill.

Doherty Scott, negro employed by Wales, said a drunken negro woman whose name he did not know, kept riding a bicycle in front of the shop and finally Wales took it away from her and brought it in the shop.

Scott said the negro slayer then came into the shop, claimed the bicycle was his, and after an altercation, drew a pistol and fired three shots.

The negro fled down the street immediately after the shooting.

Sheriff R. L. Pettit and several deputies started a search for him.

VAN ZANDT FLAYS REMOVAL OF VETS TO FLORIDA KEYS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Outspoken Commander James E. Van Zandt, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars charged here tonight that scores of veterans who lost their lives in the Florida keys hurricane last Labor day had been sent to the key camps from Washington to forestall another bonus demonstration in the national capital.

Van Zandt and other early arriving delegates predicted the disaster in the veterans camps would have a major place in floor discussions during the 36th annual convention opening here tomorrow, taking rank with the always featured bonus question. The Florida delegation will present resolutions for a further broad investigation of the hurricane deaths, coupled with specific recommendations to prevent a recurrence.

President Speaks As Million Dollar Highway Is Dedicated

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The determined "it can be done" spirit of World war days was cited by President Roosevelt today as he dedicated the new million dollar highway to the top of White Face mountain, highest in the state.

"What I have seen today in this wonderful drive," he told the assemblage which crowded the temporary platform, "makes me more enthusiastic than ever before about four words. They are: 'It can be done.'

"Back in '17 when the United States entered the World war we received in Washington two delegations of military, naval and civilian representatives. One was from France, one was from England."

He described their meeting with President Wilson, which he witnessed.

"I remember Marshal Joffre asking President Wilson how many men he could assemble.

"President Wilson replied: 'We will have a million men and if you need it we will have two million and if you have to have five million men you will have it and if you need the entire man-power of America you will have it.'

"He then used those four words: 'It can be done.'"

The highway was dedicated to the memory of World war heroes.

Previous to the drive up the highway, construction of which he initiated as governor, the president spoke at Lake Placid where he had gone to observe establishment of the state conservation department.

Forest rangers, game protectors and boys of the civilian conservation corps, which the executive has announced he plans to continue on a basis of enrollment reduced by half to 300,000, paraded in the sunshine before the official party in the 1932 Olympic stadium.

District Rearrangement Measure May Cause Bloodshed, Garland Says

OPELOUSAS, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—District Attorney R. Lee Garland said in a statement here tonight that if one of the laws passed in Huey P. Long's last special legislative session to rearrange his district becomes effective, "serious trouble might ensue in the parish of Evangeline" and "if there is any bloodshed," the responsibility will be upon Governor O. K. Allen.

"If the governor of Louisiana permits this act to remain upon the statute books and appoints public officials there under, to carry out this reprehensible scheme," said Garland, "I now warn and serve notice on him that serious trouble might ensue in the parish of Evangeline, and if there is any bloodshed, the responsibility therefor will be upon him."

The district attorney said "The real objective of the legislation is to gerrymander me out of office."

The same bill would also affect the jurisdiction of District Judge B. H. Pavy, father-in-law of Dr. C. A. Weiss, Jr., who shot Senator Long to death in the state house last Sunday night. The bill was generally interpreted at Baton Rouge as being mainly directed at Judge Pavy, an anti-Long official.

District Attorney Garland said of the act: "My judicial district has been dismembered and it is attempted to take away from me the office of district attorney to which I was elected by the people.

"The real and true object and purpose of this legislation is to 'gerrymander' me out of office when it became clear to those responsible for this law that they could not vote me out by the people. The purpose of legislating me out of the office of district attorney at once and making me an assistant district attorney in another district by the exercise of power not conferred upon the legislature by the constitution is that it is not desired that I be district attorney in Evangeline parish at the time of the January election.

"Sometime previous to the meeting of the legislature in special session, I personally warned and notified certain of the political leaders of Evangeline parish that if they should steal the votes of the people of Evangeline, I would prosecute the election commissioners who engeged in this dishonest enterprise to the full extent of the law. Realizing that I meant what I said, they became

Delegates At Geneva Stunned By Decision On Ethiopian Situation

(By Associated Press)

The Italian cabinet in an official communique announced Saturday it would accept no compromise in its dispute with Ethiopia.

The communique also asserted Italy is prepared to meet "any menace from whatsoever direction it may come."

Other developments:

GENEVA.—Delegates to the League of Nations assembly were stunned by word of the Italian communique. A number of nations, including Russia and Canada, pledged full support of the League.

LONDON.—Socialist speakers warned workers in 17 cities against the danger of an "imperialist-capitalist war."

PARIS.—French officials wondered how they could retain the friendship of Italy if economic and financial sanctions are invoked in an effort to prevent war.

ROME, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The cabinet announced today Italy will accept no retreat or compromise on the course she has laid out in east Africa, even in the face of the possible armed opposition of Europe.

It indicated also that consideration is being given to the possibility of Italy's withdrawal from the League

Doctors Amputate Leg Of Young Man Trapped Between Two Boxcars

One Of Victims Thought To Have Been Woman; All Are Unidentified

Death, stalking on the trail of an eastbound Illinois Central freight train early Saturday morning, struck with vengeance when 15 freight cars and oil tank cars left the rails just as the train was entering the city limits of West Monroe, snuffing out the lives of at least nine transients and bringing serious injury to seven others.

Those who perished died instantly, and although their bodies were burned to a crisp, there still remained evidence of their horrible deaths in their mangled and twisted remains.

Just how many transients met their death will never be fully known, but the known toll was expected to mount when the tangled and twisted mass of wreckage and the overturned freight cars and oil tank cars are removed from the scene.

At least 40 men were crowded on the oil tank cars, according to Robert Nolan, an Indiana transient, who was aboard the train, and while some of the transients probably filtered through the great crowd that soon gathered, a check by reporters failed to reveal a single survivor at the scene soon after the derailment.

A woman is thought to have been one of the cremated victims. Several bones found in the wreckage were described by physicians as being those of a woman and late Saturday rescue workers uncovered an almost totally burned gingham dress in the ruins of a burned and tangled oil tank car. A pair of women's shoes were also found.

Two oil tank cars burst into flames when they left the tracks, lighting up the surrounding area. The intense heat added to the extreme difficulty of rescue work. Firemen, who were rushed to the scene from Monroe and West Monroe, and volunteer rescue workers were almost powerless against the roaring inferno.

Increasing the misery and horror of the picture were the frantic cries of Pete Griggs, 25, of Calhoun, a transient, who was pinned beneath heavy wreckage between two box cars.

Griggs' right leg was crushed under a heavy iron beam. He was suffering agony of pain and was terrified by flames which he thought were fast creeping upon him.

"Cut off my leg and let me get out of here or give me a knife and let me cut my throat," he screamed in mortal fear.

Volunteers rushed to his aid, desperately cutting a hole in the side of a freight car, and attempted to lift the beam, but were unsuccessful. Physicians were then summoned.

They did all they could to stop the flow of blood and, on examining the leg, found the bone had been crushed almost entirely, and the leg twisted in an awkward shape.

"Please, please, cut my leg off," the youth kept pleading. The doctors decided to amputate.

Dr. C. H. Hill administered the youth a hypodermic and Dr. O. W. Cosby proceeded with the amputation. He had brought a regular surgeon's knife with him, but because of the fact that he had to reach down so far to perform the operation, the physicians decided to use a large pocket knife.

Amid screams of the patient the limb was severed, and Griggs was

Senator William G. M'Adoo Marries 26-Year-Old Girl

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, 71, drove his 26-year-old bride to "Bealls Pleasure" in Maryland today in his own small coupe for a wedding like those in Washington's time.

The small, prettily profiled Miss Doris I. Cross, a nurse in the public health service, and the tall senator made their vows in the intimacy of a quaint living room authentically colonial.

A huge golden harp tinkled the Mendelssohn wedding march. A negro doorman admitted the most distinguished guests to "Bealls Pleasure," the century-old ivy-covered colonial brick home of McAdoo's son-in-law, Brice Clagett.

McAdoo wore a blue-gray business suit. His bride was in a dark blue crepe tunic traveling dress, her dark blue off-the-face hat softened by a mere suggestion of a veil.

Their voices came clearly through an open window, into the country quietude as the lines were read by the Rev. Russell J. Clinch of the Mount Pleasant Congregational church, the senator's as unperturbed as when he speaks in the senate; hers low but unhesitating. The wedding prayer asked for them "great and high adventure on the way of life" as well as "peace, joy, and abundance."

There was the briefest pause in the ceremony as dignified, elderly Miss Mary Addison Ingle, at whose unpretentious home lived the girl chosen by McAdoo as his third wife, gave the bride away.

A second soft twanging of the harp told that the five-minute ceremony was over. Then the old house was filled with wedding gaiety.

Miss Cross and McAdoo were first

BARRYMORE-BARRIE RIFT EXAMINED BY ATTORNEYS OF BOTH

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A sudden rift between John Barrymore and his 19-year-old protege, Elaine Barrie, was examined by counsel for both sides tonight and pronounced beyond the ken of the law.

Attorneys for the 53-year-old actor, who left Miss Barrie's apartment in a huff Thursday night, said there was "no legal situation of any kind" involved.

Miss Barrie's lawyer, Aaron Sapiro, expressed a similar view.

At the apartment building of the young girl, who changed her name from Jacobs to Barrie so it would be somewhat similar to that of the grey-haired Barrymore, it was said that "everybody went out."

The actor, who is being sued for divorce by the former Dolores Costello, and who last month took Miss Barrie on a shopping tour for a bedroom suite, finally winding up by buying a directoire set, was said by his attorneys to have left the city.

9 PERSONS ARE DEAD IN WRECK

rushed to St. Francis sanitarium, where he was believed to be dying Saturday night of loss of blood and shock.

Others known to have escaped death in the derailment, but who were injured, were:

James Bradford, 60, 1408 Constance street, New Orleans, minor injury to the right arm.

J. C. Howell, 16, Corsicana, Texas, fracture of the left collar bone.

J. H. Harrell, 16, Corsicana, fractured right leg.

T. Magee, 22, negro, Epps, fractured right shoulder.

They were all taken to St. Francis sanitarium, where all but Johnson were reported Saturday night to be out of danger. Johnson's condition was considered serious.

All of these persons, with the exception of Griggs, were thrown clear of the wreckage. They said they would not have been able to escape otherwise.

A physician who witnessed the burning of the cars said the heat was so intense that it was possible for an untold number to have been so cremated that not even a bone would remain when the fire cooled. This was believed to be the reason that so few bodies were removed.

The charred remains of four of the flame victims were brought to a local morgue and order was given that they be buried immediately. So little remained of the other five victims known to have perished, that they were buried along the right of way.

So rapidly did news of the derailment spread that by daybreak hundreds of persons had visited the scene, and this number was increased to thousands during Saturday. Workers toiled unceasingly to clear the tracks, and this was accomplished during the late afternoon.

Although railroad officials were not ready to give their version of what caused the wreck, signs of what led to it were plainly seen for about a block and a half west of where the cars piled up. The crossties in the middle of the track were badly torn up.

A railroad worker showed reporters how he said the crash occurred. He said a "hotbox" at the journal of a truck heated the huge "axle" to such an extent that the part protruding on the outside of the wheel, and which supported the weight of the car, was burned off, permitting the car to drop and the wheels, with their big axle, to run wild.

He said it was the wheels running wild that tore up the track before the actual pile-up. For many hours after the wreck the journal was still too hot to touch.

The accident occurred about 10 feet east of the railroad crossing on the Brown Paper mill road, and several hundred yards from where a similar accident occurred some months ago. The tangled mass was strewn crazily over the right of way when the cars buckled up, turned over or telescoped wildly all over the place. One of the cars contained soda ash, consigned to the Brown Paper mill for use in making chemical solution. Others contained pulp wood, others oil and still others merchandise of various description.

Railroad officials, busy clearing the tracks, were unable to estimate the damage either to railroad property or freight, but it is believed the total damage will run into many thousands of dollars.

Among the first to arrive at the scene after the derailment were Lloyd Fletcher and Howard Thompson of Brownville. But because of the intense heat they were unable to get close enough to be of help. They were joined in a few moments by a throng of others, attracted by the flames and commotion.

Robert Nolan, who witnessed the tragedy from a freight car which did not leave the tracks, and who told reporters that at least 40 persons had been clinging to the oil tank cars, jumped from his perch and aided in the rescue work. He was of the opinion that many more perished in the flames than had been accounted for. Nolan said the transients were cluttered on the oil cars because there were no empties on the train.

None of those who died were identified, and it was not considered probable that they ever would be. The only evidence uncovered at the scene that might lead to an identification was a twisted open face watch of cheap make.

The first body to be removed was the torso of a large man, which was recovered at 5:45 a.m. Saturday morning. This was quickly followed by discovery of the other nine, the remains of only three more being suitable for removal to Monroe and later burial.

Most of the bodies recovered were found at the edge of a charred heap of twisted metal and wood, the remnants of several burned box cars. Charred skulls and pieces of burned human flesh were visible under the wreckage.

A reporter stumbled upon Melvin Johnson, 28, Springfield, Mo., transient, who was sleeping serenely on the ground near the wreckage.

When aroused by the reporter, he sat up and grinned: "This is a fine time to be waking a fellow up."

He said the crash occurred while he and another man were in a car loaded with pulp wood, seven or eight cars behind those which piled up.

"I got cold in Ruston," he said, "and left the oil car where I had been sitting. Then I crawled in on top of that wood. I was asleep when I felt the jolt.

"The fellow with me and I jumped out and rushed down to the oil tank cars, but the fire had broken out just as the cars piled up.

"I didn't hear anyone yelling, except the fellow they cut out of the box car." (Griggs).

Johnson substantiated Nolan's statement that there were 40 persons on the oil tank cars and declared it was his opinion that many more perished than had been accounted for.

"The accident happened so sudden and the fire flamed up so abruptly, I don't see how it was humanly possible for few, if any, of them to have escaped, unless they were thrown clear of the wreckage, as were the seven who were rescued," Johnson declared.

"It all happened so quickly I hardly knew what it was all about," said Joseph Burchik, 36, Shreveport, one of those rescued, when relating what he could remember of the accident.

"I was standing on an oil tank car and everything all at once started flying up, and I unloaded. The train was going pretty fast and something seemed to have broken.

"I jumped clear of the car as the train began stacking up, and, in some way—I don't know how—my leg was crushed. The entire lower part of my leg was mashed.

"I was alone on the back end of the tank car and I believe there were four others on the front end. A lot of others were along the sides.

"I was never unconscious but the suddenness of it all, the fire, the yelling and crying of trapped men, and the awful pain in my leg made it like a nightmare. Somehow—I don't know how—I escaped death and was brought in an ambulance to the hospital.

"I am married and have one child, a little boy. We were planning to make our home in Monroe, and I had left Shreveport to come on ahead and make arrangements before sending for my wife and son," he said.

Another dramatic account of escape from a horrible death was related by James Bradford, 60, of New Orleans, who was also riding on a tank car.

"The train was moving mighty fast when I heard the air brakes go on.

"Something popped on the car I was riding. It popped a second time like something breaking, and then the car jumped the track and the cars began piling up.

"My left hip was recently broken and was not very strong. For that reason, I was unable to jump from the car.

"I was thrown from the car as it left the track and was hurled to the ground. I looked up and saw the tank car, which had been joined behind the one I was on, rolling down upon me, and I shut my eyes, unable to move, and waited for the car to crush me.

"But miraculously, the car stopped rolling after one of its wheels had come to rest across my right wrist.

"I scratched the dirt away from under my arm in order to free myself. Fire was raging within 20 feet of me when I finally freed myself and managed to get away.

"I was on about the fifteenth or eighteenth car behind the engine, and there must have been at least 60 cars in the entire train. There were several cars loaded with pulp wood just ahead of me, and, as far as I could judge, there was only one other tank car between the one I was on and the engine.

"There were lots of other persons on the tank car with me, including that man (pointing to Burchik, in the bed next to his) and two white boys who were brought here and some negroes.

"I had been to Shreveport and was on my way home."

The two 16-year-old Corsicana, Texas, youths, were en route to Bosco, 15 miles south of Monroe.

J. C. Howell, who suffered a fractured left collar bone, said he and his companion were en route to visit a brother of his companion, Jim Harrell, who works at a gin at Bosco.

"We were riding near the front of an oil tanker with Mr. Bradford.

"What looked like a big ball of fire shot out from beneath the tanker I was riding, just before the cars started piling up.

"I was thrown clear of the car. I got up and beat it.

"A negro and I walked to a nearby house for help. An ambulance picked me up there. The negro was not hurt.

"Flames had blazed up all around the oil cars while I was going to the house, and I could hear lots of yells coming from the wreck.

"I didn't know what had happened to Jim (Howell) until I arrived at the hospital and found him there. Jim got a broken leg, they say."

Griggs' injury was the most serious of those rescued. In a semi-conscious condition at the sanitarium Saturday, he mumbled, "Is it raining?" as attendants let drops of water drip from a damp cloth upon his dry lips.

Mrs. N. L. Slocum, a sister, who resides at 101 Cotton street, West Monroe, was at his bedside, as were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Griggs, who reside six miles east of Calhoun. Mr. Griggs is a farmer.

Rogers Johnson, 50, negro, of Shreveport, who was badly burned, said that his clothes were burning when he escaped from the tank car.

"I tore most of my clothes off. Two white men helped me beat out the fire, but the fire burned my face so I couldn't see," he told reporters.

The negro's face was badly puffed, and was almost a solid blister. One of his eyes was completely shut and he could hardly see with the other. He was burned on the hands and on the right side of his body. His left arm was broken.

T. Magee, 22, negro, of Epps, said: "The first thing I knew, all the cars were turning over. I was on an oil tank car with Steve Smith, another negro, who was sick. Smith was hurt on the head but not brought to the sanitarium.

The negro had a borken right shoulder.

Members of the Monroe fire department who helped extinguish the flames and who aided in the rescue work were headed by Captains Tom Dupree, J. W. Faler and Jack Blanks.

The firemen were John McStravick, J. C. Demarchi, Joe Polk and Carl Peterson, who volunteered.

West Monroe firemen who also did excellent work were: Chief E. C. Taylor, Assistant Chief George McGee and Firemen John Calvert, Frank Eyre, Albert Taylor, Hilton Taylor, C. C. Bell, Jr., A. F. Jones, L. M. Webb and Ernest McNeill, all volunteer firemen.

WHERE YOUTH'S LEG WAS REMOVED

GRAND JURY WILL MEET ON MONDAY

BASTROP, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—A large number of criminal cases are expected to be investigated by the Morehouse parish grand jury when it convenes for the regular fall term Monday morning. District Attorney Frank W. Hawthorne has announced that over a hundred witnesses have been called to appear before the quisitorial body.

Due to the fact that the courthouse, now undergoing repairs, has not been completed, the grand jury will hold its sessions at the city hall. The regular fall term of criminal court will begin Monday, October 21, and it is hoped to have the courthouse completed by that time.

The jury commission of the parish has selected 20 names from which a grand jury will be drawn Monday morning. Those selected are as follows:

W. B. Houston, Frank O. Pratt, Dennis Carter, J. T. Cloyd, R. G. Ferguson, T. A. Raines, Sr., Sam Conger, Clarence Wasson, Jack Moore, J. H. Leech, G. T. Stewart, C. T. Matheny, Neal Jenkins, A. J. Caldwell, M. J. Pittman, Velie Parker, C. S. Reeves, and George Howell.

SENATOR M'ADOO WEDS SATURDAY

on the wedding scene, an hour before the ceremony, to get the picture-posing and license-making detail over.

Asked the story of their romance, the senator jovially said: "You can't expect a man to talk about his love affairs!"

Senator McAdoo had kept his immediate plans secret even from his son-in-law. He made a statement that after a brief honeymoon he and his bride, also a flying enthusiast, will fly to the Pacific coast "to be present during the forthcoming visit to California of President Roosevelt" and will "spend the interval before the reconvening of congress at their home in Los Angeles."

Out in Oakland, Iowa, the bride's father, R. G. Cross, a 55-year-old auctioneer, voiced his disapproval of the marriage, but said his daughter, who advised him of her plans by telephone yesterday, knew her own mind.

"I don't care if he is a senator and a Democratic party leader," said Cross. "I don't like the idea of Doris, who is only 26, marrying a man 71 years old."

But in San Diego, Calif., the bride's mother, Mrs. Nellie Cross, also informed by telephone, was first to give definite details of the nuptials. They came as a startling surprise to Washington where McAdoo has been a noted figure ever since he served as the war-time secretary of the treasury and married President Wilson's daughter, who was divorced from him in July, 1934.

For Miss Cross, today's ceremony was a jump from obscurity to the dazzling place of youngest "senatorial wife" in the gay society of the nation's capital, where Senator McAdoo has been a glamorous figure.

The blue-eyed girl combs her dark brown hair smoothly back from a "widow's peak," dresses with a simplicity almost equal to her working uniform, and her inclinations have been studious and religious.

alarmed and panic stricken, knowing full well that with me as district attorney and Judge Pavy on the bench, they would have difficulty in making their commissioners do their bidding.

"It was then that they conceived the scheme and idea of having a new judge and a new district attorney of their own selection assume their offices by appointment of the governor at once, in order that they might steal the votes of the people of Evangeline with impunity and those so doing might escape prosecution.

"Aside from the absolute unfairness of Act No. 1 with respect to the population of the parishes of St. Landry, Lafayette, Acadia and Vermilion included in the 15th district as compared with the single parish of Evangeline, in the 13th district, the act is clearly unconstitutional. The office of district attorney is a constitutional office and upon my election thereto, I possessed a vested right therein until the expiration of my term and furthermore, no power is granted to the legislature to appoint assistant district attorneys."

LARGE SEARCHING PARTY HUNT FOR MISSING PLANE

BEACON, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A searching party of more than 100 persons was organized tonight to hunt for an airplane believed to have crashed in Hell Hollow, a deep ravine in the Fishkill mountains near here. Sergt. William Hamlin of the Fishkill state police, in charge of the search, expressed the belief the plane was that in which Lieut. Lincoln C. Denton of the naval reserve and Mechanic C. Hart took off fom Albany airport at 5:45 p. m., eastern daylight time.

ordered the investigation continued, however, at least until a coroner's inquest is held, which tentatively has been set for next Wednesday.

County Detective Francis Grubb, who also examined the death pistol, said he found "three clear and distinct prints of the lower three fingers of Miss Hoey's right hand in normal gun grip position" on the weapon. He said fingerprints on other parts of the gun were blurred and could not be identified.

Grubb said he would continue investigation, however, to attempt to identify other persons who may have handled the pistol.

"I have statements from two others that they handled the gun on the morning of the tragedy," the detective explained. "Yamada, the Japanese cook, was cleaning the master bedroom and he moved the gun to the top of the dresser.

"When he turned around he saw young Charles MacCardell (farm employe) handling the gun. He picked it up to look at it and he fingered it."

Pending the inquest no official report will be entered as to the cause of the death of the 25-year-old chanteuse, who was found with a .45 caliber bullet through her temple in the bedroom of the country home of Henry H. Rogers, 3rd, son of the late Standard Oil multi-millionaire, near Downingtown last Thursday.

Most investigating officials concurred in the statement of Dr. H. B. F. Davis, after an autopsy, that "every evidence pointed to suicide."

The actress' father, Henry J. Hoey, St. Louis druggist, held a dissenting view. He had engaged an attorney to make a private inquiry.

The shooting occurred, officers were informed, after a heated argument between Miss Hoey and Rogers, who had been drinking.

"I know that, but he could have gone from Alexandria to Shreveport and then continued to Monroe," the man explained.

A check at the hospitals and various morgues revealed that no youth bearing his description was there, and there was no way of knowing whether the youth had perished in the wreck.

The father left, unconsoled.

Floyd Brown is described as being four feet, four inches in height, has light hair, grey eyes, is of fair complexion and when last seen was wearing a blue shirt, blue overalls, a straw hat and brown tennis shoes.

He left Vicksburg in September.

Anyone seeing a boy of this description was asked to communicate with Monroe police.

rushed to St. Francis sanitarium, where he was believed to be dying Saturday night of loss of blood and shock.

Others known to have escaped death in the derailment, but who were injured, were:

James Bradford, 60, 1408 Constance street, New Orleans, minor injury to the right arm.

J. C. Howell, 16, Corsicana, Texas, fracture of the left collar bone.

J. H. Harrell, 16, Corsicana, fractured right leg.

T. Magee, 22, negro, Epps, fractured right shoulder.

They were all taken to St. Francis sanitarium, where all but Johnson were reported Saturday night to be out of danger. Johnson's condition was considered serious.

All of these persons, with the exception of Griggs, were thrown clear of the wreckage. They said they would not have been able to escape otherwise.

A physician who witnessed the burning of the cars said the heat was so intense that it was possible for an untold number to have been so cremated that not even a bone would remain when the fire cooled. This was believed to be the reason that so few bodies were removed.

The charred remains of four of the flame victims were brought to a local morgue and order was given that they be buried immediately. So little remained of the other five victims known to have perished, that they were buried along the right of way.

So rapidly did news of the derailment spread that by daybreak hundreds of persons had visited the scene, and this number was increased to thousands during Saturday. Workers toiled unceasingly to clear the tracks, and this was accomplished during the late afternoon.

Although railroad officials were not ready to give their version of what caused the wreck, signs of what led to it were plainly seen for about a block and a half west of where the cars piled up. The crossties in the middle of the track were badly torn up.

A railroad worker showed reporters how he said the crash occurred. He said a "hotbox" at the journal of a truck heated the huge "axle" to such an extent that the part protruding on the outside of the wheel, and which supported the weight of the car, was burned off, permitting the car to drop and the wheels, with their big axle, to run wild.

He said it was the wheels running wild that tore up the track before the actual pile-up. For many hours after the wreck the journal was still too hot to touch.

The accident occurred about 10 feet east of the railroad crossing on the Brown Paper mill road, and several hundred yards from where a similar accident occurred some months ago. The tangled mass was strewn crazily over the right of way when the cars buckled up, turned over or telescoped wildly all over the place. One of the cars contained soda ash, consigned to the Brown Paper mill for use in making chemical solution. Others contained pulp wood, others oil and still others merchandise of various description.

Railroad officials, busy clearing the tracks, were unable to estimate the damage either to railroad property or freight, but it is believed the total damage will run into many thousands of dollars.

Among the first to arrive at the scene after the derailment were Lloyd Fletcher and Howard Thompson of Brownville. But because of the intense heat they were unable to get close enough to be of help. They were joined in a few moments by a throng of others, attracted by the flames and commotion.

Robert Nolan, who witnessed the tragedy from a freight car which did not leave the tracks, and who told reporters that at least 40 persons had been clinging to the oil tank cars, jumped from his perch and aided in the rescue work. He was of the opinion that many more perished in the flames than had been accounted for. Nolan said the transients were cluttered on the oil cars because there were no empties on the train.

None of those who died were identified, and it was not considered probable that they ever would be. The only evidence uncovered at the scene that might lead to an identification was a twisted open face watch of cheap make.

The first body to be removed was the torso of a large man, which was recovered at 5:45 a.m. Saturday morning. This was quickly followed by discovery of the other nine, the remains of only three more being suitable for removal to Monroe and later burial.

Most of the bodies recovered were found at the edge of a charred heap of twisted metal and wood, the remnants of several burned box cars. Charred skulls and pieces of burned human flesh were visible under the wreckage.

A reporter stumbled upon Melvin Johnson, 28, Springfield, Mo., transient, who was sleeping serenely on the ground near the wreckage.

When aroused by the reporter, he sat up and grinned: "This is a fine time to be waking a fellow up."

He said the crash occurred while he and another man were in a car loaded with pulp wood, seven or eight cars behind those which piled up.

"I got cold in Ruston," he said, "and left the oil car where I had been sitting. Then I crawled in on top of that wood. I was asleep when I felt the jolt.

"The fellow with me and I jumped out and rushed down to the oil tank cars, but the fire had broken out just as the cars piled up.

"I didn't hear anyone yelling, except the fellow they cut out of the box car." (Griggs).

Johnson substantiated Nolan's statement that there were 40 persons on the oil tank cars and declared it was his opinion that many more perished than had been accounted for.

"The accident happened so sudden and the fire flamed up so abruptly, I don't see how it was humanly possible for few, if any, of them to have escaped, unless they were thrown clear of the wreckage, as were the seven who were rescued," Johnson declared.

"It all happened so quickly I hardly knew what it was all about," said Joseph Burchik, 36, Shreveport, one of those rescued, when relating what he could remember of the accident.

"I was standing on an oil tank car and everything all at once started flying up, and I unloaded. The train was going pretty fast and something seemed to have broken.

"I jumped clear of the car as the train began stacking up, and, in some way—I don't know how—my leg was crushed. The entire lower part of my leg was mashed.

"I was alone on the back end of the tank car and I believe there were four others on the front end. A lot of others were along the sides.

"I was never unconscious but the suddenness of it all, the fire, the yelling and crying of trapped men, and the awful pain in my leg made it like a nightmare. Somehow—I don't know how—I escaped death and was brought in an ambulance to the hospital.

"I am married and have one child, a little boy. We were planning to make our home in Monroe, and I had left Shreveport to come on ahead and make arrangements before sending for my wife and son," he said.

Another dramatic account of escape from a horrible death was related by James Bradford, 60, of New Orleans, who was also riding on a tank car.

"The train was moving mighty fast when I heard the air brakes go on.

"Something popped on the car I was riding. It popped a second time like something breaking, and then the car jumped the track and the cars began piling up.

"My left hip was recently broken and was not very strong. For that reason, I was unable to jump from the car.

"I was thrown from the car as it left the track and was hurled to the ground. I looked up and saw the tank car, which had been joined behind the one I was on, rolling down upon me, and I shut my eyes, unable to move, and waited for the car to crush me.

"But miraculously, the car stopped rolling after one of its wheels had come to rest across my right wrist.

"I scratched the dirt away from under my arm in order to free myself. Fire was raging within 20 feet of me when I finally freed myself and managed to get away.

"I was on about the fifteenth or eighteenth car behind the engine, and there must have been at least 60 cars in the entire train. There were several cars loaded with pulp wood just ahead of me, and, as far as I could judge, there was only one other tank car between the one I was on and the engine.

"There were lots of other persons on the tank car with me, including that man (pointing to Burchik, in the bed next to his) and two white boys who were brought here and some negroes.

"I had been to Shreveport and was on my way home."

The two 16-year-old Corsicana, Texas, youths, were en route to Bosco, 15 miles south of Monroe.

J. C. Howell, who suffered a fractured left collar bone, said he and his companion were en route to visit a brother of his companion, Jim Harrell, who works at a gin at Bosco.

"We were riding near the front of an oil tanker with Mr. Bradford.

"What looked like a big ball of fire shot out from beneath the tanker I was riding, just before the cars started piling up.

"I was thrown clear of the car. I got up and beat it.

"A negro and I walked to a nearby house for help. An ambulance picked me up there. The negro was not hurt.

"Flames had blazed up all around the oil cars while I was going to the house, and I could hear lots of yells coming from the wreck.

"I didn't know what had happened to Jim (Howell) until I arrived at the hospital and found him there. Jim got a broken leg, they say."

Griggs' injury was the most serious of those rescued. In a semi-conscious condition at the sanitarium Saturday, he mumbled, "Is it raining?" as attendants let drops of water drip from a damp cloth upon his dry lips.

Mrs. N. L. Slocum, a sister, who resides at 101 Cotton street, West Monroe, was at his bedside, as were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Griggs, who reside six miles east of Calhoun. Mr. Griggs is a farmer.

Rogers Johnson, 50, negro, of Shreveport, who was badly burned, said that his clothes were burning when he escaped from the tank car.

"I tore most of my clothes off. Two white men helped me beat out the fire, but the fire burned my face so I couldn't see," he told reporters.

The negro's face was badly puffed, and was almost a solid blister. One of his eyes was completely shut and he could hardly see with the other. He was burned on the hands and on the right side of his body. His left arm was broken.

T. Magee, 22, negro, of Epps, said: "The first thing I knew, all the cars were turning over. I was on an oil tank car with Steve Smith, another negro, who was sick. Smith was hurt on the head but not brought to the sanitarium.

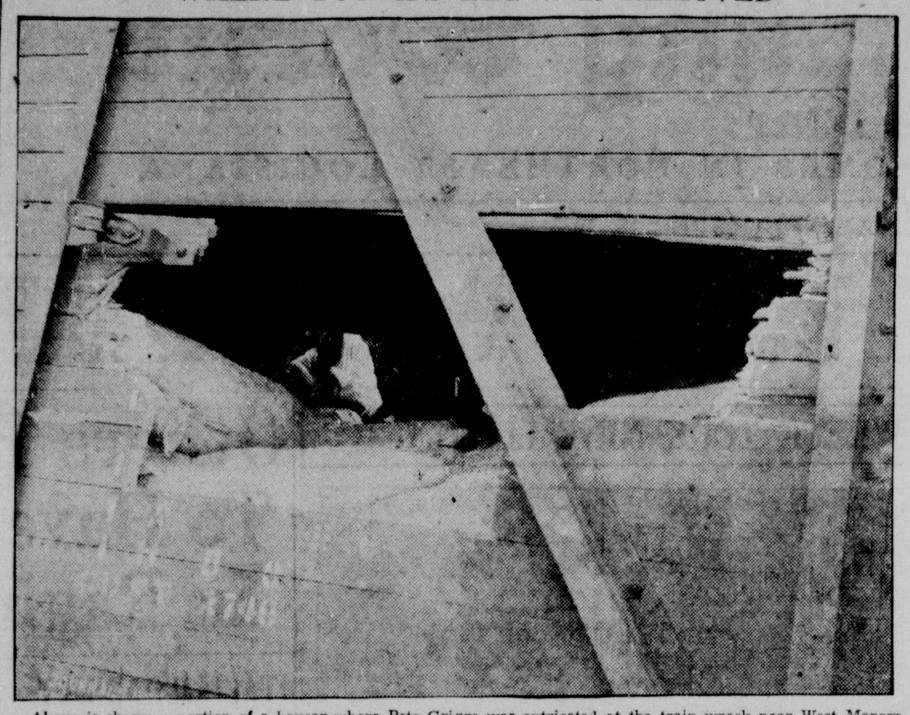

The negro had a borken right shoulder.

Members of the Monroe fire department who helped extinguish the flames and who aided in the rescue work were headed by Captains Tom Dupree, J. W. Faler and Jack Blanks.

The firemen were John McStravick, J. C. Demarchi, Joe Polk and Carl Peterson, who volunteered.

West Monroe firemen who also did excellent work were: Chief E. C. Taylor, Assistant Chief George McGee and Firemen John Calvert, Frank Eyre, Albert Taylor, Hilton Taylor, C. C. Bell, Jr., A. F. Jones, L. M. Webb and Ernest McNeill, all volunteer firemen.

WHERE YOUTH'S LEG WAS REMOVED

GRAND JURY WILL MEET ON MONDAY

BASTROP, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—A large number of criminal cases are expected to be investigated by the Morehouse parish grand jury when it convenes for the regular fall term Monday morning. District Attorney Frank W. Hawthorne has announced that over a hundred witnesses have been called to appear before the quisitorial body.

Due to the fact that the courthouse, now undergoing repairs, has not been completed, the grand jury will hold its sessions at the city hall. The regular fall term of criminal court will begin Monday, October 21, and it is hoped to have the courthouse completed by that time.

The jury commission of the parish has selected 20 names from which a grand jury will be drawn Monday morning. Those selected are as follows:

W. B. Houston, Frank O. Pratt, Dennis Carter, J. T. Cloyd, R. G. Ferguson, T. A. Raines, Sr., Sam Conger, Clarence Wasson, Jack Moore, J. H. Leech, G. T. Stewart, C. T. Matheny, Neal Jenkins, A. J. Caldwell, M. J. Pittman, Velie Parker, C. S. Reeves, and George Howell.

on the wedding scene, an hour before the ceremony, to get the picture-posing and license-making detail over.

Asked the story of their romance, the senator jovially said: "You can't expect a man to talk about his love affairs!"

Senator McAdoo had kept his immediate plans secret even from his son-in-law. He made a statement that after a brief honeymoon he and his bride, also a flying enthusiast, will fly to the Pacific coast "to be present during the forthcoming visit to California of President Roosevelt" and will "spend the interval before the reconvening of congress at their home in Los Angeles."

Out in Oakland, Iowa, the bride's father, R. G. Cross, a 55-year-old auctioneer, voiced his disapproval of the marriage, but said his daughter, who advised him of her plans by telephone yesterday, knew her own mind.

"I don't care if he is a senator and a Democratic party leader," said Cross. "I don't like the idea of Doris, who is only 26, marrying a man 71 years old."

But in San Diego, Calif., the bride's mother, Mrs. Nellie Cross, also informed by telephone, was first to give definite details of the nuptials. They came as a startling surprise to Washington where McAdoo has been a noted figure ever since he served as the war-time secretary of the treasury and married President Wilson's daughter, who was divorced from him in July, 1934.

For Miss Cross, today's ceremony was a jump from obscurity to the dazzling place of youngest "senatorial wife" in the gay society of the nation's capital, where Senator McAdoo has been a glamorous figure.

The blue-eyed girl combs her dark brown hair smoothly back from a "widow's peak," dresses with a simplicity almost equal to her working uniform, and her inclinations have been studious and religious.

STRIFE IS SEEN IF ACT ENFORCED

alarmed and panic stricken, knowing full well that with me as district attorney and Judge Pavy on the bench, they would have difficulty in making their commissioners do their bidding.

"It was then that they conceived the scheme and idea of having a new judge and a new district attorney of their own selection assume their offices by appointment of the governor at once, in order that they might steal the votes of the people of Evangeline with impunity and those so doing might escape prosecution.

"Aside from the absolute unfairness of Act No. 1 with respect to the population of the parishes of St. Landry, Lafayette, Acadia and Vermillion included in the 15th district as compared with the single parish of Evangeline, in the 13th district, the act is clearly unconstitutional. The office of district attorney is a constitutional office and upon my election thereto, I possessed a vested right therein until the expiration of my term and furthermore, no power is granted to the legislature to appoint assistant district attorneys."

LARGE SEARCHING PARTY HUNT FOR MISSING PLANE

BEACON, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A searching party of more than 100 persons was organized tonight to hunt for an airplane believed to have crashed in Hell Hollow, a deep ravine in the Fishkill mountains near here. Sergt. William Hamlin of the Fishkill state police, in charge of the search, expressed the belief the plane was that in which Lieut. Lincoln C. Denton of the naval reserve and Mechanic C. Hart took off fom Albany airport at 5:45 p. m., eastern daylight time.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN MONDAY

Parish Group Has Enlarged Facilities; New College Teachers

Parish and city schools will open for the fall term of 1935 on Monday as will also the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. Increased enrollments are expected in all schools and in the college.

In order to accommodate the increased enrollment anticipated, the parish schools at Lenwil, Ransom and Millsaps have been enlarged so as to permit the teaching of five grades. Formerly only four grades were taught.

The parish has further added to its facilities by the purchase of the Peters Furniture company's building, 501 South Grand street, immediately north of the Ouachita parish high school. Five class rooms have been partitioned off and a large study hall for the commercial department has been added.

Buildings of the city system have been put into the best of condition in anticipation of the opening of the fall term.

Several additional courses have been added at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university and the faculty has been enlarged, several new faculty members having been added.

To accommodate many who desire to attend and who live at a distance, buses will be run from Delhi, Bastrop, and Olla to the college each morning, the return trip being made later in the day.

The first faculty meeting of Northeast Center was held Saturday afternoon in charge of Dean C. C. Colvert.

Dean Colvert, of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, stated Saturday that all freshmen must be present Monday morning for the orientation exercises in the auditorium. He said that many students have asked federal aid to enable them to go to college and have not as yet received a definite response from the government. The dean asks all such students who are planning to attend college here to be present Monday morning and to go through the week even if they are not assured of the granting of funds by the government.

Should aid be granted later and they had not entered college, they would be behind in their studies, the dean explained.

Will Rogers' Last Report From Land Of Polar Bears

(Editor's Note: Mr. Rogers expected to be in Russia on the publication date of this article. The copy was mailed from Fairbanks, August 14.)

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I run onto awhile back when I was messing around up in Alaska. Thats a most interesting country.

I was mentioning to you one time about being in the fine museum in Juneau, the Capitol of Alaska. There is a little Russian man in there, he was born in Alaska, before it was sold to us, "Father * * * *" (some Russian name) Well he has made a great study of Alaskan customs, relics, languages, its history and everything, and if ever a fellow fit in a museum its him in this one.

It has some marvelous works of art by the Indians and Esquimos. Those Esquimos are really a mighty high class bunch of folks, and plum proud. They wont mess at all with the Indians, and not much with the whites. They think they are superior to the whites, and it dont take much to tell that they have kinder got it on us.

What they can do with the skin of some old wile animal! The women folks kinder work it down some way with their teeth. Some of the older womens teeth are all wore down just gnawing on various skins to get em sowed.

A doctor up there told me that the Esquimos sow anything or stitch it up just like the doctors do a wound. Lots of their winter stuff have the fur inside. They can spread fish nets under the ice, Now how could you spread a fish net under the ice.

They got wooden boxes that are absolutely solid, that is they take one piece and when they get to the corner of the box they cut it, but not entirely in too, but so it will make a square bend, then sow the corners to keep it solid. And they have a water tight box, not a nail, and its absolutely one piece of board and not cut in two at all. Marvelous things cut from rocks, like hatchets and fish line sinkers and in fact anything you need.

Fish seems to be their Specialty, in fact its got to be, for thats about all they got to eat, and thats what they feed the dogs on too. They have to catch a lot of fish for a team of dogs, which is five, or seven. Course seal meat, and white whales, which is something bigger than a porpoise but white.

You know I found out up there that these esquimos have one of the most regulated lives there is. That is, almost to a day of the various months or seasons, they will go from the hunting or trapping of one animal to the other.

White fox takes up just so many days, perhaps a couple of months, but there is almost a certain time that they will stop and move to another place to take up another game. Muskrat, then white seals, then their seal and fishing for their supply of dog food.

They all come in and hold a celebration on Xmas, then by New Years they are out again, and hold one at one of the native places.

Then the polo bear season occupies so much of their time. He is pretty hard to get, He is worth real money to em.

Oh yes, then they got the caribou to hunt, There is literally thousands of caribou all over Alaska and the Yukon, and Northwest territories. They say they pass in great herds like the old timers say the buffalo used to do. I kinder thought they was always kinder stringing us about those buffalo, but these folks say the caribou do that right now.

I want to tell you the great story some time of the big drive of 3 thousand reindeer from away over in the very northwest tip of our country to Alaska, clear along the very banks of the Artic Ocean for 2 thousand miles to the place where I stayed a couple of days at Aklavik, the very mouth of the McKenzie River. They was five years getting them there, its the greatest story in animal driving I ever heard. The Canadian government had bought them from the Loman Brothers the big reindeer men of Alaska.

Its a great country, is Alaska and the Canadian Northwest, where you have to live off the country, hunt, trap, kill and live. Four mails a year into that place, two and a half months when its not frozen in.

Its just a hundred and fifty miles from Hershel Island out in the Artic, (where we went too) and its the place where all the old whalers of the old days used to come in and freeze in and stay for the winter.

A whale used to net em about 18 or 20 thousand dollars, when whalebone was selling, but the minute the women started reducing, and trying to get some sort of shape with a rubber corset, the old whalers were pretty near put out of business. The blubber and oil had to make up for the old whalebone corset stays.

Polo bear hides are not worth anything now they say. Furs have been pretty cheap but there is no depression up here and never was. Ground only thaws out one foot in the summer and from that on down its froze plum on down.

An Esquimo dog from the time he is just a half sized pup is never untied. He is always tied with a chain, and he dont bark at all, he howls. They call all Esquimos "Husky." I always thought it was the dogs that were called "Husky" but its the Esquimos themselves.

That's enough northern knowledge for one lesson, especially when some of it maby aint so.

Drum And Bugle Corps Of V. F. W. Post To Make Trip To New Orleans

The drum and bugle corps of Rodney J. Hobbs post, veterans of Foreign Wars, and other members of the post, will leave here Monday morning at 8 o'clock for New Orleans, where they will attend the annual encampment of the national organization.

Most of the delegates from the post wall make the trip in the post bus, leaving here from the post headquarters, corner of Harrison and Hall streets.

Official delegates from the local unit are C. A. Hunt, post commander, William Rodriquez and William Rainer. The alternate delegates are L. L. McLeod, C. B. Walker and Vollie Voinche.

A. J. Willis, commander of the recently organized Veterans of Foreign Wars post at Rayville, and L. H. Himel, trustee of the post, will make the trip with the local delegates.

The drum and bugle corps will enter the national contests for such organizations to be conducted at the encampment Wednesday afternoon and night. Cash prizes are to be awarded the winners.

Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock a big convention parade will be held.

Real Estate Transfers

Capitalized at $1,000, the Arrow Drilling corporation filed articles of incorporation yesterday at the office of the parish clerk of court. The board of directors is composed of the following: President, Earl Stovall; vice-president, Travis Oliver; secretary-treasurer, Travis Oliver, Jr.; Fred Stovall.

REPORT ON STOCK TESTS ANNOUNCED

Only Four Cattle Having Disease Gives Parish Exceptional Rating

Only four cows out of 15,971 tested for tuberculosis in Ouachita parish during the past two weeks were found to be afflicted with the disease, it was revealed yesterday afternoon by the records of Dr. W. W. Wiseman, veterinarian who served as supervisor of the work in the parish.

The cattle tuberculosis record in Ouachita parish was considered exceptionally low, with other parishes in north Louisiana in which the testing program has been completed also showing excellent records. Having more cattle than most parishes of north Louisiana, Ouachita parish was given an even more exceptionally low percentage of tuberculosis.

The four cattle found having the disease were purchased by the federal government and destroyed.

Dr. Wiseman, in closing the two-week program in Ouachita parish, commended the cooperation given him and his staff of 10 veterinarians by cattle owners of the parish and E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent. Dr. Wiseman tomorrow will begin the testing of cattle in Caldwell parish.

About 400 cattle in Ouachita parish were not tested during the past two weeks because some cattle owners were not sufficiently familiar with the veterinarians' schedules. These cattle owners may have their stock tested this week by communicating with Mr. Strahan.

Two of the veterinarians who worked in the parish in the past two weeks will remain here this week to finish the work of testing all cattle in the parish.

The general testing program is being conducted under the supervision of the federal bureau of animal industry, and in Louisiana is receiving the cooperation of the Louisiana State Livestock Sanitary board, the state extension service and parish agricultural agents.

FAIR COMMITTEE FORMED AT OLLA

Group Is To Boost North Central Louisiana Exposition

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—At a meeting in the directors' room of the Olla State bank Friday a committee was formed to be known as "North Central Louisiana Fair Boosters" and plans were made to make this year's fair, which is to be held in Olla October 8 to 12, a very successful one.

A parade is scheduled for the opening day and it is planned to have floats representing the merchants of LaSalle, Winn and Catahoula parishes. The parade will be headed by William Holloman of Olla, king, and Miss Carolyn Humphries of Jena, queen. Maids of honor are to be selected from the senior classes of the high schools in the parishes.

The mayors and school principals of the four parihes are honorary members of the committee, which is headed by J. P. Wade of Jena, chairman, and composed of the following members, who were present at the meeting: M. A. Elliott, Olla, secretary; B. E. Zeagler, Mrs. J. L. Allison, Mrs. M. A. Elliott, Olla; Mrs. C. I. Humphries, Mrs. Eddie Welch and K. E. Osterberger of Jena.

The Louisiana Highway department has announced that the seven and one-half mile gap in the Enterprise-Columbia highway in the northern part of Catahoula and southern part of Caldwell parishes will be completed. Specifications call for graveling and surfacing with washed gravel. The contract will be let on October 2, 1935. The road will furnish a short cut to Monroe for the people of Catahoula parish and an outlet to Columbia and all points north.

W. W. Brewton, of Jena, formerly deputy sheriff in charge of tax collections and vice president of the Bank of Jena, has announced his candidacy for assessor of LaSalle parish.

There are approximately 2,700 pilots in the Royal air force of Great Britain.

SENATOR BILBO ANSWERS SMITH

Mississippian Replies To Charges Made By Louisiana Minister

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 14.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Theodore G. Bilbo referred to the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, organizer of Long "share-our-wealth" societies as "damnable self-made liar" today in denying charges made against him by Rev. Smith.

Bilbo, who is a licensed minister of the Baptist church himself, said that Rev. Smith should "take his Bible and get back into the pulpit where he belongs."

"When the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith intimates, insinuates or charges that I went to New Orleans last week or any other time in my life with $25,000 in my pocket," Senator Bilbo said hotly, "he is a contemptible, dirty, vicious, pusillanimous, with malice-aforethought, damnable, self-made liar.

"I went to New Orleans to make arrangements with the Federal Land bank to get some money that they were holding back on a loan to finish my dream house. I made the necessary arrangements and drove straight back to my office at Poplarville. I visited only two places in New Orleans, a restaurant and the bank.

"If the Rev. PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN MONDAY

Parish Group Has Enlarged Facilities; New College Teachers

Parish and city schools will open for the fall term of 1935 on Monday as will also the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. Increased enrollments are expected in all schools and in the college.

In order to accommodate the increased enrollment anticipated, the parish schools at Lenwil, Ransom and Millsaps have been enlarged so as to permit the teaching of five grades. Formerly only four grades were taught.

The parish has further added to its facilities by the purchase of the Peters Furniture company's building, 501 South Grand street, immediately north of the Ouachita parish high school. Five class rooms have been partitioned off and a large study hall for the commercial department has been added.

Buildings of the city system have been put into the best of condition in anticipation of the opening of the fall term.

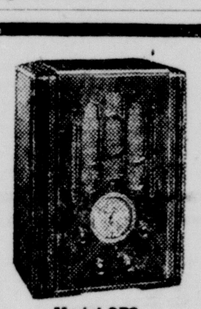

Several additional courses have been added at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university and the faculty has been enlarged, several new faculty members having been added.

To accommodate many who desire to attend and who live at a distance, buses will be run from Delhi, Bastrop, and Olla to the college each morning, the return trip being made later in the day.

The first faculty meeting of Northeast Center was held Saturday afternoon in charge of Dean C. C. Colvert.

Dean Colvert, of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, stated Saturday that all freshmen must be present Monday morning for the orientation exercises in the auditorium. He said that many students have asked federal aid to enable them to go to college and have not as yet received a definite response from the government. The dean asks all such students who are planning to attend college here to be present Monday morning and to go through the week even if they are not assured of the granting of funds by the government.

Should aid be granted later and they had not entered college, they would be behind in their studies, the dean explained.

The Green Plum

A father was raving distractedly about his son. To the boy's mother he said, "That boy will never earn his salt. He has more gold in his teeth now than he will ever be worth. He is unreliable. He never finishes anything he starts. He does not know the value of a dollar. He would rather dress up in those monkey clothes of his than be president of the United States. You never know when he is telling you the truth. And he is so opinionated that nobody can tell him anything.

The mother was a calm woman and she listened patiently. Also she was wiser than her husband—as is sometimes the case. She arose and took him by the hand. "Come with me," she said. She led the disgruntled man to the back yard and to a plum tree.

She pointed to a half-grown plum hanging there and said: "That fruit is of no earthly account now. It is not even good to look at." "Yes," replied her husband, "but it will be worth something before the summer is over."

"It will," replied his wife earnestly, "if it is properly tended, if the sun shines on it, and the rain falls on it. And if no storms arise that are too violent for it to endure."

"And so with that boy of ours," she continued, patting the hand she was holding. "He is green and undeveloped, just like that plum. The good qualities inherent in him have not as yet come out; but they will if he can be properly guided and counseled and treated with patience.

"You do not look for this plum to be fit for anything for at least two months. Do not expect the boy to be anything near what you want him to be for at least five years. Let's tend him as we would the plum; and he will ripen beautifully, as will the plum."

Her husband grinned, and she knew she had him.

It is natural, especially for fathers, to become impatient regarding the development of children.

People expect the boy or girl of eighteen to have as much judgment and stability as the man or woman of forty. The situation is made all the more aggravating by the individualism of the young person. If the young folk have enough initiative and personality to amount to anything later on, their initiative and personality are apt to poke out in all sorts of disturbing and pestering ways. Some of the nicest boys and girls have been the meanest babies; and some of the finest men and women have been the meanest boys and girls.

One thing that makes parents impatient is that they do not stop to think that green fruit, which as green fruit, is absolutely worthless, can develop into ripe fruit that is particularly worth while. When things look pretty disappointing and annoying, it would help a lot to remember that some fruits which are especially unpalatable when they are green, are especially delectable when they are ripe. The persimmon is one of these.

SOURCE OF USEFUL TAXATION

The American Institute of Architects has put forward a sound idea by suggesting that a system of state taxation on billboards be set up.

Such a scheme would have two advantages. First of all, it would provide a lucrative new source of revenue—and there isn't a state in the Union which would not welcome such a thing. Secondly, and more important, it would provide the state with some means of control over one of the great public nuisances of the day.

There is a place for billboards, of course; but that place is not the spot which most of them occupy. They spoil mile after mile of our country highways and render ugly the approaches to our cities and towns. It is utterly absurd to say that the state has no right to assume control over them. A taxation system which would make possible the abatement of this nuisance would be an excellent thing from the standpoint of public interest.

LEAVING A BAD TASTE

E. L. Doheny is dead, leaving behind him another picturesque chapter in the famous American story, "From Rags to Riches." This man, who set out from his Wisconsin home upwards of 60 years ago possessed of nothing except energy and ambition, made himself what can be done in America by one whose acquisitive instinct is properly developed.

Yet his story is not one which Americans will enjoy reading. He will be remembered because of the oil scandals. He will have his place in the history books, but it won't be the sort of place a sensitive man would care to fill.

There used to be a saying, "The king can do no wrong." A certain kind of American capitalist seems to feel that a rich man enjoys the same privilege. Doheny will go down in history as a representative of that kind of capitalist.

Far from being unsuccessful in their search for a presidential candidate, the Republicans can't even find anyone who doesn't choose to run.

Italy is placed on war-time basis. This means that Mussolini's days will end less from now on.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

ONE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

(On reading of a hermit, who when evicted from a cave in a stone quarry, moved into another and carried placidly on.)

Here is happiness, home and contentment,
No luxury this person craves,
He will harbor no shred of resentment
If he's only supplied with fresh caves.
"Get the spice out of life" is his motto.
"One needs but a fairly good bed,"
And he hunted himself a new grotto
With a middling soft rock for his head.
Now he lightens dull care, as the world rolls along
With the lilt of a light happy song.

You and I and our sisters and brothers
Are a prey to sore troubles and cares;
We envy the riches of others
And are chivvied by bulls and by bears.
But a hermit, afar from the city
With abundance to wear and to eat,
Is never a person to pity;
His life must be pretty dashed sweet.
While he has what he needs, he can bid life avaunt;
What more can he possibly want?

A cavern can never catch fire,
No tempest can blow it away;
One may dwell in it, if he desire,
Through many a lingering day,
So, if you should win in the market
And have a few thousands to save,
Take your money home with you and park it
In some deep hidden nook in a cave,
And then, till at last you are called to depart,
You can sing a glad lay in your heart.

ACCORDING TO CUSTOM

Congressmen will soon be starting to apologize to their constituents.

THERE'S ALWAYS AN ALIBI

Mr. Mussolini's course reminds one of the farmer, who, after killing his neighbor's sheep, said: "I wasn't goin' to have no sheep bite me."

Signing Up The Meek

BY BRUCE CATTON

If you could get 500,000,000 people to sign an agreement demanding the end of war, you ought to bring the world appreciably closer to an era of continued peace.

This, at any rate, seems to be the idea of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; and a world-wide campaign has been begun by that organization to get half a billion signatures to a resolution against war.

The demand of this group is simple and forthright. It reads:

"Stop immediately all increase of armaments and armed forces. Use existing machinery for peaceful settlement of present conflicts. Secure a world treaty for immediate reduction of arms as a step toward complete world disarmament. Secure international agreements founded on recognition of world interdependence to end the economic anarchy which breeds war."

Papers setting forth this demand will be circulated presently in every country on earth. The women backing it plan to mobilize world opinion on a scale never before seen. They hope to confront the rulers of every nation with such an overwhelming demand for peace that the warmakers will be stunned into silence.

Now it would be easy to grow very cynical about all this. Anti-war sentiment is usually very strong and outspoken—up to the moment that war begins; then it has a way of vanishing like dawn mists before the morning sun.

The plain people of Europe unquestionably wanted peace in 1914, but when the hour struck they marched off to war meekly enough. When the battle flags flutter on the wind, the voice of the Prince of Peace is ignored.

Yet there is just a chance that this might work out differently.

The plain people of the world—the 500,000,000 who will be asked to sign this treaty—do not find their voice very often. For the most part they take the world as it is handed to them, enduring poverty and denial without much complain, serving those who use them and dying dutifully when instructed to do so.

They are, in short, the meek—the terrible meek, someone has called them—and the thing to remember about them is that ultimately they will inherit the earth.

One of these days they will make up their mind, once and for all, that their inheritance has been torn and befouled by slaughter long enough. They will conclude that fighting for oil concessions, trade rights and the commendation of the war lords is a losing game, and they will stop playing it. When that day comes, those who live by the sword will have to find other employment.

And there's an outside chance that putting half a billion names on an anti-war petition might bring that day appreciably nearer.

SO THEY SAY

It costs $1.80 today to buy the same necessities you could have purchased three years ago for $1. This is the kind of economic fact everyone can understand. It's influence upon the vote is tremendous.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago.

Happiness can come from only one thing, peace of mind. And that comes from an equal opportunity to serve, to learn, and to acquire property.—Ex.-Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Most people nowadays are not intellectual; they are practical; they want to do and they want to make.—Dr. Thomas Wright, English school head.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON.—AAA has come in for plenty of criticism for its past callousness toward consumers, all of which your correspondent has reported faithfully and zealously.

But it must be said for Secretary Wallace and Administrator Chester Davis that, even though at times they may have succumbed to pressure of combinations of food industry lobbyists, farm group lobbyists and politicians who figured the consumer could go hang, they have persisted in appointing able, honest, and aggressive men to represent consumer interests in AAA councils.

Anyone who has watched this government operate for a few years must be surprised that they haven't appointed complacent, easy-going jobholders who could be depended on not to annoy them.

The new consumers' council at AAA is Donald Montgomery, who succeeds Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, who succeeded Dr. Fred C. Howe.

Montgomery is just as active and conscientious as his predecessors and just as determined to see that consumers get the best possible break under a program which necessarily jacks up food prices.

He was a naval ensign in the World war, was a classmate of Calvin Hoover's at the University of Wisconsin, served with a Wisconsin commission which was a sort of state version of the federal trade commission, joined the FTC here and participated importantly in its investigation of chain stores, was switched to SEC, where he helped frame registration regulations, and eventually was recruited to AAA by Hoover as the latter's assistant.

He'll Uphold Consumer

Montgomery will follow Hoover's policy of constantly nudging AAA chiefs and reminding them of the consumer. If you happen to be one of those consumer persons, you can well afford to take a bow to the departing Hoover, who urged Montgomery as his successor and is now going back to his professional job at Duke university.

Hoover finally persuaded the administration that it should, maintain a policy of refusing to cut down supplies of food below those normally available for domestic consumption.

Nobody paid much attention to his words, but Wallace recently enunciated the Hoover policy—a milestone for AAA—as follows:

"Two things we want to be sure of. One is that there will be the same quantity of food per capita available to the American people as during the decade of the '20's; that is, that we take care of the consumer. The second is that quantities available in excess of that, for which foreign purchasing power is no longer available, should not be produced."

And if AAA starts to forget the first part of that, Montgomery will be there to remind it.

Obvious Political Plum

Appointment of Democratic National Committeeman Vincent Miles to the social security board is an obvious political appointment and a Roosevelt favor to Senator Joe Robinson, who faces re-election, complicated by probable Huey Long troubles, next year.

You didn't hear about it, but the name of Miles popped up once before. Roosevelt suggested him to Secretary Ickes as a candidate for the new job of undersecretary of interior.

Ickes was urging his personal assistant, Harry Slattery—probably the best man in Washington for the job, but no great favorite with professional politicians. Ickes hollored in pain when Miles was suggested.

Then Roosevelt and the interior secretary "compromised" with the appointment of ex-Congressman Charles West of Ohio, White House liaison man in Capitol hill.

The point of this story is that Roosevelt never seriously considered Miles for the job, but was advancing him to Ickes for trading purposes. Ickes could hardly refuse to bow to the White House will twice!

Another War Visioned

Don't overlook the possibility that the spreading of the Italo-Ethiopian war may first involve Europe through a German attack on Russia, aided by Poland. International experts here aren't.

The common idea that Hitler is likely to leap into Austria when Italy's back is turned and her strength is in Abyssinia overlooks the fact that Italy's mobilization has, temporarily at least, strengthened rather than weakened her military position in Europe.

The assumption of suspicious observers who take this line of thought is that Japan would simultaneously attack the Soviet from the other end.

In any event, it's unlikely that Hitler will resist the temptation to move into Memel.

SELMA MILL PROPERTY IS DESTROYED IN FIRE

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Fire of undetermined origin recently destroyed the commissary, postoffice and general offices of the Grant Timber and Manufacturing company at Selma, according to information received here. Officials of the company placed the loss at $25,000. Practically all of the office equipment and many of the records were saved, but the postoffice and commissary and stock of merchandise was a total loss.

J. D. Pope, general manager of the company, has announced that the building which housed the store, postoffice and general offices will not be rebuilt. The store department will be reopened in another building.

TAX EXEMPTIONS GRANTED

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Assessor W. L. Parker announces that, according to the Louisiana Tax commission, a $1,000 tax exemption will be granted each property holder this year. He says that this will give 99 per cent of the homestead owners in this parish an exemption. The assessor recently figured the amount of taxes the parish would lose from homestead exemptions and with the exemption $1,000 he is of the opinion that this amount will be around $12,000.

ADULT BIBLE MEETING TO CONCLUDE TODAY

The adult Bible conference initiated on Thursday and at the First Methodist church will be concluded this morning by Dean R. E. Smith of Centenary college. He will talk at 9:45 o'clock at the church on "How to Study the Bible," and at 11 o'clock he will preach the regular morning sermon, taking the place of the pastor, Rev. W. C. Scott.

The theme of the service held Friday afternoon was "How the Bible Was Assembled" while at night Dean Smith talked on "The Purpose of the Bible."

Large numbers have been attending the services, coming from Bastrop, Columbia, Mer Rouge, Sterlington and other cities and towns.

BERNICE HIGH SCHOOL TO BEGIN TERM MONDAY

BERNICE, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Bernice High school will open its doors Monday morning for the beginning of the 1935-36 school term. All other schools of the parish will open on the same day, P. L. Reid of Farmerville, superintendent of Union parish schools, has announced.

A meeting of the members of the held Friday, with Principal M. A. faculty of the local high school was Price presiding.

CATTLE TO BE TESTED

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Monday the program of bovine tuberculosis eradication will begin in LaSalle parish, according to A. O. Sumrall, parish agricultural agent. Eight veterinarians will arrive on Sunday, September 15, and also a supervisor in charge of the program. Actual testing will begin on Monday, at 7 a.m., and last through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The cows will be returned to the chutes for readings on the remaining three days of the week. The testing is to be continued the following week. There are more than 90 chutes in the parish where the cows are to be tested.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

By Alley

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Fifth avenue, I suppose, is the richest street in the world. Yet there scarcely can be a thoroughfare that provides more contrasts.

On it are to be seen the most beautiful women, the swankiest stores, the highest heels, the longest cars, the most pampered dogs and the most celebrated people. True, some of the most exclusive clubs, and the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, have moved to Park avenue. But the mid-town glory of Fifth avenue is scarcely dimmed, especially since the coming of Rockefeller Center.

And yet, toward its southern terminus are to be found blocks of wholesale houses, factory buildings and dingy offices, cheap restaurants and cheaper stores. Not a few shyster enterprises are headquartered there because of the prestige involved in a Fifth avenue address.

Going Slumming

Again, if you follow it northward—past the grand bazaars and uppity little shops with uniformed doormen, past clubs and hotels and cathedrals, past the imposing town houses of the rich—you find Fifth avenue becomes an annex of the ghetto—an aristocrat flees to the slums. Police keep an eye out there for criminals in hiding. The fringes of a Spainish quarter touch it. There's a black belt, too.

The silk-and-sable blocks undergo a startling transition with the coming of night. Gems are taken from displays and put into vaults; in the windows of the great stores, shades are drawn against fashion pirates who would copy the designs. Genteel strollers turn toward their cozy little 12-room apartments or the a la carte restaurants of the East Fifties. Life begins at 8:40 in the rialto, and Fifth avenue is dim and somnolent.

Vice Versa

Then, from the still-darker side streets appear sleek sisters of the sidewalks. Scores of them. To confound the scowling policemen, who are foiled but not fooled, the women walk briskly on their improper promenade and are furtive in their solicitations. Some lead dogs and pretend to be respectable householders out for an airing. A policeman pointed out to me that many of them wear dark glasses; he didn't know why. Said, too, that although he could make plenty of arrests he doubted that any one of them would result in conviction . . . And so Fifth avenue becomes, for awhile, a boulevard of shame.

Midnight, and the scene changes again. Now arrive the ghouls of the gutters — horrid hags who shuffle along, mumbling, gibbering, muttering. They search along the curbstones of the richest street in the world, and occasionally one finds treasure—a broken necklace, a brooch reflecting the glow of street lamps, a coin.

I watched one crone. She wore tennis sneakers, many skirts, and a sort of apron made from what seemed to be an old lace curtain. She proceeded methodically, examining every vagrant object in her path, and even moved pieces of paper to be sure that nothing was concealed by them. Pretty soon she looked at me and spoke in a kindly, reproving way. She said: "You'd better get along now. Everybody will be waiting, and the dinner cold."

So I got along, pausing farther up the block to lay a half dollar on the curb while pretending to tie a shoelace. I suppose she bought gin with it, or maybe another lace curtain to wear as a tippet. But it's no affair of mine how a lady of Fifth avenue chooses to indulge her whims.

He never finishes anything he starts. He does not know the value of a dollar. He would rather dress up in those monkey clothes of his than be president of the United States. You never know when he is telling you the truth. And he is so opinionated that nobody can tell him anything.

The mother was a calm woman and she listened patiently. Also she was wiser than her husband—as is sometimes the case. She arose and took him by the hand. "Come with me," she said. She led the disgruntled man to the back yard and to a plum tree.

She pointed to a half-grown plum hanging there and said: "That fruit is of no earthly account now. It is not even good to look at." "Yes," replied her husband, "but it will be worth something before the summer is over."

"It will," replied his wife earnestly, "if it is properly tended, if the sun shines on it, and the rain falls on it. And if no storms arise that are too violent for it to endure."

"And so with that boy of ours," she continued, patting the hand she was holding. "He is green and undeveloped, just like that plum. The good qualities inherent in him have not as yet come out; but they will if he can be properly guided and counseled and treated with patience.

"You do not look for this plum to be fit for anything for at least two months. Do not expect the boy to be anything near what you want him to be for at least five years. Let's tend him as we would the plum; and he will ripen beautifully, as will the plum."

Her husband grinned, and she knew she had him.

It is natural, especially for fathers, to become impatient regarding the development of children.

People expect the boy or girl of eighteen to have as much judgment and stability as the man or woman of forty. The situation is made all the more aggravating by the individualism of the young person. If the young folk have enough initiative and personality to amount to anything later on, their initiative and personality are apt to poke out in all sorts of disturbing and pestering ways. Some of the nicest boys and girls have been the meanest babies; and some of the finest men and women have been the meanest boys and girls.

One thing that makes parents impatient is that they do not stop to think that green fruit, which as green fruit, is absolutely worthless, can develop into ripe fruit that is particularly worth while. When things look pretty disappointing and annoying, it would help a lot to remember that some fruits which are especially unpalatable when they are green, are especially delectable when they are ripe. The persimmon is one of these.

SOURCE OF USEFUL TAXATION

The American Institute of Architects has put forward a sound idea by suggesting that a system of state taxation on billboards be set up.

Such a scheme would have two advantages. First of all, it would provide a lucrative new source of revenue—and there isn't a state in the Union which would not welcome such a thing. Secondly, and more important, it would provide the state with some means of control over one of the great public nuisances of the day.

There is a place for billboards, of course; but that place is not the spot which most of them occupy. They spoil mile after mile of our country highways and render ugly the approaches to our cities and towns. It is utterly absurd to say that the state has no right to assume control over them. A taxation system which would make possible the abatement of this nuisance would be an excellent thing from the standpoint of public interest.

LEAVING A BAD TASTE

E. L. Doheny is dead, leaving behind him another picturesque chapter in the famous American story, "From Rags to Riches." This man, who set out from his Wisconsin home upwards of 60 years ago possessed of nothing except energy and ambition, made himself what can be done in America by one whose acquisitive instinct is properly developed.

Yet his story is not one which Americans will enjoy reading. He will be remembered because of the oil scandals. He will have his place in the history books, but it won't be the sort of place a sensitive man would care to fill.

There used to be a saying, "The king can do no wrong." A certain kind of American capitalist seems to feel that a rich man enjoys the same privilege. Doheny will go down in history as a representative of that kind of capitalist.

Far from being unsuccessful in their search for a presidential candidate, the Republicans can't even find anyone who doesn't choose to run.

Italy is placed on war-time basis. This means that Mussolini's saps will eat less from now on.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

ONE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

(On reading of a hermit, who when evicted from a cave in a stone quarry, moved into another and carried placidly on.)

Here is happiness, home and contentment,
No luxury this person craves,
He will harbor no shred of resentment
If he's only supplied with fresh caves.
"Get the spice out of life" is his motto.
"One needs but a fairly good bed,"
And he hunted himself a new grotto
With a middling soft rock for his head.
Now he lightens dull care, as the world rolls along
With the lilt of a light happy song.

You and I and our sisters and brothers
Are a prey to sore troubles and cares;
We envy the riches of others
And are chivvied by bulls and by bears.
But a hermit, afar from the city
With abundance to wear and to eat,
Is never a person to pity;
His life must be pretty dashed sweet.
While he has what he needs, he can bid life avaunt;
What more can he possibly want?

A cavern can never catch fire,
No tempest can blow it away;
One may dwell in it, if he desire,
Through many a lingering day.
So, if you should win in the market
And have a few thousands to save,
Take your money home with you and park it
In some deep hidden nook in a cave.
And then, till at last you are called to depart,
You can sing a glad lay in your heart.

ACCORDING TO CUSTOM

Congressmen will soon be starting to apologize to their constituents.

THERE'S ALWAYS AN ALIBI

Mr. Mussolini's course reminds one of the farmer, who, after killing his neighbor's sheep, said: "I wasn't goin' to have no sheep bite me."

Signing Up The Meek

BY BRUCE CATTON

If you could get 500,000,000 people to sign an agreement demanding the end of war, you ought to bring the world appreciably closer to an era of continued peace.

This, at any rate, seems to be the idea of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; and a world-wide campaign has been begun by that organization to get half a billion signatures to a resolution against war.

The demand of this group is simple and forthright. It reads:

"Stop immediately all increase of armaments and armed forces. Use existing machinery for peaceful settlement of present conflicts. Secure a world treaty for immediate reduction of arms as a step toward complete world disarmament. Secure international agreements founded on recognition of world interdependence to end the economic anarchy which breeds war."

Papers setting forth this demand will be circulated presently in every country on earth. The women backing it plan to mobilize world opinion on a scale never before seen. They hope to confront the rulers of every nation with such an overwhelming demand for peace that the warmakers will be stunned into silence.

Now it would be easy to grow very cynical about all this. Anti-war sentiment is usually very strong and outspoken—up to the moment that war begins; then it has a way of vanishing like dawn mists before the morning sun.

The plain people of Europe unquestionably wanted peace in 1914, but when the hour struck they marched off to war meekly enough. When the battle flags flutter on the wind, the voice of the Prince of Peace is ignored.

Yet there is just a chance that this might work out differently.

The plain people of the world—the 500,000,000 who will be asked to sign this treaty—do not find their voice very often. For the most part they take the world as it is handed to them, enduring poverty and denial without much complain, serving those who use them and dying dutifully when instructed to do so.

They are, in short, the meek—the terrible meek, someone has called them—and the thing to remember about them is that ultimately they will inherit the earth.

One of these days they will make up their mind, once and for all, that their inheritance has been torn and befouled by slaughter long enough. They will conclude that fighting for oil concessions, trade rights and the commendation of the war lords is a losing game, and they will stop playing it. When that day comes, those who live by the sword will have to find other employment.

And there's an outside chance that putting half a billion names on an anti-war petition might bring that day appreciably nearer.

SO THEY SAY

It costs $1.80 today to buy the same necessities you could have purchased three years ago for $1. This is the kind of economic fact everyone can understand. It's influence upon the vote is tremendous.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago.

* * *

Happiness can come from only one thing, peace of mind. And that comes from an equal opportunity to serve, to learn, and to acquire property.—Ex.-Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Most people nowadays are not intellectual; they are practical; they want to do and they want to make.—Dr. Thomas Wright, English school head.

Junior is one of the most brilliant utility men in the field today; he's far ahead of his time. You'll hear from the Insulls, young fellow—Samuel Insull, Sr., to reporter.

You should take your job seriously—never yourself. Too many out there (in Hollywood) forget that. The real ones don't pose.—Leo Carrillo, screen actor.

BARBS

TODAY'S BIBLE THOUGHT

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON.—AAA has come in for plenty of criticism for its past callousness toward consumers, all of which your correspondent has reported faithfully and zealously.

But it must be said for Secretary Wallace and Administrator Chester Davis that, even though at times they may have succumbed to pressure of combinations of food industry lobbyists, farm group lobbyists and politicians who figured the consumer could go hang, they have persisted in appointing able, honest, and aggressive men to represent consumer interests in AAA councils.

Anyone who has watched this government operate for a few years must be surprised that they haven't appointed complacent, easy-going jobholders who could be depended on not to annoy them.

The new consumers' council at AAA is Donald Montgomery, who succeeds Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, who succeeded Dr. Fred C. Howe.

Montgomery is just as active and conscientious as his predecessors and just as determined to see that consumers get the best possible break under a program which necessarily jacks up food prices.

He was a naval ensign in the World war, was a classmate of Calvin Hoover's at the University of Wisconsin, served with a Wisconsin commission which was a sort of state version of the federal trade commission, joined the FTC here and participated importantly in its investigation of chain stores, was switched to SEC, where he helped frame registration regulations, and eventually was recruited to AAA by Hoover as the latter's assistant.

He'll Uphold Consumer

Montgomery will follow Hoover's policy of constantly nudging AAA chiefs and reminding them of the consumer. If you happen to be one of those consumer persons, you can well afford to take a bow to the departing Hoover, who urged Montgomery as his successor and is now going back to his professional job at Duke university.

Hoover finally persuaded the administration that it should maintain a policy of refusing to cut down supplies of food below those normally available for domestic consumption.

Nobody paid much attention to his words, but Wallace recently enunciated the Hoover policy—a milestone for AAA—as follows:

"Two things we want to be sure of. One is that there will be the same quantity of food per capita available to the American people as during the decade of the '20's; that is, that we take care of the consumer. The second is that quantities available in excess of that, for which foreign purchasing power is no longer available, should not be produced."

And if AAA starts to forget the first part of that, Montgomery will be there to remind it.

Obvious Political Plum

Appointment of Democratic National Committeeman Vincent Miles to the social security board is an obvious political appointment and a Roosevelt favor to Senator Joe Robinson, who faces re-election, complicated by probable Huey Long troubles, next year.

You didn't hear about it, but the name of Miles popped up once before. Roosevelt suggested him to Secretary Ickes as a candidate for the new job of undersecretary of interior.

Ickes was urging his personal assistant, Harry Slattery—probably the best man in Washington for the job, but no great favorite with professional politicians, Ickes hollored in pain when Miles was suggested.

Then Roosevelt and the interior secretary "compromised" with the appointment of ex-Congressman Charles West of Ohio, White House liaison man in Capitol hill.

The point of this story is that Roosevelt never seriously considered Miles for the job, but was advancing him to Ickes for trading purposes. Ickes could hardly refuse to bow to the White House will twice!

Another War Visioned

Don't overlook the possibility that the spreading of the Italo-Ethiopian war may first involve Europe through a German attack on Russia, aided by Poland. International experts here aren't.

The common idea that Hitler is likely to leap into Austria when Italy's back is turned and her strength is in Abyssinia overlooks the fact that Italy's mobilization has, temporarily at least, strengthened rather than weakened her military position in Europe.

The assumption of suspicious observers who take this line of thought is that Japan would simultaneously attack the Soviet from the other end.

In any event, it's unlikely that Hitler will resist the temptation to move into Memel.

SELMA MILL PROPERTY IS DESTROYED IN FIRE

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Fire of undetermined origin recently destroyed the commissary, postoffice and general offices of the Grant Timber and Manufacturing company at Selma, according to information received here. Officials of the company placed the loss at $25,000. Practically all of the office equipment and many of the records were saved, but the postoffice and commissary and stock of merchandise was a total loss.

J. D. Pope, general manager of the company, has announced that the building which housed the store, postoffice and general offices will not be rebuilt. The store department will be reopened in another building.

TAX EXEMPTIONS GRANTED

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Assessor W. L. Parker announces that, according to the Louisiana Tax commission, a $1,000 tax exemption will be granted each property holder this year. He says that this will give 99 per cent of the homestead owners in this parish an exemption. The assessor recently figured the amount of taxes the parish would lose from homestead exemptions and with the exemption $1,000 he is of the opinion that this amount will be around $12,000.

ADULT BIBLE MEETING TO CONCLUDE TODAY

The adult Bible conference initiated on Thursday and at the First Methodist church will be concluded this morning by Dean R. E. Smith of Centenary college. He will talk at 9:45 o'clock at the church on "How to Study the Bible," and at 11 o'clock he will preach the regular morning sermon, taking the place of the pastor, Rev. W. C. Scott.

The theme of the service held Friday afternoon was "How the Bible Was Assembled" while at night Dean Smith talked on "The Purpose of the Bible."

Large numbers have been attending the services, coming from Bastrop, Columbia, Mer Rouge, Sterlington and other cities and towns.

BERNICE HIGH SCHOOL TO BEGIN TERM MONDAY

BERNICE, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Bernice High school will open its doors Monday morning for the beginning of the 1935-36 school term. All other schools of the parish will open on the same day, P. L. Reid of Farmerville, superintendent of Union parish schools, has announced.

A meeting of the members of the held Friday, with Principal M. A. faculty of the local high school was Price presiding.

CATTLE TO BE TESTED

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Monday the program of bovine tuberculosis eradication will begin in LaSalle parish, according to A. O. Sumrall, parish agricultural agent. Eight veterinarians will arrive on Sunday, September 15, and also a supervisor in charge of the program. Actual testing will begin on Monday, at 7 a.m., and last through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The cows will be returned to the chutes for readings on the remaining three days of the week. The testing is to be continued the following week. There are more than 90 chutes in the parish where the cows are to be tested.

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Fifth avenue, I suppose, is the richest street in the world. Yet there scarcely can be a thoroughfare that provides more contrasts.

On it are to be seen the most beautiful women, the swankiest stores, the highest heels, the longest cars, the most pampered dogs and the most celebrated people. True, some of the most exclusive clubs, and the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, have moved to Park avenue. But the mid-town glory of Fifth avenue is scarcely dimmed, especially since the coming of Rockefeller Center.

And yet, toward its southern terminus are to be found blocks of wholesale houses, factory buildings and dingy offices, cheap restaurants and cheaper stores. Not a few shyster enterprises are headquartered there because of the prestige involved in a Fifth avenue address.

Going Slumming

Again, if you follow it northward—past the grand bazaars and uppity little shops with uniformed doormen, past clubs and hotels and cathedrals, past the imposing town houses of the rich—you find Fifth avenue becomes an annex of the ghetto—an aristocrat flees to the slums. Police keep an eye out there for criminals in hiding. The fringes of a Spainish quarter touch it. There's a black belt, too.

The silk-and-sable blocks undergo a startling transition with the coming of night. Gems are taken from displays and put into vaults; in the windows of the great stores, shades are drawn against fashion pirates who would copy the designs. Genteel strollers turn toward their cozy little 12-room apartments or the a la carte restaurants of the East Fifties. Life begins at 8:40 in the rialto, and Fifth avenue is dim and somnolent.

Vice Versa

Then, from the still-darker side streets appear sleek sisters of the sidewalks. Scores of them. To confound the scowling policemen, who are foiled but not fooled, the women walk briskly on their improper promenade and are furtive in their solicitations. Some lead dogs and pretend to be respectable householders out for an airing. A policeman pointed out to me that many of them wear dark glasses; he didn't know why. Said, too, that although he could make plenty of arrests he doubted that any one of them would result in conviction . . . And so Fifth avenue becomes, for awhile, a boulevard of shame.

Midnight, and the scene changes again. Now arrive the ghouls of the gutters — horrid hags who shuffle along, mumbling, gibbering, muttering. They search along the curbstones of the richest street in the world, and occasionally one finds treasure—a broken necklace, a brooch reflecting the glow of street lamps, a coin.

I watched one crone. She wore tennis sneakers, many skirts, and a sort of apron made from what seemed to be an old lace curtain. She proceeded methodically, examining every vagrant object in her path, and even moved pieces of paper to be sure that nothing was concealed by them. Pretty soon she looked at me and spoke in a kindly, reproving way. She said: "You'd better get along now. Everybody will be waiting, and the dinner cold."

So I got along, pausing farther up the block to lay a half dollar on the curb while pretending to tie a shoelace. I suppose she bought gin with it, or maybe another lace curtain to wear as a tippet. But it's no affair of mine how a lady of Fifth avenue chooses to indulge her whims.

BOY MISSING HERE

Police yesterday were requested to be on the lookout for James Raymond Dean, 13-year-old boy who was reported by his mother to have been missing from his home, 215 Adams street, since September 6. The boy was described as being five feet and four inches in height, weighing 110 pounds and having dark brown eyes. He walks with a limp.

The Malayan flying snake does not fly; it flattens its body and glides from one tree to another.

ALEXANDRIA MEET PLANNED SEPT. 20

Educators Will Hold Important Session In Rapides Parish

Ashley Warlick, chairman of the publicity committee of the Louisiana Teachers' association, was in Monroe yesterday to urge attendance at a state-wide meet of educators at Alexandria on Sept. 21.

This meeting will be held to further the work of various committees, including the research committee that is studying all phases of teachers' welfare. This committee has been working for several years on a long-time program, he stated.

This includes studies of the political actions of members of the teaching profession, consideration of a health and physical education program, safety education, support for public education, consideration of proposed basic salary schedules for public school teachers and lastly the forming of plans for teacher tenure and protection.

The past several years, the research committee has conducted panel discussions. These have been held at Louisiana State university, Tulane university, Louisiana Tech, State Normal college, Southwestern and also at Northeast Center of Louisiana State university.

L. P. Terrebonne, president of the Louisiana Teachers' association, has strongly endorsed the program and also is anxious that there be a large attendance at the Alexandria meet, according to Mr. Warlick.

Holding of frequent panel forums embodying the ideas expressed are urged and educators are urged to appear before civic clubs and present aims and objects so that the public may understand the goals sought.

During the present week, plans contemplate addresses over the local broadcasting station by both Mr. Warlick and Dean C. C. Colvert, of Northeast Center of Louisiana university, dealing with matters that are vital to all teachers of the state.

MR. AND MRS. ERWIN OF LAKE PROVIDENCE BACK FROM REUNION

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Erwin of Lake Providence recently returned to their home here from Kentucky, where they attended a reunion of the Edwin family. They were accompanied by Mr. Erwin's aunt, Mrs. John J. Edwin, also of Lake Providence, and her daughter, Mrs. Minnie O'Kelly of Martin, Tenn.

The reunion was held at the South Pleasant Grove church, Kentucky, August 24.

Until February, 1932, the Erwins of Calloway county, Ky., knew nothing of their kinship with the Erwins in Louisiana. In that year it happened that J. B. Erwin ran across a very old letter of his cousin, W. J. Erwin, of Crossland, Ky. As he was tracing the genealogy of his great grandfather, Joseph Erwin I, who came from Ireland in 1787 and settled in Rowan County, N. C., he wrote to W. J. Erwin. As W. J. Erwin was dead, J. G. Erwin answered it. After several months of correspondence, J. B. Erwin and wife visited J. G. Erwin's home.

Joseph Erwin III, father of J. B. Erwin, was born in Calloway county near Hazel in 1836. He and his brother, Cowin Erwin, were early pioneers of Calloway. James P. Erwin, J. B. Erwin's grandfather, was a first class leader in the South Pleasant Grove church. In 1844 James P. Erwin and Cowin Erwin moved to Mayhue, Miss.

J. B. Erwin wishes that anyone related to the Erwins in any way would write him at Lake Providence, La., about their family so as to aid him in tracing the genealogy of Joseph Erwin I.

Relatives and friends, both known and unknown to each other, spent a pleasant day together. After the dinner was spread and eaten, devotional exercises and singing were held in the church.

Those present at the reunion were: Thomas W. Erwin, Sr., E. Erwin, L. A. Erwin, J. A. Erwin, D. K. Erwin, wife and children—Esther, Opal, Ille, Buren and Thenore.

Mr. and Mrs. Libern Paschalls and daughter Eulala, Mrs. Florence Erwin-Milstead; Mr. and Mrs. Owen and children, Edd and Fred; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Erwin and children, Cardelice, Mae Ellen and Henry; Mr. John Johnston Erwin; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erwin and children, J. B. and Charles Hugh; Verna Nell Erwin; Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Erwin and Daughters, Bunell and Elizabeth.

Mrs. Effie Erwin Hill; Mrs. Bert Milstead; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Alderson; Mr. E. W. Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Langston and daughter, Anna B.; Mr. J. F. Tompson; Mr. and Mrs. Will Cooper; Mr. R. A. Erwin; Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Guthrie and son, Charles E.; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Guthrie; Miss Harriet Erwin; Miss Pope Erwin; Mr. J. G. Erwin; Mrs. J. C. Langston; Miss Jeanie Dell Bryansburg; Miss Betty Ruth Erwin; Miss Betty Jo King; Miss Gertrude Vance; Mr. Udell Erwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell Boggess; Mrs. Rudge Stutz and baby; Miss Mary Frances Poole; Mr. Eddie Erwin; Mr. Stark Erwin; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Duke Erwin and children, Carlos, Euple, Rubye LaNell, Otis Hampton; Billie Frank Poole; Mr. and Mrs. Maon Erwin; Mr. and Mrs. Galan Myers and children, James, Edith, Joe Ray, Cletus Myers, Fred Hicks and Thomas Morris.

Mrs. Bud Taylor; Mrs. Anna Erwin Cunningham and children, Hester and Hubert; Mrs. Lauretta Cunningham and baby; Mr. and Mrs. Emit Erwin and children, Clara James Jewell, Leola, Artis Houston, and Mary Jo.

Mr. and Mrs. Gable Cooper; Mr. Mike Erwin; Mr. Arene Ellis; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Erwin, Jr.; Miss Julice Gunter; James Warren Erwin; Mrs. Duncan Ellis; Mr. and Mrs. Hubb Erwin and children, Mary Frank, Joe Tom, Rob Roy and Billy Mac.

'Torture For Torture' Is Ethiop Threat To Italy

Even Native Women May Fill Grim War Roles In African Conflict

By Milton Bronner
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 14.—"In my country much of our criminal law is based upon the Old Testament rule of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

"Therefore, if the Italians make war upon my people and perpetrate the atrocity of bombing our villages and killing our women and children with poison gas, our men will take measures to retaliate upon all Italian prisoners they capture.

"And it won't do for the world to call us barbaric."

This outline of the probable Ethiopian answer to Italian poison gas, if it comes to war this autumn, was given me by a man who stands close to the Ethiopian government and who speaks by the book.

Gas A New Horror

Expanded from what he further said to me, the Ethiopian viewpoint is about as follows:

The Ethiopian is a brave fighter, a natural warrior, who does not mind taking his chances of death or wounds in anything like an equal contest. Also he does not make war upon women and children. Shooting a foe or stabbing him gives him a clean quick death or a clean wound from which he may recover. It has been the practice in war for centuries.

But airplanes are a new thing. And bombing with poison gas bombs flung from an airplane is a new thing, an abominable thing against which often there is no chance of defense. It does not inflict a quick, clean death, but a long, lingering and ghastly death after horrible suffering.

The mass of Ethiopian soldiers do not even understand it. Most of them have never seen an airplane. They have no conception whatever of poison gas, of something that may be quite invisible and which, when breathed, will choke and burn the life out of a man's lungs and throat and eyes.

Retaliate With Torture

Such an attack may well inspire panic in the first attacks. But then the word will be passed along and the Ethiopians will do what they say the Riffs did in their war with Spain. The Spanish army started to bomb the Riffs in their mountain fastnesses. One day a Riff messenger approached the Spanish lines with a white flag. He had a message for the Spanish general. Its purport was that if the Spanish continued to use poison gas and give the Riffs a tortured death, the Riffs, in turn, would put to the torture an equal number of Spanish prisoners.

The Ethiopians say this message put an end to the use of poison gas in that war. They propose to put a similar stop to it in the war that is threatened.

It will be a case of torture for torture, no matter what the rank and station of the Italian victims.

In addition, it is a historic fact that Ethiopian women have had a savage role in past wars involving their country. They have been known to follow up their soldiers in victory, mutilating the bodies of wounded enemies.

Ask Consideration

The Ethiopians are quite prepared, if they take these measures, to hear themselves arraigned as savages. But they will ask the world to contemplate the savagery of poison gas and the further fact that they are a little, poorly armed people seeking to defend their homes against a powerful and heavily armed nation.

ANNOUNCE PLANS OF JACKSON FAIR

Program Is Formulated At Meeting Of Officials

JONESBORO, La., Sept. 14.—(Special).—At a meeting of officials of the Jackson Parish fair at the civilian conservation camp Thursday, with Mayor S. A. Williams presiding, plans for a greater fair were formulated. The first day of the fair will be "Civic day," and the following program has been planned for the occasion:

At 9:30 a.m., parade through the main street of Jonesboro to Hodge, led by the band of the Southern Advance Paper company.

The Lions club will hold its regular luncheon, at which time several invited guests will appear. In the afternoon, local candidates will be given an opportunity to make known their claims for public office.

A football game will be a feature of the afternoon, followed by a style show, launched by the business men of the two towns.

Friday will be designated as "Schoolday" for the parish. School exhibits will be judged, basketball games and field events will be staged.

In the afternoon, another football game will be played between Jonesboro High school and some other high school, to be selected.

An old fiddlers' contest and a square dance will be the main attraction of the program Friday evening.

Saturday will be CCC day, and contests between several CCC camps in this area will be the features of the day. A public wedding will be on the card. Prizes will be awarded on Saturday night at the close of the week's program.

A carnival also will add to the entertainment features of the fair program.

Exports of pineapples and grapefruit from Cuba this year are expected to be curtailed appreciably owing to the severe effect of drouth on the fruit crops.

STATE FAIR TO BE MUCH BIGGER

Great Exposition Is Planned At Shreveport October 19 To 27

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—"With the opening day of the Louisiana state fair, which will be held October 19 to 27 inclusive, only about thirty days off, indications point to one of the greatest expositions visitors will have an opportunity of witnessing." "This prediction, announced the management, "is due to the many inquiries being received daily relative to this year's fair."

All space in the agriculture building has been reserved and it is believed that this building will contain the finest group of displays ever assembled. Arrangements have been made with officials of the Louisiana State university to have on exhibition a large portion of the diamond jubilee exhibit of agricultural products that was displayed in connection with the university's diamond jubilee celebration last June. Those who did not have an opportunity to visit the university during the celebration should arrange to see these displays at the fair due to the educational value contained in them for those interested in this work.

In addition to the above there will be approximately 50 of the 64 parishes, comprising the state of Louisiana, represented with displays for improving agriculture, livestock and home making and planning.

The Smith-Hughes vocational agricultural schools have also reserved a large part of the building and will have about 40 schools represented.

The United States department of agriculture has reserved space for the demonstration of soil conservation. This should create much interest as it is gaining widespread approval from farmers everywhere.

ALLEN'S DAUGHTER MARRIES CHEMIST

Quiet Wedding Takes Place Saturday Night At Baton Rouge Mansion

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Quietly but impressively, Miss Joyce Love Allen, daughter of Governor and Mrs. Oscar K. Allen, was married tonight to Dr. Frederick J. Stare, youthful biological research chemist of Columbus, Wis.

At a ceremony, beautiful in subdued character, but devoid of gayety because of the death of Senator Huey P. Long, Miss Allen became the bride of Dr. Stare and planned immediate departure with him to England where he will continue work at Cambridge.

The service was performed in the east room of the executive mansion before a small group of guests, all close friends and relatives of the Stare and Allen families. The Rev. J. Norris Palmer, pastor of the First Baptist church of Baton Rouge, officiated.

The governor's daughter is a former student of Louisiana State university, and also attended the University of Wisconsin, where she met Dr. Stare, and Columbia university.

The groom, a doctor of philosophy in biological research chemistry, has taught at Washington university in St. Louis.

The couple will sail for England Sept. 18 from New York.

Miss Helen Brock, of Baton Rouge, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jane Conway, daughter of Secretary of State E. A. Conway; Miss Becky Wolf of Baton Rouge; Miss Dee Tannehill of Winnfield, La.; the Misses Rachel and Susan Stare of Columbus, Wis., sisters of the groom, and Miss Ruth Reid, daughter of former Congressman Frank R. Reid of Illinois.

Stewart Howe of Champaign, Ill., was best man. Groomsmen were O. K. Allen, Jr., brother of the bride; Frank Wright Grigsby, Winnfield, La.; Harvey Broyles, Shreveport, La., and Harwell Allen, Winnfield.

BIG ENROLLMENT LOOMS FOR TECH

All Dormitory Rooms Reserved For New Term Beginning Monday

RUSTON, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Room reservations in the men's and women's dormitories, a record-breaking number of scholarships granted to high school graduates, and other factors indicate that Louisiana Tech will have the largest enrollment in its history when the fall semester opens Monday, September 16. The previous student enrollment peak was reached one year ago, when 1,116 registered for the autumn session at Tech.

W. L. Mitchell, dean of men, announces that every room in the two men's halls has been engaged. Freshman and sophomore girls have taken all rooms allotted to their classes, and there are only about a half dozen rooms remaining available in the junior-senior section of the women's dormitory, according to Mrs. Mattie F. Bartlett, supervisor of the hall.

Crowded dormitory conditions, making it necessary for many girls to find lodging in Ruston homes, have resulted in the employing of an assistant dean of women, Miss Helen Johnson. Because of the overflow of women students, Miss Martha Vaught has been added to the faculty as an instructor in physical education for girls.

To date, approximately 140 scholarships have been granted by Louisiana Tech to graduates of state-approved high schools, as compared with 98 issued for the fall term here a year ago. These scholarship winners are selected from the upper one-fourth of the graduating classes of both private and public high schools. The awards grant exemption from the payment of registration and laboratory fees.

Monday's activities at Tech will be devoted largely to programs arranged to acquaint the new students with college life. Entertainments, theater parties and other social events are scheduled for the opening week. The freshmen will register on Tuesday. Advanced students will enroll on Wednesday.

$52 THEFT REPORTED

Elijah Anderson, negro farmer of the Cole plantation at Guthrie, told police that an unidentified negro stole from his pocket here yesterday a handkerchief in which $52 was wrapped. Anderson said that immediately after he cashed a check for $52 at a local bank and stepped outside on the street, the unidentified negro approached him and asked the direction of Layton avenue. After walking three blocks southward in the direction of Layton avenue with the "stranger," Anderson said he parted company with him and soon afterward discovered his money had been stolen.

ALEXANDRIA MEET PLANNED SEPT. 20

Educators Will Hold Important Session In Rapides Parish

Ashley Warlick, chairman of the publicity committee of the Louisiana Teachers' association, was in Monroe yesterday to urge attendance at a state-wide meet of educators at Alexandria on Sept. 21.

This meeting will be held to further the work of various committees, including the research committee that is studying all phases of teachers' welfare. This committee has been working for several years on a long-time program, he stated.

This includes studies of the political actions of members of the teaching profession, consideration of a health and physical education program, safety education, support for public education, consideration of proposed basic salary schedules for public school teachers and lastly the forming of plans for teacher tenure and protection.

The past several years, the research committee has conducted panel discussions. These have been held at Louisiana State university, Tulane university, Louisiana Tech, State Normal college, Southwestern and also at Northeast Center of Louisiana State university.

L. P. Terrebonne, president of the Louisiana Teachers' association, has strongly endorsed the program and also is anxious that there be a large attendance at the Alexandria meet, according to Mr. Warlick.

Holding of frequent panel forums embodying the ideas expressed are urged and educators are urged to appear before civic clubs and present aims and objects so that the public may understand the goals sought.

During the present week, plans contemplate addresses over the local broadcasting station by both Mr. Warlick and Dean C. C. Colvert, of Northeast Center of Louisiana university, dealing with matters that are vital to all teachers of the state.

MR. AND MRS. ERWIN OF LAKE PROVIDENCE BACK FROM REUNION

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Erwin of Lake Providence recently returned to their home here from Kentucky, where they attended a reunion of the Edwin family. They were accompanied by Mr. Erwin's aunt, Mrs. John J. Edwin, also of Lake Providence, and her daughter, Mrs. Minnie O'Kelly of Martin, Tenn.

The reunion was held at the South Pleasant Grove church, Kentucky, August 24.

$52 THEFT REPORTED

Elijah Anderson, negro farmer of the Cole plantation at Guthrie, told police that an unidentified negro stole from his pocket here yesterday a handkerchief in which $52 was wrapped. Anderson said that immediately after he cashed a check for $52 at a local bank and stepped outside on the street, the unidentified negro approached him and asked the direction of Layton avenue. After walking three blocks southward in the direction of Layton avenue with the "stranger," Anderson said he parted company with him and soon afterward discovered his money had been stolen.

of Nations in case her membership interferes with her objective.

The cabinet communique, issued after a session with Premier Mussolini, who holds eight portfolios, presiding, announced:

1. Intensification of east African military preparations.
2. Reinforcement of Italian defenses in Libya.
3. The adequacy of Italy's military forces "to respond to any menace whatsoever."
4. "Furnishing of war materials proceeds with intensified but regular rhythm."
5. Speeches at Geneva of Sir Samuel Hoare and Premier Pierre Laval were received "with the greatest calm."
6. Italy intends to fortify her friendship with France and her European collaboration.
7. The possibility of Italy leaving the League was examined.
8. The east African controversy admits no compromise.
9. The conflict has been made the rallying point of "anti-Fascist forces."

The announcement that Mussolini had informed the cabinet Italy is prepared to meet "any menace from whatsoever direction it may come" was regarded by political circles as a definite challenge of Great Britain and the League of Nations.

Particular significance was attached by informed quarters to the disclosure that Italy is strengthening her military forces in Libya. In view of the proximity to Egypt of this colony, administered by Gen. Italo Balbo, these preparations were regarded as a particularly pointed reply to the dispatch of British war vessels to the Mediterranean and the reinforcement of the Malta garrison.

An important decision was taken by the permanent wheat committee, under Mussolini's presidency. It decided the price of wheat must not go any higher.

The minister of agriculture was ordered to dump 1,000,000 quintals of wheat on the market at prices lower than current ones. Another million quintals is due from abroad (reliable sources indicated it was coming from Hungary).

LEAGUE IS STUNNED BY ITALIAN DECISION

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Word of Italy's rejection of any "compromise solution" in the Ethiopian dispute burst like a hand grenade today in the assembly of the league of nations.

The news came as an impressive procession of great and small powers, including Soviet Russia and the Dominion of Canada, proclaimed from the platform their fidelity to the league covenant.

Shortly afterward the Ethiopian delegation submitted a detailed answer to the charges contained in the Italian memorandum laid before the council last week by Baron Pompeo Aloisi.

The answer asserted that if conditions in Ethiopia were really even "one-tenth as bad" as the Italian complaint asserted, foreign legations in Addis Ababa long ago would have made a joint protest to the civilized world.

(In his speech before the league council, Baron Aloisi charged that "barbarous" conditions existed in Ethiopia and asserted that the Italian government had demonstrated Ethiopia's failure to carry out obligations assumed through special conventions with Italy.)

A section of the Italian communique stressing Italy's military preparedness against menace "from any direction whatsoever" was interpreted by some delegates as a direct challenge to Great Britain.

They said it tended to create misunderstanding likely to complicate the league's dilemma over the Italo-Ethiopian affair.

A long list of speakers appeared regardless of the communique. But after the day's oratory was over the text of the Italian communique—posted on the league's bulletin board—remained the chief center of interest.

In all corners of the assembly building it was eagerly discussed as creating an entirely new situation.

U. S. AGAIN EXPRESSES REGRETS TO GERMANY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The United States officially expressed its regrets to the German government today for the second time in two months as a result of the liner Bremen incident.

Secretary Hull also sharply criticized Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky of New York City for "offensive expressions" toward Germany which were "not a relevant or legitimate part of his judicial decision."

Summoning Dr. Rudolf Leitner, charge d'affaires of the German embassy, to the state department, Hull read a statement emphasizing that Brodsky's remarks were purely personal and in no way reflected the attitude of the United States government.

ed Ratcliff, all described as "bodyguards or state police."

Also asked to appear was John B. Fournet, justice of the Louisiana supreme court, the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, national organizer of Long's "Share-Our-Wealth" clubs, and C. A. Riddle, Avoyelles parish representative.

Subpoenas, Odom said, were being prepared for Mrs. L. A. Leggio, Independence, La., Floyd Straughan, Tom Cochron and Earl Straughan of Denham Springs, La., Gordon Lathan, Ed Sharp, Cooper Jean and H. Payne Breazealle, the latter city attorney of Baton Rouge.

The capital eagerly awaited resumption of the inquest. Observers here saw in the district attorney's determination to dig up all the facts a possibility that new light may be thrown on the assassination and slaying.

District Attorney Odom is an avowed anti-Long man. So is Sheriff Robert Pettit, charged with summoning the witnesses. Coroner Tom H. Bird, who will preside at the inquiry, is not definitely aligned with either faction.

Hundreds of persons visited the senator's grave today. Many stood for long spells silently looking at the simple slab that marks their leader's last resting place at the foot of the beautiful 33-story capitol which he erected.

STATE THROWN INTO POLITICAL WHIRL

By Ralph Wheatley

(Chief New Orleans Associated Press Bureau)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The state of Louisiana was in a whirl of politics this week-end with politicians of every rank holding their ears to the ground to determine the public reaction.

They are in a fever over the approaching January elections, where a senator, all congressmen, a governor and state officials will be nominated in the Democratic primary election, the equivalent to election in Louisiana as the Republican party has a light following here.

Leaders of all factions were working on slates of candidates but they have produced squabbles among the conflicting groups.

Huey Long's sudden slaying threw his organization into a whirligig. He ran his machine with one man control and took to his grave the secret of his plans for the election.

As a result a schism is threatened between the conservative and liberal wings of the organization, which Governor O. K. Allen is seeking to hold together. The selection of a candidate for governor has caused the conservatives to square away with the liberals.

The conservative wing is being led by Wade O. Martin, public service commissioner, and Allen Ellender, speaker of the house. The liberals are following Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe and Judge John B. Fournet, of the state supreme court. The two wings are battling for Ellender and Noe for governor.

For the United States senate as Long's successor Martin has been mentioned and probably could have it if he wanted it. He is not sure that he wants it. Several others of the lesser leaders would take it. But in an effort at compromise and time, one group attempted to persuade Mrs. Huey Long to serve the unexpired term of her husband of more than a year. She has expressed a distaste for the appointment, saying she preferred to stay at home with her children. They are still trying to persuade her but it is not likely she will accept.

One wing wants Earl Long, Huey's youngest brother, to run as lieutenant governor to keep the Long name on the ticket while others oppose his selection on the grounds the Huey Long issue should be dropped, some of the dictatorial laws repealed and the organization should turn away from any form of dictatorship.

Others wish to hold the Long tradition with modifications and to campaign with Huey Long as a major issue.

There is a possibility that the present state officials will be put up for re-election with the exception of state treasurer, who cannot succeed himself just as the governor cannot. A. P. White, Governor Allen's secretary, has been mentioned for treasurer.

The anti-Long group is being bothered by the old trouble of the country against the city. Congressman Cleveland Dear virtually has been selected as the anti-Long machine candidate for governor although Congressman J. Y. Sanders, Jr., has a following. For the other positions there has been no definite selections.

The picking of a candidate for the United States senate is a particularly tough bone. Both Congressman John N. Sandlin and Eugene Stanley, former district attorney of Orleans parish, want the selection. Sandlin has the support of the country leaders and Stanley those of the city of New Orleans. There is a possibility that both might run.

Another factor in the anti-Long camp is Francis Williams and his Jackson Democratic association. He has demanded recognition in the new set-up and it is probable he will get some place on the final ticket.

Meanwhile Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley whom Long tried unsuccessfully to oust from the city administration of New Orleans, left today for Washington by airplane.

The major said before departing that he was going to the capital city to "see about some relief work," but he gave no explanation as to whether it would have to do with projects for New Orleans which had been held up because of the anti-Roosevelt laws Long had passed in the legislature.

In another development of the day Representative Dear, one of the five Louisiana representatives in congress who declared they would place a full state ticket in the field for the January election against the ticket of Long, declared that there could be no compromise by the anti-Long forces "in the struggle to restore to our people their liberties and the form of government guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States."

Asked at his home in Alexandria about a reported alliance sought between the Longs and the anti-Longs, Mr. Dear replied:

"All I know about any compromise is what is reported in the newspapers. So far as I am concerned there can be no compromise in the struggle to restore to our people their liberties and the form of government guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States. I shall have more to say in a day or two."

The other congressmen who took a militant stand against the Long political machine were Sandlin, Sanders, Riley J. Wilson and Numa F. Montet.

WALMSLEY TO TALK WPA ALLOTMENTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, one of the leading opponents of the late Senator Huey Long, arrived in Washington late today by airplane for the announced purpose of ascertaining the status of works progress allotments for his city.

In an interview he denied reports (not carried by the Associated Press) that his visit was prompted by a desire to confer with administration leaders concerning the approaching political campaign in Louisiana.

He predicted victory for the anti-Long forces in the forthcoming state primaries, asserting.

"We think we were going to win the elections in January whether Huey had lived or not."

He added a belief, in answer to questions that the various anti-Long groups in Louisiana would be able to agree and present a united front in the campaign, and said a complete anti-Long slate would be entered.

Mayor Walmsley questioned the right of Governor Allen to appoint a successor to fill Long's unexpired term on the ground that the vacancy is for more than a year. Long's term would have expired in 1937.

He expects to ascertain the views of federal officials on a new law enacted by the Louisiana legislature which he said he feared would interfere with federal work relief expenditures in the state. It would class as a felony the expenditure by a federal officer of any funds not provided for by the power conferred on the federal government in article 10 of the constitution.

Asserting that the law was passed by the legislature the day after Long died from an assassin't bullet, Walmsley said he made an unsuccessful effort to have it vetoed but that Governor Allen signed it.

"While I do not think it is good law," he said, "I do not know what view federal officials will take."

If the federal government should conclude it is a good law, he added, it might have the effect of stopping the new works progress program in Louisiana and probably also would affect other expenditures there such as those by AAA. He said New Orleans has applications under considerations for about $60,000,000 of works progress administration allotments.

Both Harry L. Hopkins, the works progress administrator, and Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, were reported away from the city for the week-end and could not be reached for comment.

18 PERSONS ARE HURT IN CRASH

Bus And Wagon Collide On Road Near Meridian Saturday Night

MERIDIAN, Miss., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Eighteen persons were injured in a bus-wagon collision tonight on Russell road five miles from Meridian when a Teche Greyhound bus from Birmingham to Meridian collided with a mule wagon.

Otis Page, Meridian, driver of the bus, and George Patton, negro driver of the wagon, were most seriously injured.

Page, hurled through the windshield, suffered head injuries, a broken nose, leg and other injuries. The negro received head injuries.

The injured were brought to hospitals here. The bus carried 40 passengers.

Passengers stated the mule became frightened and reared up directly in front of the bus which struck the wagon, veered to the left and went into a ditch.

The injured:

James King, 19, Forest, Miss.; Carrie Chandler, 17, Cullman, Ala.; C. H. Esser, 31, Casselton, N. D.; Lee Coker, 28, Jackson, Miss.; Robert Cokrell, Birmingham; Dr. R. A. Askew, Atlanta, Ga.; Charlie Little, Morris, Ala.; Miss Myra Pierce, Nashville, Tenn.; Meyer Katz, Lacrosse, Wis.; William Morrison, Newell, Ala.; C. H. Ferguson, Northport, Ala.; Otis Page, Meridian; Miss Bertha Griggs, Houston, Texas; Mrs. J. T. Whitaker, Meridian; Mrs. G. H. Harper, Meridian. Injuries of the others consist largely of cuts, bruises and wounds on various parts of the body, face and head.

tion of Liyra at least twice as large as astronomers thought. Liyra, seen through a telescope, looks something like a "smoke-ring."

Including new extensions that Dr. Duncan has discovered, Liyra, one of millions of "universes" included in cosmic space, is probably about two trillion (2,000,000,000,000) miles wide.

ANDREW W. MELLON will be glad to learn that a telescope provides better photographic reproductions of distant universes when the telecope's reflecting mirror is coated with aluminum, instead of silver.

SIR JAMES JEANS, British astronomer and physicist, whose "The Mysterious Universe," and other books you should read, has changed his mind about the age of the universe, and like Professor Einstein, when he changes his mind, he tells you.

He thinks the universe is about 10,000,000,000,000 or ten trillions of years old. That is a long time to Sir James Jeans and us, but for all Jeans or anybody else knows, it may mean less than one hour in the life of some "super-universe."

You could not expect accuracy from a microbe seeking to establish the size and age of Pike's Peak. Man is that kind of a microbe when he tries to establish the age and size of this universe, and it doesn't matter whether the microbe's name is Jeans, Einstein or Newton.

A SAILOR from an American ship is locked up in Germany for humming "The Internationale," communist hymn, and making the hymn worse by saying something unpleasant about Hitler.

Another American in Calcutta for possessing a revolver with cartridges is sentenced to "three months rigorous imprisonment." Germany pays attention to words. England's wise government in India pays more attention to revolvers and cartridges, extremely dangerous in a country where only 100,000 Britishers are in charge of 300,000,000 Asiatics.

WASHINGTON, D. C., predicts a permanent government dole with "unemployable" men and others of the moron class, spending their lives at public cost to the tune of about five hundred million dollars a year.

The best way to take care of the unemployable, since the country will not resort to "sterilization," wholesale, would be to give really generous pensions to the old. If the old men and women had enough to live decently, and eat regularly, many of the "riff-raff" would go home to live with the old folks, and many old people would take particular delight in helping the needy.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE, British foreign secretary, talking on the radio, tells Italy and the rest of the world that Britain stands for the pledges and the principle of "live and let live." It was a good speech. If you doubt its sincerity ask survivors of the Boers that once owned the Transvaal, its gold and diamond mines.

Home Buying And Building

While the prospective home owner who builds his house is made aware of the importance of permanent values, the home owner who is looking for a house to purchase is often unaware of these factors.

The modern bathroom or the gleaming, fully equipped kitchen may appeal to the prospective buyer and his wife, but equipment finishes, decorative features, and even extra rooms may be added if the permanent elements of the house and its surroundings are of the best quality and desirability.

For example, a fully equipped house with poor concrete foundation walls will more often than not be a risky purchase. On the other hand, a solidly built house, well planned and designed, may lack certain fixtures and decorative finishes, but these can be added and the structure itself will have a permanent value.

Light and ventilation are two important values. If a house is crowded onto the lot and not located to permit proper light or ventilation, no amount of bright bathroom fixtures or attractive fireplaces can offset this lack of two essential elements for proper living.

At the same time, the surroundings of the house are as important considerations as the house and its site. Even a completely equipped and structurally sound residence, if located in an undesirable neighborhood, will never be a good risk from the standpoint of financial value as well as enjoyment.

When you are looking for a house to purchase, make a check list of all the essential as well as desirable features which your house must have. It will be far easier to ask the real estate agent questions which will aid both him and you in finding a house to fulfill your requirements.

Had No Attacks Of Indigestion Since She Began Gly-Cas

Her Housework Is a Pleasure Feeling As She Does Today; Freed of Rheumatic Suffering Too, Former Pep and Energy Restored, Like New Again.

"I had been almost helpless with rheumatism before I began Gly-Cas," said Mrs. T. W. Glenn, 108 Adams street, Monroe, highly respected local lady who has lived in this parish for the past nineteen years, recently in talking with the Gly-Cas Man who is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city:

MRS. T. W. GLENN

"For 20 years my joints had been so affected I could hardly endure the awful pain," continued Mrs. Glenn, "At times the rheumatism was so severe I would be confined to my bed and I could hardly move even to turn in different positions. Sleep of course was next to impossible and much of the time I had to be assisted to get out of a chair. I do not recall the number of years I had been troubled with constipation. But I had terrible stomach trouble so badly that everything I ate seemed to give me indigestion, souring of food, spitting up and heartburn. I was always taking first one kind of a medicine then another—doing my best to find relief—hoping to find something to help me—but they all semed to lose their power when tried on my case—until I began Gly-Cas—it is the very medicine I should have had years before."

"Gly-Cas went to the very source of my health troubles and today I am feeling like an entirely different person," continued Mrs. Glenn, "Constipation was remedied almost at once and I have not had a single attack of indigestion since I began this new remedy. I can now eat and enjoy the more substantial foods without the least distress afterwards. I am now feeling the best I have in many, many years and that dreadful rheumatic condition is hardly noticeable. I am now doing all my own housework and it is a real pleasure feeling as I do today. I get perfect sleep and rest and feel full of pep and energy upon awakening. Gly-Cas is one medicine that removes the poisons from the system in a most natural way—giving real results where all else had failed."

So it goes—another case right here in Monroe where Gly-Cas accomplished the seemingly impossible.

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new medical discovery.

MOREHOUSE SCHOOLS WILL OPEN MONDAY

BASTROP, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—All plans have been completed and everything is in readiness for the opening of all Morehouse parish schools Monday morning for the 1935-36 term, it was announced Saturday by E. D. Shaw, superintendent of schools. Repair work on many school buildings in the parish which has been under way during the summer months have been completed.

The largest enrollment in the history of Morehouse parish schools is expected this year, Mr. Shaw stated. Advance registrations at the Bastrop high school indicate a record enrollment this year.

All Morehouse school teachers appointed by the school board have been approved by the state budget board and no changes have been made in the original selections made by the school board.

The Morehouse parish training school, negro school, and other negro schools in the parish, will not open until Monday, Sept. 30, Mr. Shaw announced.

Also asked to appear was John B. Fournet, justice of the Louisiana supreme court, the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, national organizer of Long's "Share-Our-Wealth" clubs, and C. A. Riddle, Avoyelles parish representative.

Subpoenas, Odom said, were being prepared for Mrs. L. A. Leggio, Independence, La., Floyd Straughan, Tom Cochron and Earl Straughan of Denham Springs, La., Gordon Lathan, Ed Sharp, Cooper Jean and H. Payne Breazealle, the latter city attorney of Baton Rouge.

The capital eagerly awaited resumption of the inquest. Observers here saw in the district attorney's determination to dig up all the facts a possibility that new light may be thrown on the assassination and slaying.

District Attorney Odom is an avowed anti-Long man. So is Sheriff Robert Pettit, charged with summoning the witnesses, Coroner Tom H. Bird, who will preside at the inquiry, is not definitely aligned with either faction.

Hundreds of persons visited the senator's grave today. Many stood for long spells silently looking at the simple slab that marks their leader's last resting place at the foot of the beautiful 33-story capitol which he erected.

STATE THROWN INTO POLITICAL WHIRL

By Ralph Wheatley

(Chief New Orleans Associated Press Bureau)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The state of Louisiana was in a whirl of politics this week-end with politicians of every rank holding their ears to the ground to determine the public reaction.

They are in a fever over the approaching January elections, where a senator, all congressmen, a governor and state officials will be nominated in the Democratic primary election, the equivalent to election in Louisiana as the Republican party has a light following here.

Leaders of all factions were working on slates of candidates but they have produced squabbles among the conflicting groups.

Huey Long's sudden slaying threw his organization into a whirligig. He ran his machine with one man control and took to his grave the secret of his plans for the election.

As a result a schism is threatened between the conservative and liberal wings of the organization, which Governor O. K. Allen is seeking to hold together. The selection of a candidate for governor has caused the conservatives to square away with the liberals.

The conservative wing is being led by Wade O. Martin, public service commissioner, and Allen Ellender, speaker of the house. The liberals are following Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe and Judge John B. Fournet, of the state supreme court. The two wings are battling for Ellender and Noe for governor.

For the United States senate as Long's successor Martin has been mentioned and probably could have it if he wanted it. He is not sure that he wants it. Several others of the lesser leaders would take it. But in an effort at compromise and time, one group attempted to persuade Mrs. Huey Long to serve the unexpired term of her husband of more than a year. She has expressed a distaste for the appointment, saying she preferred to stay at home with her children. They are still trying to persuade her but it is not likely she will accept.

One wing wants Earl Long, Huey's youngest brother, to run as lieutenant governor to keep the Long name on the ticket while others oppose his selection on the grounds the Huey Long issue should be dropped, some of the dictatorial laws repealed and the organization should turn away from any form of dictatorship.

Others wish to hold the Long tradition with modifications and to campaign with Huey Long as a major issue.

There is a possibility that the present state officials will be put up for re-election with the exception of state treasurer, who cannot succeed himself just as the governor cannot. A. P. White, Governor Allen's secretary, has been mentioned for treasurer.

The anti-Long group is being bothered by the old trouble of the country against the city. Congressman Cleveland Dear virtually has been selected as the anti-Long machine candidate for governor although Congressman J. Y. Sanders, Jr., has a following. For the other positions there has been no definite selections.

The picking of a candidate for the United States senate is a particularly tough bone. Both Congressman John N. Sandlin and Eugene Stanley, former district attorney of Orleans parish, want the selection. Sandlin has the support of the country leaders and Stanley those of the city of New Orleans. There is a possibility that both might run.

Another factor in the anti-Long camp is Francis Williams and his Jackson Democratic association. He has demanded recognition in the new set-up and it is probable he will get some place on the final ticket.

Meanwhile Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley whom Long tried unsuccessfully to oust from the city administration of New Orleans, left today for Washington by airplane.

The major said before departing that he was going to the capital city to "see about some relief work," but he gave no explanation as to whether it would have to do with projects for New Orleans which had been held up because of the anti-Roosevelt laws Long had passed in the legislature.

In another development of the day Representative Dear, one of the five Louisiana representatives in congress who declared they would place a full state ticket in the field for the January election against the ticket of Long, declared that there could be no compromise by the anti-Long forces "in the struggle to restore to our people their liberties and the form of government guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States."

Asked at his home in Alexandria about a reported alliance sought between the Longs and the anti-Longs, Mr. Dear replied:

"All I know about any compromise is what is reported in the newspapers. So far as I am concerned there can be no compromise in the struggle to restore to our people their liberties and the form of government guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States. I shall have more to say in a day or two."

The other congressmen who took a militant stand against the Long political machine were Sandlin, Sanders, Riley J. Wilson and Numa F. Montet.

WALMSLEY TO TALK WPA ALLOTMENTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, one of the leading opponents of the late Senator Huey Long, arrived in Washington late today by airplane for the announced purpose of ascertaining the status of works progress allotments for his city.

In an interview he denied reports (not carried by the Associated Press) that his visit was prompted by a desire to confer with administration leaders concerning the approaching political campaign in Louisiana.

He predicted victory for the anti-Long forces in the forthcoming state primaries, asserting.

"We think we were going to win the elections in January whether Huey had lived or not."

He added a belief, in answer to questions that the various anti-Long groups in Louisiana would be able to agree and present a united front in the campaign, and said a complete anti-Long slate would be entered.

Mayor Walmsley questioned the right of Governor Allen to appoint a successor to fill Long's unexpired term on the ground that the vacancy is for more than a year. Long's term would have expired in 1937.

He expects to ascertain the views of federal officials on a new law enacted by the Louisiana legislature which he said he feared would interfere with federal work relief expenditures in the state. It would class as a felony the expenditure by a federal officer of any funds not provided for by the power conferred on the federal government in article 10 of the constitution.

Asserting that the law was passed by the legislature the day after Long died from an assassin't bullet, Walmsley said he made an unsuccessful effort to have it vetoed but that Governor Allen signed it.

"While I do not think it is good law," he said, "I do not know what view federal officials will take."

If the federal government should conclude it is a good law, he added, it might have the effect of stopping the new works progress program in Louisiana and probably also would affect other expenditures there such as those by AAA. He said New Orleans has applications under considerations for about $60,000,000 of works progress administration allotments.

Both Harry L. Hopkins, the works progress administrator, and Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, were reported away from the city for the week-end and could not be reached for comment.

18 PERSONS ARE HURT IN CRASH

Bus And Wagon Collide On Road Near Meridian Saturday Night

MERIDIAN, Miss., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Eighteen persons were injured in a bus-wagon collision tonight on Russell road five miles from Meridian when a Teche Greyhound bus from Birmingham to Meridian collided with a mule wagon.

Otis Page, Meridian, driver of the bus, and George Patton, negro driver of the wagon, were most seriously injured.

Page, hurled through the windshield, suffered head injuries, a broken nose, leg and other injuries. The negro received head injuries.

The injured were brought to hospitals here. The bus carried 40 passengers.

Passengers stated the mule became frightened and reared up directly in front of the bus which struck the wagon, veered to the left and went into a ditch.

The injured:

James King, 19, Forest, Miss.; Carrie Chandler, 17, Cullman, Ala.; C. H. Esser, 31, Casselton, N. D.; Lee Coker, 28, Jackson, Miss.; Robert Cokrell, Birmingham; Dr. R. A. Askew, Atlanta, Ga.; Charlie Little, Morris, Ala.; Miss Myra Pierce, Nashville, Tenn.; Meyer Katz, Lacrosse, Wis.; William Morrison, Newell, Ala.; C. H. Ferguson, Northport, Ala.; Otis Page, Meridian; Miss Bertha Griggs, Houston, Texas; Mrs. J. T. Whitaker, Meridian; Mrs. G. H. Harper, Meridian. Injuries of the others consist largely of cuts, bruises and wounds on various parts of the body, face and head.

tion of Liyra at least twice as large as astronomers thought. Liyra, seen through a telescope, looks something like a "smoke-ring."

Including new extensions that Dr. Duncan has discovered, Liyra, one of millions of "universes" included in cosmic space, is probably about two trillion (2,000,000,000,000) miles wide.

ANDREW W. MELLON will be glad to learn that a telescope provides better photographic reproductions of distant universes when the telecope's reflecting mirror is coated with aluminum, instead of silver.

SIR JAMES JEANS, British astronomer and physicist, whose "The Mysterious Universe," and other books you should read, has changed his mind about the age of the universe, and like Professor Einstein, when he changes his mind, he tells you.

He thinks the universe is about 10,000,000,000,000 or ten trillions of years old. That is a long time to Sir James Jeans and us, but for all Jeans or anybody else knows, it may mean less than one hour in the life of some "super-universe."

You could not expect accuracy from a microbe seeking to establish the size and age of Pike's Peak. Man is that kind of a microbe when he tries to establish the age and size of this universe, and it doesn't matter whether the microbe's name is Jeans, Einstein or Newton.

A SAILOR from an American ship is locked up in Germany for humming "The Internationale," communist hymn, and making the hymn worse by saying something unpleasant about Hitler.

Another American in Calcutta for possessing a revolver with cartridges is sentenced to "three months rigorous imprisonment." Germany pays attention to words. England's wise government in India pays more attention to revolvers and cartridges, extremely dangerous in a country where only 100,000 Britishers are in charge of 300,000,000 Asiatics.

WASHINGTON, D. C., predicts a permanent government dole with "unemployable" men and others of the moron class, spending their lives at public cost to the tune of about five hundred million dollars a year.

The best way to take care of the unemployable, since the country will not resort to "sterilization," wholesale, would be to give really generous pensions to the old. If the old men and women had enough to live decently, and eat regularly, many of the "riff-raff" would go home to live with the old folks, and many old people would take particular delight in helping the needy.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE, British foreign secretary, talking on the radio, tells Italy and the rest of the world that Britain stands for the pledges and the principle of "live and let live." It was a good speech. If you doubt its sincerity ask survivors of the Boers that once owned the Transvaal, its gold and diamond mines.

Home Buying And Building

While the prospective home owner who builds his house is made aware of the importance of permanent values, the home owner who is looking for a house to purchase is often unaware of these factors.

The modern bathroom or the gleaming, fully equipped kitchen may appeal to the prospective buyer and his wife, but equipment finishes, decorative features, and even extra rooms may be added if the permanent elements of the house and its surroundings are of the best quality and desirability.

For example, a fully equipped house with poor concrete foundation walls will more often than not be a risky purchase. On the other hand, a solidly built house, well planned and designed, may lack certain fixtures and decorative finishes, but these can be added and the structure itself will have a permanent value.

Light and ventilation are two important values. If a house is crowded onto the lot and not located to permit proper light or ventilation, no amount of bright bathroom fixtures or attractive fireplaces can offset this lack of two essential elements for proper living.

At the same time, the surroundings of the house are as important considerations as the house and its site. Even a completely equipped and structurally sound residence, if located in an undesirable neighborhood, will never be a good risk from the standpoint of financial value as well as enjoyment.

When you are looking for a house to purchase, make a check list of all the essential as well as desirable features which your house must have. It will be far easier to ask the real estate agent questions which will aid both him and you in finding a house to fulfill your requirements.

NEW LORECO SERVICE STATION OPENED HERE

A new Loreco service station was opened at South Grand and Wood streets yesterday, and is adjudged by company officials to be one of the most convenient and most beautiful in the state.

The station is operated by Sam Beasley and Durwood Davis, both well known here.

Loreco gas, Cities Service and Kool-motor oils and greases, Acme tires, batteries, tubes and accessories will be featured by the station.

Had No Attacks Of Indigestion Since She Began Gly-Cas

Her Housework Is a Pleasure Feeling As She Does Today; Freed of Rheumatic Suffering Too, Former Pep and Energy Restored, Like New Again.

"I had been almost helpless with rheumatism before I began Gly-Cas," said Mrs. T. W. Glenn, 108 Adams street, Monroe, highly respected local lady who has lived in this parish for the past nineteen years, recently in talking with the Gly-Cas Man who is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city:

"For 20 years my joints had been so affected I could hardly endure the awful pain," continued Mrs. Glenn, "At times the rheumatism was so severe I would be confined to my bed and I could hardly move even to turn in different positions. Sleep of course was next to impossible and much of the time I had to be assisted to get out of a chair. I do not recall the number of years I had been troubled with constipation. But I had terrible stomach trouble so badly that everything I ate seemed to give me indigestion, souring of food, spitting up and heartburn. I was always taking first one kind of a medicine then another—doing my best to find relief—hoping to find something to help me—but they all semed to lose their power when tried on my case—until I began Gly-Cas—it is the very medicine I should have had years before."

"Gly-Cas went to the very source of my health troubles and today I am feeling like an entirely different person," continued Mrs. Glenn, "Constipation was remedied almost at once and I have not had a single attack of indigestion since I began this new remedy. I can now eat and enjoy the more substantial foods without the least distress afterwards. I am now feeling the best I have in many, many years and that dreadful rheumatic condition is hardly noticeable. I am now doing all my own housework and it is a real pleasure feeling as I do today. I get perfect sleep and rest and feel full of pep and energy upon awakening. Gly-Cas is one medicine that removes the poisons from the system in a most natural way—giving real results where all else had failed."

So it goes—another case right here in Monroe where Gly-Cas accomplished the seemingly impossible.

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new medical discovery.

MOREHOUSE SCHOOLS WILL OPEN MONDAY

BASTROP, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—All plans have been completed and everything is in readiness for the opening of all Morehouse parish schools Monday morning for the 1935-36 term, it was announced Saturday by E. D. Shaw, superintendent of schools. Repair work on many school buildings in the parish which has been under way during the summer months have been completed.

The largest enrollment in the history of Morehouse parish schools is expected this year, Mr. Shaw stated. Advance registrations at the Bastrop high school indicate a record enrollment this year.

All Morehouse school teachers appointed by the school board have been approved by the state budget board and no changes have been made in the original selections made by the school board.

The Morehouse parish training school, negro school, and other negro schools in the parish, will not open until Monday, Sept. 30, Mr. Shaw announced.

GIANTS BEAT CARDS IN 11TH AND CUBS TAKE LEAD

NEW YORK PUTS ON LATE RALLY TO WIN, 5 TO 4

Castleman's Relief Pitching And Hitting Feature Victory

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The never-give-up spirit plus another big array of hits carried the Giants through to their second extra-inning victory over the Cardinals today, 5 to 4, and cost St. Louis the National league lead.

Castleman

The Giant triumph, giving them a 2-1 edge in their "crucial" series here, left a clear field for the conquering Chicago Cubs. By beating Brooklyn for their eleventh straight triumph while the Cards were losing, the Cubs took a full game lead over the Cards. The Giants remained 3 1-2 games away from first place and 2 1-2 behind St. Louis but in a better strategic position as Chicago has played more games than either of the other pennant contenders.

After winding up the series here tomorrow, with Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean scheduled to face each other on the mound as they did in the first game, the Giants go to Chicago for another important engagement.

The windup of today's game bore a striking similarity to yesterday's finish. For the second time a relief pitcher cracked a double that played the big part in winning his own game after a big array of pinch hitters and runners had failed to come through.

With two out in the eleventh Clydell Castleman, the Giants' first-year flinger who was belted out yesterday, hit a two bagger. He scored the winning run when Joe Moore singled, then with the aid of a snappy double play held the Cards in check through the last half of the eleventh.

The resemblance to Friday's 13-10 game ceased there, however. Despite the absence of Pepper Martin and Travis Jackson, regular third basemen, both teams fielded steadily, making only one error each. The starting pitchers, Hal Schumacher and young Ed Heusser, who lasted only two innings for the Cards as Friday's flinger, battled on almost even terms for eight innings. Both went out for pinch hitters and New York called on four pitchers and St. Louis three before the finish.

CUBS WIN WILD ONE

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Cubs hammered their way into the National league today by outlasting the Dodgers to win a marathon scoring match 18 to 14. The victory broke Chicago's virtual tie with the Cardinals, who lost to New York, and gave the Cubs first place by a full game. It was the eleventh straight

HOT DOGS STOP PAUL

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—An attack of indigestion caused by mixing hot dogs with soda pop during an exciting boxing show last night left Paul Dean, St. Louis Cardinal hurling ace, too ill to appear today against the New York Giants. Big Ed Heusser took his place on the mound.

The younger Dean remained in his hotel room recuperating. Club officials said his condition was not serious.

SPORTS Chatter

BY GEO. V. LOFTON

NOT SO TIRED

Those "tired" Giants apparently have found the St. Louis air rejuvenating. Mr. Terry's lads didn't do so well the first day there, folding up before the curves of Dizzy Dean, but Friday and Saturday they didn't appear so tired, evidently profiting by their stay in the home town of the Gas House Gang. If it's the St. Louis atmosphere that makes the Cards like that, maybe the Giants have absorbed some of it.

There's no denying the Giants have been playing anything but championship baseball for the past month, but their sudden reversal of form, if it be that, has placed them in the thick of the scramble once more.

A St. Louis paper came out Friday with a piece about the tired Giants, citing instances where individual members of the cast actually loafed on balls in that first game. Maybe it made 'em mad, or maybe they actually have started playing ball again.

The Cardinals must win today's game to break even with the Giants. And then tomorrow the interest shifts to Chicago, where the New Yorkers open a "crucial" series with the surprising Cubs. Playing the Giants, it isn't expected that the Cubs will be able to match victories with the Cards, who will be engaging Mr. Stengel's Dodgers.

Any way you look at it, it becomes more apparent that the final series between the Cubs and the Cards will settle the issue. If they maintain their present pace against the other clubs, a decisive margin of wins in that series will clinch the flag for either team. On the other hand, they may cut each other's throat and let the Giants slip in.

You can usually depend on the National league to furnish a jam-up race and 1935 is no exception.

PASSING OUT

Stop a moment and salute a gallant band of former stars whose numbers are up in the major leagues. Old men now, as baseball goes, these fellows once held the spotlight, their names were in the headlines and they commanded important money for their deeds. But it's all in the past, now.

Al Simmons, Rube Walberg, Sunny Jim Bottomley, Earl Combs, Travis Jackson, Rabbit Maranville, Earl Whitehill, Hughey Critz, Kiki Cuyler, Bing Miller, Ossie Bluege, Tony Lazzeri—those used to be big names. To be sure, one or two of 'em will be hanging around next year but they won't be playing regularly, and some of them won't be playing at all.

There's a lot of color packed in that list, but there's always new color coming up and the Medwicks, Deans, Greenbergs and Vaughans are furnishing it now. The gent who cracked about youth being served spoke a mouthful!

SHORT AND SNAPPY

We're leaving today for a short vacation but we'll be back to arrange a fight party for you on the 24th. That's the night Max Baer and Joe Louis tangle, if you've forgotten. So mark the date on your calendar and meet us in front of the News-Star-World building Tuesday night . . . We're sorry we won't be here to see the football season open. But we'll be doing a bit of long distance pulling . . . Incidentally, all local football games will be played at Northeast Center. The turf out there ought to be pretty well dented along about Thanksgiving day.

They turned on the new lights at Tech Friday night and everybody's happy. With a football team that naturally will attract football fans, the night game should keep Tech in shekels for some time to come . . . Received a letter from Henry Walden, in which he enclosed several comps for the boys in the office. Thanks, Henry, and best of luck to your Louisiana College Wildcats . . . And while we're acknowledging nice things our appreciation goes out to Red Swanson for his kind letter in which he invites us down to Hammond for a big sea food dinner . . . Frank Kennedy is all burned up because Frisch pulled Pitcher Huesser Friday when the Cards were ahead.

Sonny Maroney has returned to Chicago after a visit in the old home town. Sonny finished his gridiron career at Northwestern last year, in case you didn't know. . . . Football fans and his other friends will regret to learn of the death of George Manteris' father. . . . The concensus of opinion here, as far as we've learned, is that Rice will beat L. S. U. in the opener. Maybe we haven't heard from the staunch Tiger supporters. . . . Everybody seems to think Rice is shooting for a national championship and will take delight in knocking off Bernie Moore's hopefuls. We hope not.

LAKESIDE CLUB PLAYS M'GUIRE

Second Meeting Between Two Clubs To Be Played In West Monroe

Members of the Lakeside Country club will cross the river this afternoon for an inter-club match with McGuire Park Golf club players. The match will start about 1:30 o'clock, it was announced last night.

The two clubs met in their first match at the Lakeside course several weeks ago and the Monroe aggregation was victorious. McGuire players, however, believe it will be a different story when they get the Lakeside golfers on their own course, and the West Monroe group is looking forward to revenge today.

The pairs which will represent the Lakeside club were announced last night as follows:

Shep Girault and Prioleau Ellis, Lakeside club champion; H. K. Touchstone and Harold Woods; Cramer Haas, recent winner of the Labor day tournament at Lakeside, and McVea Oliver; Morton Braswell and H. H. Reardon; John Williams and Gilbert Wolf; Ben Downing, Jr., and H. B. Murdoch; J. S. Tissington and A. B. Clarkson; J. S. Washburn and Dr. Nat Gaston; C. C. Boardman and W. L. James; R. R. Barfield and Albert Marx; B. S. Braswell and W. H. Roemer; W. M. Washburn and J. H. Trousdale.

McGuire park pairs had not been announced last night.

The feature match will be played between Shep Girault, Lakeside pro, and Prioleau Ellis, representing the country club, and Jim McKenzie, McGuire pro, and probably B. Beasley, McGuire club president and recent winner of the Brown Paper mill cup.

McKenzie said yesterday that the McGuire course is in excellent shape for the tourney and predicted some low scoring for the afternoon's play.

BRITISH GOLFERS LEAVE

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Brimful with confidence and determined to register the first "foreign victory" of the international series, ten British professional golfers started for the United States today to meet an American team in the fifth of the Ryder cup series at Ridgewood, N. J., Sept. 28-29.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

BLUES BEAT LAFAYETTE

JEANERETTE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Jeanerette Blues today won the fifth game of the Evangeline league seven-game playoff series with Lafayette, 4 to 2, giving them their third victory to two wins for the White Sox.

The Blues did all their scoring in the first inning, until Siragusa stepped in for Hornberg and stopped all the fun. Cornitius pitched a careful game for the Blues, allowing only five hits.

GREENBERG TAKES BATTING LEAD IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Detroit Slugger Tops Circuit With .346; Vaughan Holds Lead

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A new claimant of American league batting honors, Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers, moved to the top during the past week to lend some interest to the battle that began to droop a bit when Detroit forged far ahead in the pennant race.

Greenberg, who ran into difficulties in his quest for the season's home run crown when Jimmie Foxx began to belt them, shot up from fourth place to take the lead after Friday's games with a seven point gain. Joe Vosmik of Cleveland, league leader for several weeks, lost five points and went into second place.

The Tiger ace also managed to hold the home run lead by a margin of two over Foxx when he smacked his 35th of the season.

Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh, National league leader, clung to his .397 average with nine hits in 23 attempts. Joe Medwick of St. Louis dropped back six points to .363.

ENGINEERS, STARS PLAY TWO GAMES

Ouachita Valley League Officially Comes To Close Today

Play in the Ouachita Valley league will come to a close this afternoon when the Sterlington Engineers, 1935 champions, meet the Ouachita All-Stars in a doubleheader at Sterlington. The games will be the fourth and fifth of the series arranged after the Engineers had won the first and second half races during the regular schedule. The first game today will start at 2 o'clock.

Sterlington has won two games and lost one in the series with the All-Stars and needs but one more victory to cop the series. Even if the Engineers win the first game today and thus clinches a series victory, the second contest will be played, it was announced.

The All-Stars won the first game, played a couple of weeks ago, but the Engineers came back with two straight victories.

Manager Duncan of Sterlington last night had not designated his starting hurlers for today's games but all four of his flingers are ready to take the hill. They are Still, Amadee, Ward and Kyle. Manager Steed of the All-Stars also had not selected his starting pitcher for the first game but the choice was expected to lie between Field and Malone.

In view of the fact that today's games will be the last of the season, a capacity crowd is expected to pack the Sterlington park for the doubleheader.

Early railroads used wooden rails, with a thin strap of iron on top, and passengers often suffered injury when these straps came loose and ran up through the coach floors.

WINNSBORO FINISHES FIRST WEEK'S DRILL

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—About 14 men have finished the first week of football practice at Winnsboro high school. Practice has been held twice daily, the backs in the morning alone and the whole team in the afternoon. With the opening of school on Monday, September 16, the number of candidates is expected to increase to around 25 or 30.

Those reporting at present are Holstein, Polancic, Bankston, Svetlecic and E. Smith, backs, and Bradley, Rogers, Chandler, Fox, Hammacker, R. C. Smith and Land, linemen.

Winnsboro opens the football season here on September 27 with Jena as the first opponent of the year. October 4 is still an open date on the Wildcat schedule and the coach is anxious for any team with either A or a B rating that has no game on this date to get in touch with Winnsboro high school officials.

JAX AND JUDGES IN FIFTH GAME TODAY

JACKSONVILLE, Texas, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Jacksonville Jax and Pine Bluff, Ark., Judges rested today for their fifth game in the little Dixie series here tomorrow afternoon.

The Jax, twice champions of the West Dixie loop, and defenders of the little Dixie title, hold a 3 to 1 lead over the Judges, pennant winners in the East Dixie league.

Lions' 1935 Grid Campaign Starts Here Friday Night

Ouachita Winds Up Training Preparatory To Meeting Crossett

With the opening guns of their 1935 campaign scheduled to blast away within less than a week, the Lions of Ouachita parish high school are going through the last stages of their training period in preparation for this year's nine-game schedule.

As yet the starting lineup is not definite, Coach Vernon "Lefty" Haynes said yesterday, but the combination will be fronted by a powerful line of veterans backed by a light, fast backfield that is yet to be proven.

Of the nine games scheduled for the season all but two will be played in Monroe. And of the seven played here all but one will be night games. The Ouachita schedule is headed by the strongest teams in this part of the state, Byrd of Shreveport, Haynesville, Bolton of Alexandria, Tallulah and Bastrop, and there will be no set up for the Lions in those battles.

The schedule as announced yesterday by Coach Haynes is as follows:

Sept. 20, Crossett, Ark., here (night).
Sept. 26, Delhi here (night).
Oct. 3, Columbia, here (night).
Oct. 10 or 11, Tallulah, here (night).
Oct. 19, open.
Oct. 26, Bastrop here (night).
Nov. 1, Haynesville, there (night).
Nov. 8, Byrd, at Shreveport.
Nov. 15, Rayville, here (night).
Nov. 22, open.
Nov. 28 (Thanksgiving), Bolton of Alexandria, here.

Coach Haynes and Assistant Coaches George Riser and Harry Brown have been working their charges twice daily for the past two weeks, but beginning tomorrow, when school will be officially opened, the workouts will be limited to afternoon sessions only. The squad has been going through extensive scrimmages during the past week and will be hitting the high spots of their training session during the next three days.

The Lions have two fairly good backfields which have been opposing one another during the practice scrimmages but the combination that will be selected to start against Crossett is yet undecided.

One of the present backfield combinations is Sol Mayer, quarterback, Eddie Bowles and James Painich, halfbacks, and Bob Staples, fullback. Staples at 160 pounds is Ouachita's heaviest backfield man. Mayer hits 145 pounds, Bowles weighs around 135 and Painich about 140.

W. B. Stewart, Alvin Fleming, Clyde Roye and Watson Strong compose the No. 2 backfield and all stand a chance of being in the starting lineup.

The punting and passing of the team is picking up considerably with Billy Trimble, a lineman, Strong, Painich and Bowles looking best at punting. Bowles is also doing most of the passing but Fleming looks like a good prospect at heaving the ball.

The forward wall has only one weak spot and that is at one of the guards. Otherwise the line is filled with capable and experienced men. All the guard prospects are being given a good chance to break into the lineup in Coach Haynes' efforts to find a favorable combination.

Wheeler Mitchell is the only regular guard back in the harness. The leading contenders for the other guard post are Moise Peters and J. C. Black.

The center position will be well taken care of but as yet the starting pivot man has not been named. Rudy Vandenberg and Joe Butler, veterans, are waging a hard fight for the call, however.

The tackle selections will be picked from the combinations of F. C. Eason, Billy Trimble, Floyd Van and Bill Gattis, with Eason and Trimble standing the best chance of getting the initial starting call.

Earl Cobb, Jack Warren, John Renwick, James Bates and Minton form a fine crop of ends. Cobb, Warren and Renwick are veterans at the job and Bates, an elongated lad who tips the scales around 160 pounds, is battling his way up among the top-notchers. Bates is showing up well in the art of snagging passes and may prove a valuable man before the season gets well under way.

About 35 candidates have been reporting to Corch Haynes and his assistants for the past two weeks and a few more, who are expected to be worthy addition to the squad, are expected to join the Lions tomorrow, when school will open.

ALL-STARS PLAY NATCHEZ

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Ferriday All-Stars will meet the Natchez Coca-Colas Sunday at Fair Grounds park. The All-Stars will go to New Orleans on Sept. 22 on an excursion to play the strong Black Pelicans. The Pelicans will come here for a return game on Sept. 29.

TIGERS, YANKS BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE HEADER

Broaca Allows Leaders But Three Hits In Opener To Win, 2-1

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Yankees finally tossed a wrench into the wheels of Detroit's pennant machine today by winning the first game of a double header from the Tigers, 2 to 1. But it didn't do much damage, however, as Detroit went on to take the second 5 to 1 and maintain its 9 1-2 game lead.

Johnny Broaca

Johnny Broaca, who lost the first game of the series in a relief role, limited the league leaders to three hits to take the first game. The only Tiger run was Goose Goslin's homer in the fifth. The bespectacled Yale graduate did a masterful job of bearing down through the remaining frames to keep the Tigers from getting any closer.

Bill Dickey pounded a home run in the second to start the Yanks off ahead and they gathered their other run off Alvin Crowder, who pitched six hit ball, in the third. Blondy Ryan opened with a double, advanced on Broaca's sacrifice and breezed home on Jesse Hill's single.

The second game was decided about as quickly when the Tigers pounded big Walter Brown for four runs in the second inning, then stood by while their brilliant rookie hurler, Roxie Lawson, held the Yanks in check. Lawson, winning his third game since he came up from Toledo, was touched for nine hits and gave six walks but fanned six and was highly effective in the pinches.

FOOTBALL FAN SUES GEORGIA UNIVERSITY

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A $35,000 damage suit was filed against the University of Georgia Athletic association today by Gordon A. Smith of Atlanta, for injuries he alleged were suffered at the hands of a stadium guard two years ago.

Smith claimed in his suit he was insulted and then clubbed by a guard as he was standing along with many other persons on a hillside overlooking the football stadium. The 1933 Georgia-Tulane game was in progress at the time.

The suit was filed in Clarke county superior court.

Intersectional Football Menu Is Appetizing This Season

Baseball may be generally recognized as the national pastime, but this year, despite increased attendance at ball parks all over the country, and resumption of minor leagues that fell to seed during the depression, football is going to endanger the diamond sport's distinction more than ever.

This season's bill of gridiron fare is more appetizing than ever, due chiefly to the extraordinary number of interesting intersectional contests on the schedules.

Long trips across country were out during hard times, except by teams of the larger institutions. This season many of the smaller college teams will occupy upper berths on the road to foreign fronts miles away from their regular territory.

Of course, the traditional treks of Notre Dame, Pitt, Army, St. Mary's and Michigan lead the list in importance. But of no less consequence is the fact that such schools as Duquesne, Marquette, Washington university, St. Louis university, Fordham, and George Washington will play practically as many intersectional contests as they do games of purely local interest.

Duquesne, for instance, tangles with Illinois Wesleyan, Sept. 20; Kansas State, Sept. 27; and Washington university, Oct. 18, at Pittsburgh, and takes the road for battles with Rice, Oct. 5; and Oklahoma Aggies, Nov. 9.

Fordham engages Purdue, Oct. 12; Vanderbilt, Oct. 19; Pitt, Nov. 2; and St. Mary's, Nov. 9, all at New York.

Menu Is Appetizing

George Washington takes on Alabama, Oct. 5; Rice, Nov. 22, and Tulsa, Nov. 16, at Washington, and then hops the trolley for a pleasure jaunt out on the plains to meet North Dakota, Nov. 28.

St. Louis U. has scheduled intersectional contests with North Dakota, Arkansas State and Marquette. Its city rival, Washington U., has listed in contests with Southern Methodist at addition to the Duquesne tilt, outside home, and Illinois and Michigan State abroad.

Carnegie Tech has taken on an ambitional intersectional schedule which includes foreign frays against New York university, Oct. 12; Purdue, Oct. 26, and Holy Cross, Nov. 9.

Marquette is lined up with Mississippi on the latter's field, Oct. 26, and at Temple, Nov. 16, and then tackles Creighton at Milwaukee, Nov. 23.

Kansas has one of the most ambitious foreign campaigns of any Big Six team. It meets North Dakota away from home Sept. 28, and Michigan State at Lansing, Oct. 25.

Other choice pieces de resistance on the season's menu include the frays between Illinois and Southern California at Los Angeles, Oct. 26; Chicago at Nebraska, Sept. 28, and the latter school at Pitt, Nov. 16; Colgate at Iowa, Oct. 12; Kansas at Notre Dame, Sept. 28; Penn at Michigan, Nov. 22; Minnesota at Nebraska, Oct. 12; Tulane at Minnesota, Oct. 19; U. C. L. A. at S. M. U., Nov. 11; Colgate at Tulane, Nov. 2; Michigan at Columbia, Oct. 26; and L. S. U. at Manhattan, Oct. 12.

Coaching Spreads Play

What is the reason for this spread of intersectional play? It isn't the tendency of strong teams to invite weaker teams from other sections of the country for breather games, for last year Rice rose up and thumped Purdue, and Texas took Notre Dame in the first contest of the season.

This year Chicago and Nebraska tangle Sept. 28, and Notre Dame has lined up Kans

Castleman's Relief Pitching And Hitting Feature Victory

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The never-give-up spirit plus another big array of hits carried the Giants through to their second extra-inning victory over the Cardinals today, 5 to 4, and cost St. Louis the National league lead.

Castleman

The Giant triumph, giving them a 2-1 edge in their "crucial" series here, left a clear field for the conquering Chicago Cubs. By beating Brooklyn for their eleventh straight triumph while the Cards were losing, the Cubs took a full game lead over the Cards. The Giants remained 3 1-2 games away from first place and 2 1-2 behind St. Louis but in a better strategic position as Chicago has played more games than either of the other pennant contenders.

After winding up the series here tomorrow, with Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean scheduled to face each other on the mound as they did in the first game, the Giants go to Chicago for another important engagement.

The windup of today's game bore a striking similarity to yesterday's finish. For the second time a relief pitcher cracked a double that played the big part in winning his own game after a big array of pinch hitters and runners had failed to come through.

With two out in the eleventh Clydell Castleman, the Giants' first-year flinger who was belted out yesterday, hit a two bagger. He scored the winning run when Joe Moore singled, then with the aid of a snappy double play held the Cards in check through the last half of the eleventh.

The resemblance to Friday's 13-10 game ceased there, however. Despite the absence of Pepper Martin and Travis Jackson, regular third basemen, both teams fielded steadily, making only one error each. The starting pitchers, Hal Schumacher and young Ed Heusser, who lasted only two innings for the Cards as Friday's flinger, battled on almost even terms for eight innings. Both went out for pinch hitters and New York called on four pitchers and St. Louis three before the finish.

HOT DOGS STOP PAUL

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—An attack of indigestion caused by mixing hot dogs with soda pop during an exciting boxing show last night left Paul Dean, St. Louis Cardinal hurling ace, too ill to appear today against the New York Giants. Big Ed Heusser took his place on the mound.

The younger Dean remained in his hotel room recuperating. Club officials said his condition was not serious.

CUBS WIN WILD ONE

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Cubs hammered their way into the National league today by outlasting the Dodgers to win a marathon scoring match 18 to 14. The victory broke Chicago's virtual tie with the Cardinals, who lost to New York, and gave the Cubs first place by a full game. It was the eleventh straight

NOT SO TIRED

Those "tired" Giants apparently have found the St. Louis air rejuvenating. Mr. Terry's lads didn't do so well the first day there, folding up before the curves of Dizzy Dean, but Friday and Saturday they didn't appear so tired, evidently profiting by their stay in the home town of the Gas House Gang. If it's the St. Louis atmosphere that makes the Cards like that, maybe the Giants have absorbed some of it.

There's no denying the Giants have been playing anything but championship baseball for the past month, but their sudden reversal of form, if it be that, has placed them in the thick of the scramble once more.

A St. Louis paper came out Friday with a piece about the tired Giants, citing instances where individual members of the cast actually loafed on balls in that first game. Maybe it made 'em mad, or maybe they actually have started playing ball again.

The Cardinals must win today's game to break even with the Giants. And then tomorrow the interest shifts to Chicago, where the New Yorkers open a "crucial" series with the surprising Cubs. Playing the Giants, it isn't expected that the Cubs will be able to match victories with the Cards, who will be engaging Mr. Stengel's Dodgers.

Any way you look at it, it becomes more apparent that the final series between the Cubs and the Cards will settle the issue. If they maintain their present pace against the other clubs, a decisive margin of wins in that series will clinch the flag for either team. On the other hand, they may cut each other's throat and let the Giants slip in.

You can usually depend on the National league to furnish a jam-up race and 1935 is no exception.

PASSING OUT

Stop a moment and salute a gallant band of former stars whose numbers are up in the major leagues. Old men now, as baseball goes, these fellows once held the spotlight, their names were in the headlines and they commanded important money for their deeds. But it's all in the past, now.

Al Simmons, Rube Walberg, Sunny Jim Bottomley, Earl Combs, Travis Jackson, Rabbit Maranville, Earl Whitehill, Hughey Critz, Kiki Cuyler, Bing Miller, Ossie Bluege, Tony Lazzeri—those used to be big names. To be sure, one or two of 'em will be hanging around next year but they won't be playing regularly, and some of them won't be playing at all.

There's a lot of color packed in that list, but there's always new color coming up and the Medwicks, Deans, Greenbergs and Vaughans are furnishing it now. The gent who cracked about youth being served spoke a mouthful!

SHORT AND SNAPPY

We're leaving today for a short vacation but we'll be back to arrange a fight party for you on the 24th. That's the night Max Baer and Joe Louis tangle, if you've forgotten. So mark the date on your calendar and meet us in front of the News-Star-World building Tuesday night . . . We're sorry we won't be here to see the football season open. But we'll be doing a bit of long distance pulling . . . Incidentally, all local football games will be played at Northeast Center. The turf out there ought to be pretty well dented along about Thanksgiving day.

They turned on the new lights at Tech Friday night and everybody's happy. With a football team that naturally will attract football fans, the night game should keep Tech in shekels for some time to come . . . Received a letter from Henry Walden, in which he enclosed several comps for the boys in the office. Thanks, Henry, and best of luck to your Louisiana College Wildcats . . . And while we're acknowledging nice things our appreciation goes out to Red Swanson for his kind letter in which he invites us down to Hammond for a big sea food dinner . . . Frank Kennedy is all burned up because Frisch pulled Pitcher Huesser Friday when the Cards were ahead.

Sonny Maroney has returned to Chicago after a visit in the old home town. Sonny finished his gridiron career at Northwestern last year, in case you didn't know. . . . Football fans and his other friends will regret to learn of the death of George Manteris' father. . . . The concensus of opinion here, as far as we've learned, is that Rice will beat L. S. U. in the opener. Maybe we haven't heard from the staunch Tiger supporters. . . . Everybody seems to think Rice is shooting for a national championship and will take delight in knocking off Bernie Moore's hopefuls. We hope not.

LAKESIDE CLUB PLAYS M'GUIRE

Second Meeting Between Two Clubs To Be Played In West Monroe

Members of the Lakeside Country club will cross the river this afternoon for an inter-club match with McGuire Park Golf club players. The match will start about 1:30 o'clock, it was announced last night.

The two clubs met in their first match at the Lakeside course several weeks ago and the Monroe aggregation was victorious. McGuire players, however, believe it will be a different story when they get the Lakeside golfers on their own course, and the West Monroe group is looking forward to revenge today.

The pairs which will represent the Lakeside club were announced last night as follows:

Shep Girault and Prioleau Ellis, Lakeside club champion; H. K. Touchstone and Harold Woods; Cramer Haas, recent winner of the Labor day tournament at Lakeside, and McVea Oliver; Morton Braswell and H. H. Reardon; John Williams and Gilbert Wolf; Ben Downing, Jr., and H. B. Murdoch; J. S. Tissington and A. B. Clarkson; J. S. Washburn and Dr. Nat Gaston; C. C. Boardman and W. L. James; R. R. Barfield and Albert Marx; B. S. Braswell and W. H. Roemer; W. M. Washburn and J. H. Trousdale.

McGuire park pairs had not been announced last night.

The feature match will be played between Shep Girault, Lakeside pro, and Prioleau Ellis, representing the country club, and Jim McKenzie, McGuire pro, and probably B. Beasley, McGuire club president and recent winner of the Brown Paper mill cup.

McKenzie said yesterday that the McGuire course is in excellent shape for the tourney and predicted some low scoring for the afternoon's play.

BRITISH GOLFERS LEAVE

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Brimful with confidence and determined to register the first "foreign victory" of the international series, ten British professional golfers started for the United States today to meet an American team in the fifth of the Ryder cup series at Ridgewood, N. J., Sept. 28-29.

BLUES BEAT LAFAYETTE

JEANERETTE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Jeanerette Blues today won the fifth game of the Evangeline league seven-game playoff series with Lafayette, 4 to 2, giving them their third victory to two wins for the White Sox.

The Blues did all their scoring in the first inning, until Siragusa stepped in for Hornberg and stopped all the fun. Cornitius pitched a careful game for the Blues, allowing only five hits.

GREENBERG TAKES BATTING LEAD IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Detroit Slugger Tops Circuit With .346; Vaughan Holds Lead

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A new claimant of American league batting honors, Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers, moved to the top during the past week to lend some interest to the battle that began to droop a bit when Detroit forged far ahead in the pennant race.

Greenberg, who ran into difficulties in his quest for the season's home run crown when Jimmie Foxx began to belt them, shot up from fourth place to take the lead after Friday's games with a seven point gain. Joe Vosmik of Cleveland, league leader for several weeks, lost five points and went into second place.

The Tiger ace also managed to hold the home run lead by a margin of two over Foxx when he smacked his 35th of the season.

Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh, National league leader, clung to his .397 average with nine hits in 23 attempts. Joe Medwick of St. Louis dropped back six points to .363.

ENGINEERS, STARS PLAY TWO GAMES

Ouachita Valley League Officially Comes To Close Today

Play in the Ouachita Valley league will come to a close this afternoon when the Sterlington Engineers, 1935 champions, meet the Ouachita All-Stars in a doubleheader at Sterlington. The games will be the fourth and fifth of the series arranged after the Engineers had won the first and second half races during the regular schedule. The first game today will start at 2 o'clock.

Sterlington has won two games and lost one in the series with the All-Stars and needs but one more victory to cop the series. Even if the Engineers win the first game today and thus clinches a series victory, the second contest will be played, it was announced.

The All-Stars won the first game, played a couple of weeks ago, but the Engineers came back with two straight victories.

Manager Duncan of Sterlington last night had not designated his starting hurlers for today's games but all four of his flingers are ready to take the hill. They are Still, Amadee, Ward and Kyle. Manager Steed of the All-Stars also had not selected his starting pitcher for the first game but the choice was expected to lie between Field and Malone.

In view of the fact that today's games will be the last of the season, a capacity crowd is expected to pack the Sterlington park for the doubleheader.

Early railroads used wooden rails, with a thin strap of iron on top, and passengers often suffered injury when these straps came loose and ran up through the coach floors.

WINNSBORO FINISHES FIRST WEEK'S DRILL

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—About 14 men have finished the first week of football practice at Winnsboro high school. Practice has been held twice daily, the backs in the morning alone and the whole team in the afternoon. With the opening of school on Monday, September 16, the number of candidates is expected to increase to around 25 or 30.

Those reporting at present are Holstein, Polancic, Bankston, Svetlecic and E. Smith, backs, and Bradley, Rogers, Chandler, Fox, Hammacker, R. C. Smith and Land, linemen.

Winnsboro opens the football season here on September 27 with Jena as the first opponent of the year. October 4 is still an open date on the Wildcat schedule and the coach is anxious for any team with either A or a B rating that has no game on this date to get in touch with Winnsboro high school officials.

JAX AND JUDGES IN FIFTH GAME TODAY

JACKSONVILLE, Texas, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Jacksonville Jax and Pine Bluff, Ark., Judges rested today for their fifth game in the little Dixie series here tomorrow afternoon.

The Jax, twice champions of the West Dixie loop, and defenders of the little Dixie title, hold a 3 to 1 lead over the Judges, pennant winners in the East Dixie league.

Lions' 1935 Grid Campaign Starts Here Friday Night

Ouachita Winds Up Training Preparatory To Meeting Crossett

With the opening guns of their 1935 campaign scheduled to blast away within less than a week, the Lions of Ouachita parish high school are going through the last stages of their training period in preparation for this year's nine-game schedule.

As yet the starting lineup is not definite, Coach Vernon "Lefty" Haynes said yesterday, but the combination will be fronted by a powerful line of veterans backed by a light, fast backfield that is yet to be proven.

Of the nine games scheduled for the season all but two will be played in Monroe. And of the seven played here all but one will be night games. The Ouachita schedule is headed by the strongest teams in this part of the state, Byrd of Shreveport, Haynesville, Bolton of Alexandria, Tallulah and Bastrop, and there will be no set up for the Lions in those battles.

The schedule as announced yesterday by Coach Haynes is as follows:

Sept. 20, Crossett, Ark., here (night).
Sept. 26, Delhi here (night).
Oct. 3, Columbia, here (night).
Oct. 10 or 11, Tallulah, here (night).
Oct. 19, open.
Oct. 26, Bastrop, here (night).
Nov. 1, Haynesville, there (night).
Nov. 8, Byrd, at Shreveport.
Nov. 15, Rayville, here (night).
Nov. 22, open.
Nov. 28 (Thanksgiving), Bolton of Alexandria, here.

Coach Haynes and Assistant Coaches George Riser and Harry Brown have been working their charges twice daily for the past two weeks, but beginning tomorrow, when school will be officially opened, the workouts will be limited to afternoon sessions only. The squad has been going through extensive scrimmages during the past week and will be hitting the high spots of their training session during the next three days.

The Lions have two fairly good backfields which have been opposing one another during the practice scrimmages but the combination that will be selected to start against Crossett is yet undecided.

One of the present backfield combinations is Sol Mayer, quarterback; Eddie Bowles and James Painich, halfbacks, and Bob Staples, fullback. Staples at 160 pounds is Ouachita's heaviest backfield man. Mayer hits 145 pounds, Bowles weighs around 135 and Painich about 140.

W. B. Stewart, Alvin Fleming, Clyde Roye and Watson Strong compose the No. 2 backfield and all stand a chance of being in the starting lineup.

The punting and passing of the team is picking up considerably with Billy Trimble, a lineman, Strong, Painich and Bowles looking best at punting. Bowles is also doing most of the passing but Fleming looks like a good prospect at heaving the ball.

The forward wall has only one weak spot and that is at one of the guards. Otherwise the line is filled with capable and experienced men. All the guard prospects are being given a good chance to break into the lineup in Coach Haynes' efforts to find a favorable combination.

Wheeler Mitchell is the only regular guard back in the harness. The leading contenders for the other guard post are Moise Peters and J. C. Black.

The center position will be well taken care of but as yet the starting pivot man has not been named. Rudy Vandenberg and Joe Butler, veterans, are waging a hard fight for the call, however.

The tackle selections will be picked from the combinations of F. C. Eason, Billy Trimble, Floyd Van and Bill Gattis, with Eason and Trimble standing the best chance of getting the initial starting call.

Earl Cobb, Jack Warren, John Renwick, James Bates and Minton form a fine crop of ends. Cobb, Warren and Renwick are veterans at the job and Bates, an elongated lad who tips the scales around 160 pounds, is battling his way up among the top-notchers. Bates is showing up well in the art of snagging passes and may prove a valuable man before the season gets well under way.

About 35 candidates have been reporting to Corch Haynes and his assistants for the past two weeks and a few more, who are expected to be worthy addition to the squad, are expected to join the Lions tomorrow, when school will open.

ALL-STARS PLAY NATCHEZ

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Ferriday All-Stars will meet the Natchez Coca-Colas Sunday at Fair Grounds park. The All-Stars will go to New Orleans on Sept. 22 on an excursion to play the strong Black Pelicans. The Pelicans will come here for a return game on Sept. 29.

TIGERS, YANKS BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE HEADER

Broaca Allows Leaders But Three Hits In Opener To Win, 2-1

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Yankees finally tossed a wrench into the wheels of Detroit's pennant machine today by winning the first game of a double header from the Tigers, 2 to 1. But it didn't do much damage, however, as Detroit went on to take the second 5 to 1 and maintain its 9 1-2 game lead.

Johnny Broaca

Johnny Broaca who lost the first game of the series in a relief role limited the league leaders to three hits to take the first game. The only Tiger run was Goose Goslin's homer in the fifth. The bespectacled Yale graduate did a masterful job of bearing down through the remaining frames to keep the Tigers from getting any closer.

Bill Dickey pounded a home run in the second to start the Yanks off ahead and they gathered their other run off Alvin Crowder, who pitched six hit ball, in the third. Blondy Ryan opened with a double, advanced on Broaca's sacrifice and breezed home on Jesse Hill's single.

The second game was decided about as quickly when the Tigers pounded big Walter Brown for four runs in the second inning, then stood by while their brilliant rookie hurler, Roxie Lawson, held the Yanks in check. Lawson, winning his third game since he came up from Toledo, was touched for nine hits and gave six walks but fanned six and was highly effective in the pinches.

FOOTBALL FAN SUES GEORGIA UNIVERSITY

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A $25,000 damage suit was filed against the University of Georgia Athletic association today by Gordon A. Smith of Atlanta, for injuries he alleged were suffered at the hands of a stadium guard two years ago.

Smith claimed in his suit he was insulted and then clubbed by a guard as he was standing along with many other persons, on a hillside overlooking the football stadium. The 1933 Georgia-Tulane game was in progress at the time.

The suit was filed in Clarke superior court.

Intersectional Football Menu Is Appetizing This Season

Baseball may be generally recognized as the national pastime, but this year, despite increased attendance at ball parks all over the country, and resumption of minor leagues that fell to seed during the depression, football is going to endanger the diamond sport's distinction more than ever.

This season's bill of gridiron fare is more appetizing than ever, due chiefly to the extraordinary number of interesting intersectional contests on the schedules.

Long trips across country were out during hard times, except by teams of the larger institutions. This season many of the smaller college teams will occupy upper berths on the road to foreign fronts miles away from their regular territory.

Of course, the traditional treks of Notre Dame, Pitt, Army, St. Mary's and Michigan lead the list in importance. But of no less consequence is the fact that such schools as Duquesne, Marquette, Washington university, St. Louis university, Fordham, and George Washington will play practically as many intersectional contests as they do games of purely local interest.

Duquesne, for instance, tangles with Illinois Wesleyan, Sept. 20; Kansas State, Sept. 27; and Washington university, Oct. 18, at Pittsburgh, and takes the road for battles with Rice, Oct. 5; and Oklahoma Aggies, Nov. 9.

Fordham engages Purdue, Oct. 12; Vanderbilt, Oct. 19; Pitt, Nov. 2; and St. Mary's, Nov. 9, all at New York.

Menu Is Appetizing

George Washington takes on Alabama, Oct. 5; Rice, Nov. 22, and Tulsa, Nov. 16, at Washington, and then hops the trolley for a pleasure jaunt out on the plains to meet North Dakota, Nov. 28.

St. Louis U. has scheduled intersectional contests with North Dakota, Arkansas State and Marquette. Its city rival, Washington U., has listed in contests with Southern Methodist at addition to the Duquesne tilt, outside home, and Illinois and Michigan State abroad.

Carnegie Tech has taken on an ambitional intersectional schedule which includes foreign frays against New York university, Oct. 12; Purdue, Oct. 26, and Holy Cross, Nov. 9.

Marquette is lined up with Mississippi on the latter's field, Oct. 26, and at Temple, Nov. 16, and then tackles Creighton at Milwaukee, Nov. 23.

Kansas has one of the most ambitious foreign campaigns of any Big Six team. It meets North Dakota away from home Sept. 28, and Michigan State at Lansing, Oct. 25.

Other choice pieces de resistance on the season's menu include the frays between Illinois and Southern California at Los Angeles, Oct. 26; Chicago at Nebraska, Sept. 28, and the latter school at Pitt, Nov. 16; Colgate at Iowa, Oct. 12; Kansas at Notre Dame, Sept. 28; Penn at Michigan, Nov. 22; Minnesota at Nebraska, Oct. 12; Tulane at Minnesota, Oct. 19; U. C. L. A. at S. M. U., Nov. 11; Colgate at Tulane, Nov. 2; Michigan at Columbia, Oct. 26; and L. S. U. at Manhattan, Oct

LITTLE WINS AMATEUR TITLE WITH AMAZING FINISH

CHAMPION BEATS EMERY, 4 AND 2, IN FINAL MATCH

Eagle Climaxes Greatest Sub Par Scoring Streak In History

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

THE COUNTRY CLUB, CLEVELAND, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The big "Little man" with the "paralyzing punch" scored today his thirty-first consecutive knockout in national championship competition, and stands supreme for the second successive year as the world's greatest amateur golfer.

Lawson Little

William Lawson Little, Jr., the clouting Californian, withstood the spirited thrusts of a 23-year-old Oklahoma law student, tall blond Walter Emery, to capture his second straight American amateur title. He won by 4 and 2 with a finish that had old man par reeling on the ropes and his challenger staggering from sheer explosive power of his shot making.

The broad shouldered, hard hitting champion, figuratively speaking, got up off the soft green turf to prove his right to world championship golfing honors. He lost the first three holes to his surprisingly cool and calculating opponent, a freshman in U. S. amateur title play.

He was hard pressed to finish all even at the end of the first 18-hole round. He was unable throughout most of the second round to shake off a youthful challenger who simply refused to admit he could be licked until the champion landed the final "crusher."

The climax to perhaps the greatest sub par scoring streak ever witnessed in a national amateur championship came at the 512-yard 16th hole—the 34th and last of the match. The end was in sight, as Little had won two straight holes after having his margin cut to one hole, with five to go.

The gallery was waiting tensely for the "kill," but it came with even swifter fury than anticipated. With two tremendous wood wallops, Little reached the green, 12 feet from the cup, and sank his putt for an eagle three.

Nothing rivalling so pronounced a "killer instinct" in golf has ever been witnessed before, not even in the heyday of Bob Jones, world champion when he retired in 1930 with the "grand slam." A gallery of upwards of 4,000 fans was left gasping from the effect of Little's pulverizing shots—shots that have been mowing down all opponents at home and abroad over a two-year period.

In completing his second straight "Little slam"—triumphant this year and last in the amateur championships of both Great Britain and the United States—Little also established a scoring record that ranks with the most remarkable in golfing annals.

The Californian was five under par against Emery today for 34 holes. For eight successive victories during the match, in his dynamic march through the biggest field ever gathered for the American championship, he was exactly 19 shots under par over the heavily wooded 6,800-yard Country club course of Cleveland.

Against each and every challenge to his supremacy Little turned on a sub par blast that simply blew his opponent out of the picture.

The champion met his severest tests over the 36-hole route, against Johnny Goodman in yesterday's semi-finals and in today's final match. In both, his rivals rose to extraordinary heights, only to find their best golf no match for Little's booming counter thrusts.

Throughout the championship contest, a crowd of upwards of 4,000 fans frantically cheered Emery's gallant bids to overcome the consistently tremendous power and marvelous recuperative ability of the Californian.

PROVIDENCE SQUAD RETURNS FROM CAMP

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Lake Providence football squad returned from Lake Bruin this week-end, where the players spent a week in preparing for the hardest schedule in the history of the school. Coach H. H. Moorman and Principal C. E. Holley accompanied the squad to camp.

Although most of the material is inexperienced, a fair team is expected to represent the local high school. Due to lack of backs, Malcolm Lightsey, a former tackle, has been shifted to the backfield. The end positions will be capably handled by Howard and Sam Whatley, while Shockley and Erwin will hold down the tackle berths. Trim and Davis will be the guards and Boyd, a newcomer, will beat center.

"Red" Goode and Clarence Murray will be two of the starting backs while the other back will be selected from Harry Deal, Billy Bonner, A. M. Braswell, Vernon Bradley, Stamper, Bill Wiley and O. Z. Goode, Jr. Other candidates are Bill Davis, Pete King, Tim Henry, Gilfoil, John Chaney, George Baker, Boddie, John Dunn, Charles Surles, J. C. Donovan, Haynes Markey, Jr., Rex Kervin and Jack McCain.

The famous Goldman band just has played its 146th concert in New York. Edwin Franko Goldman, its conductor, never has missed a concert in all that time.

TECH TIDINGS

By Ruston Sports Correspondent

RUSTON, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—It will be "Tech eat Tech" at the breakfast meal of the football menu now being perused by the Ruston varsity collegions. In their fall opening, Friday night, October 4, at their own stadium doorstep, the Louisiana Tech men will meet a team of their namesakes from Tennessee. If you are not personally acquainted with Tennessee Tech, let the Blue Book of colleges inform you that the institution is co-educational and state-supported, founded at Cookeville, Tenn., in 1915. Though still in its nonage, the college had an enrollment of 968 students at the last count listed, the boys and girls being about 50-50. Exclusive of the "better half" of its enrollment, Tennessee Tech probably has plenty of men for football material. Anyway, the Louisiana Techsters wouldn't be surprised if the Tennessee men are pretty good at gridironing. But even if they are as hard as nails, the Louisiana Tech men are the ones who will drive them judging by the hammering they are doing on the practice field.

Wiley Dons Uniform

Although a little late to shoot from taw with the rest of the Tech grid practicers, Don (Tallulah) Wiley got a move on him this week and reported at the Ruston training camp. Wiley, a 162-pound halfback, is a southpaw passer, and also boots from the portside. Head Coach Eddie McLane thinks Wiley's name is "worth putting in the papers"—and that coming from the chieftain is a whole paragraph.

Trying The Combinations

In their endeavors to build up a smooth-running piece of gridiron machinery, the Tech coaches have been experimenting with various backfield combinations comprising mixtures of experienced varsity men and sophomores. For example, in one backfield setup, they have been using Will Cotten of Oak Ridge, a senior, a right half. Three sophomores completing this quartet include Herman Hewett, Ruston, fullback; Guy Carroll, Homer, left half, and Don Darling, Ruston quarterback. In another merger are Wallace Hanna, Minden, sophomore, at right half; Billy Mitchell, Ruston, senior, left half; Archie Turner, Ferriday, senior fullback; and Jack Thigpen, Ruston, senior, and Carl Gardner Shreveport, sophomore, alternating at the quarterback post. Will Cotten with the advantage of two years of varsity credit, perhaps is the standout of the lot. The combines seem to be getting somewhere. All of the backs are running hard, but are somewhat lacking in their blocking ability, a deficiency which is receiving the attention of the mentors.

A Freshman Flash

Technically speaking, there is no such thing as a freshman football team of Louisiana Tech at this writing, because one must pay and enter before he can be called a freshman. After Monday, September 16, however, there will officially be some yearlings with a yen for football, and their schedule will be out subsequently. Here's a sample of it: The Tech Pups will play their first intercollegiate game with the Centenary Junior Gents in Shreveport, either on October 3 or October 4. Coach "Blue" Hogg hankers after the former date, since the Tech varsity open their season at Ruston on the fourth.

But The Coach Says No!

Gentlemen of the press, who feel that they will be cramped for time to "make" the morning papers with reports of night football games at Louisiana Tech, have tried to get "Boss" McLane to start the contests at 7:30 instead of 8 p. m. But the coach nods his noggin from east to west. He doesn't want the frenzied fans to be so rushed that they will come to the ball games nibbling their evening meal. Furthermore, he is counting on customers from Shreveport to Vicksburg, and from El Dorado to Baton Rouge, and many of them don't have airplanes. So the correspondents' request seems so null and void, so futile, so useless, so what?

Some Smithereen Smashers!

Defensive work of all six of the Tech tackles indicates that these boys will come to the support of their teammates like a rich uncle. These linemen who are catching on to their business are Houston Beaumont, Birmingham, Ala., "Wimpy" Giddens, Ringgold, "Bunker" Hill, Minden, James Mize, Shreveport, and Henry Stamm, Bonita, all sophomores, and Ras Neal, Monroe, a letter man of last year.

SEWANEE TO HAVE FIGHTING ELEVEN

Tigers Hope To Upset Several Favored Opponents This Year

SEWANEE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—It's spirit or ambition.

A squad of 30 Purple warriors is preparing for the coming season with all the zest and fire of a potential champion, willing to take the knocks from several foes if it can manage to upset a couple of traditional rivals.

Coach Hek Clark, unperturbed over the fact that his small band is far below championship caliber, says "there isn't a single man on the squad who isn't putting everything he has into it and who doesn't want to play football."

"Our team will be pretty light, as usual," he continued, "but I believe we will have a good defensive line."

Clark, a Sewanee athlete himself back in the days when foes shuddered at mention of the dreaded Tigers, admits that the team's offense is a big question mark.

In recent years, the team has been using a double and single wingback formation, but Clark says he is "not positive yet what style of play we'll be using this year." He added that this would be determined after the Tigers have thoroughly tested their aerial attack.

The Purple squad figures to be well fixed in the punting department with the veterans, Poage and Colmore, and Sophomore Montgomery displaying consistent kicking ability in practice.

Leaving title dreams for other conference mentors, Coach Clark drills his men twice daily, mainly hoping to prepare his spirited squad for a couple of climax performances against ancient grid foes.

The schedule:

Sept. 23, St. Louis university at St. Louis, night; Oct. 5, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Oct. 11, Mississippi at Clarksdale, night; Oct. 19, Tenn. Wesleyan at Sewanee; Oct. 26, Tulane at New Orleans; Nov. 2, Tenn. Tech at Sewanee; Nov. 9, Vanderbilt at Nashville; Nov. 16, Florida at Gainesville; Nov. 23, Miss. State at Starkville.

MONARCHS TO PLAY CITY STARS TODAY

Plans have been made for the celebration of "Frank Johnson day" at Casino park this afternoon. The movement is being pushed forward by local baseball enthusiasts who are taking an opportunity to show their appreciation to Johnson, manager of the Monroe Monarchs. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Johnson has managed the Monarchs for five years and every year since he has held reign he has put winning teams on the field. During his stay here he has won the southern championship of the Negro Southern league three times. Twice he has entered negro world series playoffs.

Last Saturday the team returned from a four months' tour of the middle west where it won 68 out of 88 games played, while dropping 18 and tying 2.

A game between the Monarchs and the City league stars will feature Homer Allen and Foster, local young hurlers with the Monarchs, pitting their strength against Hilton Smith, former Monarch who played with Bismarck, N. D., this year.

Manager Johnson will play every position on the team during the contest.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR FORDHAM '11'

Crowley's Lads To Be Hard To Beat And Hard To Pronounce

NEW YORK., Sept. 14.—(AP)—As tough a bunch of football players as there is in the country—to beat, to spell, even to pronounce—is Jimmy Crowley's entry in the big league football ranks at Fordham this fall.

For two years now, Sleepy Jim, one of Notre Dame's immortals as a member of the great four horsemen backfield, has been struggling patiently to instill in his amazing collection of big Poles, Lithuanians, Italians and Irish the great niceties and delicacies of the Rockne system.

Now, for the first time, they look as though they're beginning to really get it, and they're responding just in time to save not only Jim's famous good humor, but the Maroons' honor as well.

Jim is piecing his team together, aided by a collection of giant sophomores, after losing seven regulars and a total of 11 letter men from last fall by graduation. He has a fine working squad of about 40 big, powerful, fleet fellows and the only cut he has made, and probably will make, was Alex Wojciechowicz, who sheared down to Alex Woje for very apparent reasons. Woje probably will be his first string center, and his chief rival is Julius Miskinis.

Crowley's sophomores probably represent the greatest linguistical problem ever to face a Fordham coach where tough names are legendary. In addition to Wojciechowicz, he greeted this year Chet Napiorski, Al Barbartsky, Ed Woitkowski. The redeeming feature is that they're all great prospects. By a strange coincidence, his brightest sophomore is a boy named Emil Dul.

Two veteran backs are available in Capt. Joe Maniaci at one half and Joe Dulkie, fullback. Woje is so good that last year's center, Nat Pierce, will play one guard. Leo Paquin is a veteran end. He has two grand tackles in Amerino Sarno and Al Sabo, and there are plenty of husky candidates, swift and capable, for all positions.

The schedule: Sept. 28: Franklin and Marshall; Oct. 5: Boston college; 12: Purdue; 19: Vanderbilt; 26: Lebanon Valley; Nov. 2: Pittsburgh; 9: St. Mary's; 16: Muhlenberg; 28: New York university. All but the first and last games will be played at the Polo Grounds.

Southern Association

CHAPLIN WINS 24TH

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Tiny Chaplin pitched his 24th victory of the season today as Nashville defeated the Knoxville Smokies 10 to 1. Records showed Chaplin was the first to chalk up such a string of victories for the local club since Tom Rogers won 24 games back in 1916.

Score by innings:

Knoxville	000	000	100	1	5	1
Nashville	200	004	13x	10	20	0

Lanning, Moon and Bandy; Chaplin and Blaemire.

CHICKS WIN DUEL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Battling as though engaged in a series game, Memphis snatched a 2 to 1 victory from New Orleans today as Lynn Nelson limited the Pels to three hits, clinching third place in the league standing for the Chicks.

New Orleans scored in the fifth on Gleeson's triple and Rose's single. In the eighth, Reese singled, went to second on Duke's fly and scored on James' single. James tallied as Watwood doubled.

Score:

New Orleans	000	010	000	1	3	0
Memphis	000	000	02x	2	8	0

Milnar, Wetherell and Autry; Nelson and Powell.

LOOKOUTS BLANK CRAX

ATLANTA, Sept. 14. — (AP) — The Chattanooga Lookouts defeated the Atlanta Crackers here today, 4 to 0. Hansen, pitching for the Lookouts, limited the Crackers to two hits. Marion, Lookout centerfielder, got three hits in four times up.

Score:

Chattanooga	000	002	200	4	9	1
Atlanta	000	000	000	0	2	5

Hansen and Jackson; Thomas and Palmisano.

BARONS BLANK ROCKS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Charlie George, a rookie left hander, limited the Little Rock Travelers to three scattered singles tonight and the Birmingham Barons coasted to a 4 to 0 victory.

From the second to the eighth inning, George held the locals hitless. He struck out two, issued no bases on balls and only one Traveler reached third. Woodard led the visitors' attack with three hits in four trips to the plate.

The game was played as a feature of "Baseball Queens' Night" under a proclamation of Governor J. Marion Futrell, a beauty revue being staged at the conclusion of the game.

Score:

Birmingham	000	112	000	4	9	1
Little Rock	000	000	000	0	3	1

George and Cox; Porter and Rice.

CHIEFS TRIM NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Syracuse defeated Newark 5-2 tonight behind the three-hit pitching of Joe Mulligan, ending their International league play-off series with four straight victories. Nick D'Allesandro, Chief's left fielder, made five of his team's nine hits, two home runs, two singles and a double, for a perfect day at bat.

Little Known 'Prelim' Heavies Harbor Designs On Boxing Title

Here are two of the upcoming young heavyweights who covet the heavyweight boxing title held by Jim Braddock, and the ring game's "Cinderella Man" himself (right). Buddy Baer (top left), brother of Max, who was shorn of his title by Braddock's faithful left hand, is an enigma to the customers, but his bouts so far have been both brief and decisive. Ford Smith (lower left) belongs in the near-challenger class because he upset Art Lasky.

By Charles Norman

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—In this corner—the young heavyweights who may be fighting for the title in a year or two.

Joe Louis is already in the "big time" and Jacob (Buddy) Baer, having disposed of Jack Doyle, seems headed for that select company.

They don't send flashes from the ringside when the semi-finalists win, or you'd know the names of some of the others: Eddie Hogan and Eddie Mader; George Brescia and Ford Smith.

They've all got a wallop in the right and a left like a rapier—all, that is, except Buddy Baer. He's got the wallop in the right, but his left is more like a one-man battering ram—if it doesn't clip you, it knocks you down as it sweeps by. They've all shown courage and a businesslike way of mowing down the opposition. In short, they've got the ingredients that make a championship contender, and one of these days, one of these boys will be in there with the current wearer of fistiana's proudest bauble, the heavyweight championship of the word.

South American Threat

There's no disputing Joe Louis' right to contest "leading-contender" honors with Max Baer, former champion. The way he mowed down the ponderous Primo Carnera sent a thrill and a chill through the huge crowd that saw it.

But on the same card that night was a fighter from the Argentine who showed color and class and who loomed spectacularly in the minds of fight fans. He came into the ring with a gorgeous dressing gown. His hair was neat. Someone remarked that he would have to be good to get away with his appearance. And he delivered.

His name is George Brescia. The gong sounded and instantly one of the most beautiful left hands ever seen around these parts popped into action. It was the kind of left that tossed his opponent's head back and seemed about to tear it off. And while the left was doing its deadly work, the right went into action. In the middle of the second round, Brescia's opponent went down and was counted out.

The night James J. Braddock lefthanded his way to the title against Max Baer saw another promising fighter pitted against a tried veteran. The way he went after the more experienced battler made wise heads nod. He had a baby face with a studious expression and steely eyes. He looked like Gene Tunney and he romped off with the decision. His name is Eddie Hogan.

The night Buddy Baer battered down Jack Doyle at the Garden in less than a round, a preliminary fight made the rafters ring with the cheers and applause of fight fans.

A Walloping Duo

It was a 6-rounder featuring Terry Mitchell of Boston and Eddie Mader of New York. They wasted no time on feinting or waltzes. From the opening gong they slugged away, fighting every inch of the way, and between rounds the fans stood and cheered because they were watching two real fighting men.

Mitchell is a wildcat of a fighter, a never-rest puncher, who can take it as well as dish it out. And once the bell rang, with the fans cheering so wildly that they didn't hear it, and they stood in Mader's corner and rained leather.

When it looked as though neither youngster could do any more, Mader opened up in the last minute and whacked the daylights out of Mitchell. He looked impressive and he had to be to get by "Terrible Terry."

Buddy Puzzles Experts

Buddy Baer remains an enigma among the new and promising heavyweights. His 238-pound bulk goes loping and careening across the ring at his opponent, or bears down ominously like a galleon menacing a sloop—the closest things to a Juggenaut fight fans have gazed at. His two battles here, lasting less than a round each, failed to disclose what he has, if anything, besides weight and ambition. The matchmakers helped to keep the customers in the dark by tossing fighters in against him who looked frail, fragile and frightened before the start—and massacred afterward.

The only fight on the horizon that looks—on paper—like to answer to the fight fan's prayer is the Max Baer-Jo Louis imbroglio, September 24, in the Yankee stadium.

Ford Smith stopped Art Lasky, so he's in the running until someone sidetracks him. It was Braddock's victory over Lasky that gave pugilism's "Cinderella man" the shot at Baer's crown, and Braddock wrapped it up and took it home to the kiddies.

Foxx, Cramer And Higgins Likely To Go To Red Sox

Slugging Jimmie Would Take Care Of Those 22 Stranded Runners

(By NEA Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—With the Athletics so deep in red ink that the grand old die-hard, Connie Mack, is stumping the American league in the interests of night baseball, the venerable leader is expected to bail out the Philadelphia club and then some this fall by selling James Emory Foxx, Roger Cramer, and Pinky Higgins to the immensely rich Boston Red Sox.

That would be a fairly important deal.

After seeing a pronounced lead dissipated by the New York Giants for the second straight season, Bill Terry may not even wait for the world series to be concluded before handing the faithful Phillies Roy Parmelee, Hughie Critz, Mark Koenig, and $50,000 for Dolph Camilli and Curt Davis.

There is no question but that young Thomas Austin Yawkey is keenly disappointed with his fifth place Red Sox to whom the Hub patrons have remained so loyal. Joe Cronin realizes that the array will be even weaker in 1936 unless there are replacements.

"Wes Ferrell and Bob Grove can't be expected to carry on again next year the way they have this season," says Cronin. "It would be brutal to expect them to go out there and hurl winning ball day in and day out only to see us fail to hit in enough runs for them to win—especially Grove.

Mack Paves Way

"We need at least one great slugger and at least one other good hitter. Why, just the other afternoon we left 22 men on the bases in one game. Twenty-two! Imagine! Just think what a Foxx, a Hank Greenberg, or a Lou Gehrig would have meant to us that day. It's been that way all season. We're in the market. We'll talk business with anybody."

Gehrig and Greenberg are not for sale at any price, but, with the Athletics requiring ready cash and few in Philadelphia caring one way or the other, it is reasonable to suspect that Yawkey, who is down to his last $38,000,000, will purchase Foxx. And in disposing of his home-run hitter, Mack might just as well go all the way and get all he can for Cramer and Higgins, too.

Foxx has repeatedly expressed a desire to escape from Shibe park.

Mack's statement that only two members of his 1935 team, Wally Moses and little Rabbit Warstler, hustled is taken by many as a warning intended to muffle, if possible, the cries of the few Philadelphia fans interested enough to complain when the barter is disclosed.

Foxx and Higgins, the long range swatters, and Cramer, bidding for the batting championship, haven't been on their toes, according to the tall tactician. Any club with the price would like to have Foxx, Higgins, and Cramer.

Moses and Warstler have beared down, according to Mack. But Moses has a broken arm and Warstler would have a tough time landing another position in the majors if given his outright release.

A's Have Men

The Red Sox have given up on Babe Dahlgren, who would be succeeded by Foxx at first base. The Boston management has an idea that Bill Werber was a one-year wonder. He would be succeeded by Higgins at third base. Foxx and Higgins are the great sluggers of whom Cronin speaks, and Cramer the other good hitter.

Terry seeks Camilli as a replacement for himself at first base for the Giants.

Davis would be expected to fill the shoes of Parmelee, who in recent weeks has been shelled from the hillock as regularly as he formerly won.

Critz has slowed down, but in late games has proved an improvement over Koenig, who practically stopped after getting off to a fine start.

Al Cuccinello is slated to start the season at second base for the Giants next spring.

In face of his performances of 1933 and '34 and in the early going this year, Terry may be losing patience with Parmelee a bit too soon. But the Giants' collapsible tendencies require desperate measures.

BASTROP STARTS SEASON FRIDAY

Rams To Place Light And Inexperienced Grid Team On Field

BASTROP, Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Bastrop High school Rams will make their 1935 debut next Friday afternoon on the local gridiron when they will meet the Farmerville High school team here. The game will begin at 3:30 o'clock.

The Rams finished two weeks of strenuous practice Saturday and Coach "Dutch" Binino announced that with a few days more preparation, the Rams will be in good condition to usher in their 1935 season. During the past several days, the squad has been scrimmaging with a team from the Bastrop CCC camp.

Plans were announced this week by high school officials for the inauguration next week of an intensive advance sale of season tickets. Five games will be played in Bastrop this year, all with strong teams.

With only a handful of lettermen back from last year to form the nucleus of a team, Coach Binion is faced with the task this year of building up a team with practically new material. More than two-thirds of the members of the squad have not played football before. The team this year will be fast but light, as has been the case with all Ram teams during the past few years, the average weight of team not expected to be over 135 pounds.

One of the toughest schedules in years has been arranged for the Rams this season, with ten games on the program. A feature of the schedule is the resumption of football relations with the Haynesville Golden Tornado.

Other strong teams on the schedule are Crossett, Mangham, Oak Grove, Ouachita Parish, Ruston, Jonesboro, Rayville and Neville, in the order named. The Rams will play Neville here on Thanksgiving day and will meet the Ouachita Parish team in Monroe on October 24.

Linemen who have played football before are Tom Frank Naff, tackle, Francis Handy, captain and tackle, Chancey McCormick, guard, Ballard Duckworth, center, Rayford Hudson, end and center, Harley Rogers, end and A. G. Wren, guard. Experienced halfbacks are Edgar Harrison, Isaac Fife.

Boys who are bidding for backfield positions are Odell McDonald, O'Neal McDonald, Horace Haley, Ronald Daughty, Nick Anders, John Shuck, "Koot" Sawyer, Ed Braddock, Leonard Givens, Frank Sisk and Julius McKoin. Coach Binion is concentrating on Edgar Harrison and Isaac Fife for the position of calling signals on the team.

JENA STARTS WORK

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Jena Giants, high school football team, are beginning serious training for the coming season under the direction of Coach Hardtner Gaharan. M. J. Haynes is captain-elect for this year and Woodie Doshier is to serve as alternate captain. The first game on the Giants' schedule is to be played on Sept. 27, when they meet the strong high school team at Winnsboro.

LITTLE WINS AMATEUR TITLE WITH AMAZING FINISH

CHAMPION BEATS EMERY, 4 AND 2, IN FINAL MATCH

Eagle Climaxes Greatest Sub Par Scoring Streak In History

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

THE COUNTRY CLUB, CLEVELAND, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The big "Little man" with the "paralyzing punch" scored today his thirty-first consecutive knockout in national championship competition, and stands supreme for the second successive year as the world's greatest amateur golfer.

Lawson Little

William Lawson Little, Jr., the clouting Californian, withstood the spirited thrusts of a 23-year-old Oklahoma law student, tall blond Walter Emery, to capture his second straight American amateur title. He won by 4 and 2 with a finish that had old man par reeling on the ropes and his challenger staggering from sheer explosive power of his shot making.

The broad shouldered, hard hitting champion, figuratively speaking, got up off the soft green turf to prove his right to world championship golfing honors. He lost the first three holes to his surprisingly cool and calculating opponent, a freshman in U. S. amateur title play.

He was hard pressed to finish all even at the end of the first 18-hole round. He was unable throughout most of the second round to shake off a youthful challenger who simply refused to admit he could be licked until the champion landed the final "crusher."

The climax to perhaps the greatest sub par scoring streak ever witnessed in a national amateur championship came at the 512-yard 16th hole—the 34th and last of the match. The end was in sight, as Little had won two straight holes after having his margin cut to one hole, with five to go.

The gallery was waiting tensely for the "kill," but it came with even swifter fury than anticipated. With two tremendous wood wallops, Little reached the green, 12 feet from the cup, and sank his putt for an eagle three.

Nothing rivalling so pronounced a "killer instinct" in golf has ever been witnessed before, not even in the heyday of Bob Jones, world champion when he retired in 1930 with the "grand slam." A gallery of upwards of 4,000 fans was left gasping from the effect of Little's pulverizing shots—shots that have been mowing down all opponents at home and abroad over a two-year period.

In completing his second straight "Little slam"—triumphant this year and last in the amateur championships of both Great Britain and the United States—Little also established a scoring record that ranks with the most remarkable in golfing annals.

The Californian was five under par against Emery today for 34 holes. For eight successive victories during the match, in his dynamic march through the biggest field ever gathered for the American championship, he was exactly 19 shots under par over the heavily wooded 6,800-yard Country club course of Cleveland.

Against each and every challenge to his supremacy Little turned on a sub par blast that simply blew his opponent out of the picture.

The champion met his severest tests over the 36-hole route, against Johnny Goodman in yesterday's semi-finals and in today's final match. In both, his rivals rose to extraordinary heights, only to find their best golf no match for Little's booming counter thrusts.

Throughout the championship contest, a crowd of upwards of 4,000 fans frantically cheered Emery's gallant bids to overcome the consistently tremendous power and marvelous recuperative ability of the Californian.

PROVIDENCE SQUAD RETURNS FROM CAMP

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Lake Providence football squad returned from Lake Bruin this week-end, where the players spent a week in preparing for the hardest schedule in the history of the school. Coach H. H. Moorman and Principal C. E. Holley accompanied the squad to camp.

Although most of the material is inexperienced, a fair team is expected to represent the local high school. Due to lack of backs, Malcolm Lightsey, a former tackle, has been shifted to the backfield. The end positions will be capably handled by Howard and Sam Whatley, while Shockley and Erwin will hold down the tackle berths. Trim and Davis will be the guards and Boyd, a newcomer, will beat center.

"Red" Goode and Clarence Murray will be two of the starting backs while the other back will be selected from Harry Deal, Billy Bonner, A. M. Braswell, Vernon Bradley, Stamper, Bill Wyly and O. Z. Goode, Jr. Other candidates are Bill Davis, Pete King, Jim Henry, Gilfoil, John Chaney, George Baker, Boddie, John Dunn, Charles Surles, J. C. Donovan, Haynes Harkey, Jr., Rex Kervin and Jack McCain.

The famous Goldman band just has played its 1,000th concert in New York. Edwin Franko Goldman, its conductor, never has missed a concert in all that time.

TECH TIDINGS

By Ruston Sports Correspondent

RUSTON, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—It will be "Tech eat Tech" at the breakfast meal of the football menu now being perused by the Ruston varsity collegions. In their fall opening, Friday night, October 4, at their own stadium doorstep, the Louisiana Tech men will meet a team of their namesakes from Tennessee. If you are not personally acquainted with Tennessee Tech, let the Blue Book of colleges inform you that the institution is co-educational and state-supported, founded at Cookeville, Tenn., in 1915. Though still in its nonage, the college had an enrollment of 968 students at the last count listed, the boys and girls being about 50-50. Exclusive of the "better half" of its enrollment, Tennessee Tech probably has plenty of men for football material. Anyway, the Louisiana Techsters wouldn't be surprised if the Tennessee men are pretty good at gridironing. But even if they are as hard as nails, the Louisiana Tech men are the ones who will drive them judging by the hammering they are doing on the practice field.

Wiley Dons Uniform

Although a little late to shoot from taw with the rest of the Tech grid practicers, Don (Tallulah) Wiley got a move on him this week and reported at the Ruston training camp. Wiley, a 162-pound halfback, is a southpaw passer, and also boots from the portside. Head Coach Eddie McLane thinks Wiley's name is "worth putting in the papers"—and that coming from the chieftain is a whole paragraph.

Trying The Combinations

In their endeavors to build up a smooth-running piece of gridiron machinery, the Tech coaches have been experimenting with various backfield combinations comprising mixtures of experienced varsity men and sophomores. For example, in one backfield setup, they have been using Will Cotten of Oak Ridge, a senior, a right half. Three sophomores completing this quartet include Herman Hewett, Ruston, fullback; Guy Carroll, Homer, left half, and Don Darling, Ruston quarterback. In another merger are Wallace Hanna, Minden, sophomore, at right half; Billy Mitchell, Ruston, senior, left half; Archie Turner, Ferriday, senior fullback; and Jack Thigpen, Ruston, senior, and Carl Gardner Shreveport, sophomore, alternating at the quarterback post. Will Cotten with the advantage of two years of varsity credit, perhaps is the standout of the lot. The combines seem to be getting somewhere. All of the backs are running hard, but are somewhat lacking in their blocking ability, a deficiency which is receiving the attention of the mentors.

A Freshman Flash

Technically speaking, there is no such thing as a freshman football team of Louisiana Tech at this writing, because one must pay and enter before he can be called a freshman. After Monday, September 16, however, there will officially be some yearlings with a yen for football, and their schedule will be out subsequently. Here's a sample of it: The Tech Pups will play their first intercollegiate game with the Centenary Junior Gents in Shreveport, either on October 3 or October 4. Coach "Blue" Hogg hankers after the former date, since the Tech varsity open their season at Ruston on the fourth.

But The Coach Says No!

Gentlemen of the press, who feel that they will be cramped for time to "make" the morning papers with reports of night football games at Louisiana Tech, have tried to get "Boss" McLane to start the contests at 7:30 instead of 8 p. m. But the coach nods his noggin from east to west. He doesn't want the frenzied fans to be so rushed that they will come to the ball games nibbling their evening meal. Furthermore, he is counting on customers from Shreveport to Vicksburg, and from El Dorado to Baton Rouge, and many of them don't have airplanes. So the correspondents' request seems so null and void, so futile, so useless, so what?

Some Smithereen Smashers!

Defensive work of all six of the Tech tackles indicates that these boys will come to the support of their teammates like a rich uncle. These linemen who are catching on to their business are Houston Beaumont, Birmingham, Ala., "Wimpy" Giddens, Ringgold, "Bunker" Hill, Minden, James Mize, Shreveport, and Henry Stamm, Bonita, all sophomores, and Ras Neal, Monroe, a letter man of last year.

SEWANEE TO HAVE FIGHTING ELEVEN

Tigers Hope To Upset Several Favored Opponents This Year

SEWANEE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—It's spirit or ambition.

A squad of 30 Purple warriors is preparing for the coming season with all the zest and fire of a potential champion, willing to take the knocks from several foes if it can manage to upset a couple of traditional rivals.

Coach Hek Clark, unperturbed over the fact that his small band is far below championship caliber, says "there isn't a single man on the squad who isn't putting everything he has into it and who doesn't want to play football."

"Our team will be pretty light, as usual," he continued, "but I believe we will have a good defensive line."

Clark, a Sewanee athlete himself back in the days when foes shuddered at mention of the dreaded Tigers, admits that the team's offense is a big question mark.

In recent years, the team has been using a double and single wingback formation, but Clark says he is "not positive yet what style of play we'll be using this year." He added that this would be determined after the Tigers have thoroughly tested their aerial attack.

The Purple squad figures to be well fixed in the punting department with the veterans, Poage and Colmore, and Sophomore Montgomery displaying consistent kicking ability in practice.

Leaving title dreams for other conference mentors, Coach Clark drills his men twice daily, mainly hoping to prepare his spirited squad for a couple of climax performances against ancient grid foes.

The schedule:

Sept. 23, St. Louis university at St. Louis, night; Oct. 5, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Oct. 11, Mississippi at Clarksdale, night; Oct. 19, Tenn. Wesleyan at Sewanee; Oct. 26, Tulane at New Orleans; Nov. 2, Tenn. Tech at Sewanee; Nov. 9, Vanderbilt at Nashville; Nov. 16, Florida at Gainesville; Nov. 23, Miss. State at Starkville.

MONARCHS TO PLAY CITY STARS TODAY

Plans have been made for the celebration of "Frank Johnson day" at Casino park this afternoon. The movement is being pushed forward by local baseball enthusiasts who are taking an opportunity to show their appreciation to Johnson, manager of the Monroe Monarchs. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Johnson has managed the Monarchs for five years and every year since he has held reign he has put winning teams on the field. During his stay here he has won the southern championship of the Negro Southern league three times. Twice he has entered negro world series playoffs.

Last Saturday the team returned from a four months' tour of the middle west where it won 68 out of 88 games played, while dropping 18 and tying 2.

A game between the Monarchs and the City league stars will feature Homer Allen and Foster, local young hurlers with the Monarchs, pitting their strength against Hilton Smith, former Monarch who played with Bismarck, N. D., this year.

Manager Johnson will play every position on the team during the contest.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR FORDHAM '11'

Crowley's Lads To Be Hard To Beat And Hard To Pronounce

NEW YORK., Sept. 14.—(AP)—As tough a bunch of football players as there is in the country—to beat, to spell, even to pronounce—is Jimmy Crowley's entry in the big league football ranks at Fordham this fall.

For two years now, Sleepy Jim, one of Notre Dame's immortals as a member of the great four horsemen backfield, has been struggling patiently to instill in his amazing collection of big Poles, Lithuanians, Italians and Irish the great niceties and delicacies of the Rockne system.

Now, for the first time, they look as though they're beginning to really get it, and they're responding just in time to save not only Jim's famous good humor, but the Maroons' honor as well.

Jim is piecing his team together, aided by a collection of giant sophomores, after losing seven regulars and a total of 11 letter men from last fall by graduation. He has a fine working squad of about 40 big, powerful, fleet fellows and the only cut he has made, and probably will make, was Alex Wojciechowicz, who sheared down to Alex Woje for very apparent reasons. Woje probably will be his first string center, and his chief rival is Julius Miskinis.

Crowley's sophomores probably represent the greatest linguistical problem ever to face a Fordham coach where tough names are legendary. In addition to Wojciechowicz, he greeted this year Chet Napiorski, Al Barbartsky, Ed Woitkowski. The redeeming feature is that they're all great prospects. By a strange coincidence, his brightest sophomore is a boy named Emil Dul.

Two veteran backs are available in Capt. Joe Maniaci at one half and Joe Dulkie, fullback. Woje is so good that last year's center, Nat Pierce, will play one guard. Leo Paquin is a veteran end. He has two grand tackles in Amerino Sarno and Al Sabo, and there are plenty of husky candidates, swift and capable, for all positions.

The schedule: Sept. 28: Franklin and Marshall; Oct. 5: Boston college; 12: Purdue; 19: Vanderbilt; 26: Lebanon Valley; Nov. 2: Pittsburgh; 9: St. Mary's; 16: Muhlenberg; 28: New York university. All but the first and last games will be played at the Polo Grounds.

CHAPLIN WINS 24TH

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Tiny Chaplin pitched his 24th victory of the season today as Nashville defeated the Knoxville Smokies 10 to 1. Records showed Chaplin was the first to chalk up such a string of victories for the local club since Tom Rogers won 24 games back in 1916.

Score by innings:

Knoxville	000 000 100	1	5 1
Nashville	200 004 13x	10	20 0

Lanning, Moon and Bandy; Chaplin and Blaemire.

CHICKS WIN DUEL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Battling as though engaged in a series game, Memphis snatched a 2 to 1 victory from New Orleans today as Lynn Nelson limited the Pels to three hits, clinching third place in the league standing for the Chicks.

New Orleans scored in the fifth on Gleeson's triple and Rose's single. In the eighth, Reese singled, went to second on Duke's fly and scored on James' single. James tallied as Watwood doubled.

Score:

New Orleans	000 010 000	1	3 0
Memphis	000 000 02x	2	8 0

Milnar, Wetherell and Autry; Nelson and Powell.

LOOKOUTS BLANK CRAX

ATLANTA, Sept. 14. — (AP) — The Chattanooga Lookouts defeated the Atlanta Crackers here today, 4 to 0. Hansen, pitching for the Lookouts, limited the Crackers to two hits. Marion, Lookout centerfielder, got three hits in four times up.

Score:

Chattanooga	000 002 200	4	9 1
Atlanta	000 000 000	0	2 5

Hansen and Jackson; Thomas and Palmisano.

BARONS BLANK ROCKS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Charlie George, a rookie left hander, limited the Little Rock Travelers to three scattered singles tonight and the Birmingham Barons coasted to a 4 to 0 victory.

From the second to the eighth inning, George held the locals hitless. He struck out two, issued no bases on balls and only one Traveler reached third. Woodard led the visitors' attack with three hits in four trips to the plate.

The game was played as a feature of "Baseball Queens' Night" under a proclamation of Governor J. Marion Futrell, a beauty revue being staged at the conclusion of the game.

Score:

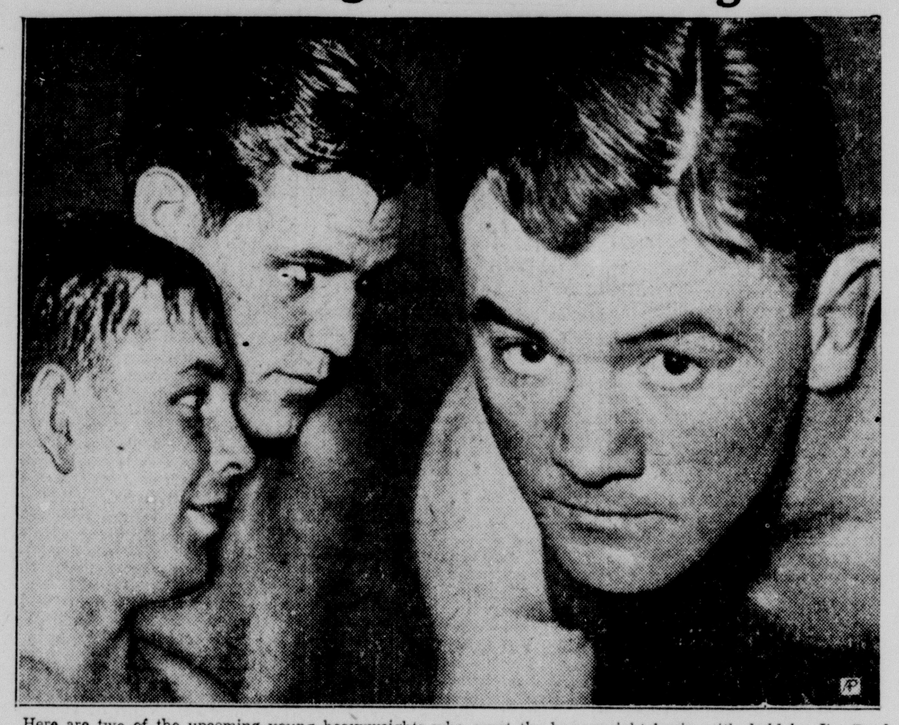

Birmingham	000 112 000	4	9 1
Little Rock	000 000 000	0	3 1

George and Cox; Porter and Rice.

CHIEFS TRIM NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Syracuse defeated Newark 5-2 tonight behind the three-hit pitching of Joe Mulligan, ending their International league play-off series with four straight victories. Nick D'Allesandro, Chief's left fielder, made five of his team's nine hits, two home runs, two singles and a double, for a perfect day at bat.

Little Known 'Prelim' Heavies Harbor Designs On Boxing Title

Here are two of the upcoming young heavyweights who covet the heavyweight boxing title held by Jim Braddock, and the ring game's "Cinderella Man" himself (right). Buddy Baer (top left), brother of Max, who was shorn of his title by Braddock's faithful left hand, is an enigma to the customers, but his bouts so far have been both brief and decisive. Ford Smith (lower left) belongs in the near-challenger class because he upset Art Lasky.

By Charles Norman

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—In this corner—the young heavyweights who may be fighting for the title in a year or two.

Joe Louis is already in the "big time" and Jacob (Buddy) Baer, having disposed of Jack Doyle, seems headed for that select company.

They don't send flashes from the ringside when the semi-finalists win, or you'd know the names of some of the others: Eddie Hogan and Eddie Mader; George Brescia and Ford Smith.

They've all got a wallop in the right and a left like a rapier—all, that is, except Buddy Baer. He's got the wallop in the right, but his left is more like a one-man battering ram—if it doesn't clip you, it knocks you down as it sweeps by. They've all shown courage and a businesslike way of mowing down the opposition. In short, they've got the ingredients that make a championship contender, and one of these days, one of these boys will be in there with the current wearer of fistiana's proudest bauble, the heavyweight championship of the word.

South American Threat

There's no disputing Joe Louis' right to contest "leading-contender" honors with Max Baer, former champion. The way he mowed down the ponderous Primo Carnera sent a thrill and a chill through the huge crowd that saw it.

But on the same card that night was a fighter from the Argentine who showed color and class and who loomed spectacularly in the minds of fight fans. He came into the ring with a gorgeous dressing gown. His hair was neat. Someone remarked that he would have to be good to get away with his appearance. And he delivered.

His name is George Brescia. The gong sounded and instantly one of the most beautiful left hands ever seen around these parts popped into action. It was the kind of left that tossed his opponent's head back and seemed about to tear it off. And while the left was doing its deadly work, the right went into action. In the middle of the second round, Brescia's opponent went down and was counted out.

The night James J. Braddock lefthanded his way to the title against Max Baer saw another promising fighter pitted against a tried veteran. The way he went after the more experienced battler made wise heads nod. He had a baby face with a studious expression and steely eyes. He looked like Gene Tunney and he romped off with the decision. His name is Eddie Hogan.

The night Buddy Baer battered down Jack Doyle at the Garden in less than a round, a preliminary fight made the rafters ring with the cheers and applause of fight fans.

A Walloping Duo

It was a 6-rounder featuring Terry Mitchell of Boston and Eddie Mader of New York. They wasted no time on feinting or waltzes. From the opening gong they slugged away, fighting every inch of the way, and between rounds the fans stood and cheered because they were watching two real fighting men.

Mitchell is a wildcat of a fighter, a never-rest puncher, who can take it as well as dish it out. And once the bell rang, with the fans cheering so wildly that they didn't hear it, and they stood in Mader's corner and rained leather.

When it looked as though neither youngster could do any more, Mader opened up in the last minute and whacked the daylights out of Mitchell. He looked impressive and he had to be to get by "Terrible Terry."

Buddy Puzzles Experts

Buddy Baer remains an enigma among the new and promising heavyweights. His 238-pound bulk goes loping and careening across the ring at his opponent, or bears down ominously like a galleon menacing a sloop—the closest things to a Juggenaut fight fans have gazed at. His two battles here, lasting less than a round each, failed to disclose what he has, if anything, besides weight and ambition. The matchmakers helped to keep the customers in the dark by tossing fighters in against him who looked frail, fragile and frightened before the start—and massacred afterward.

The only fight on the horizon that looks—on paper—like to answer to the fight fan's prayer is the Max Baer-Jo Louis imbroglio, September 24, in the Yankee stadium.

Ford Smith stopped Art Lasky, so he's in the running until someone sidetracks him. It was Braddock's victory over Lasky that gave pugilism's "Cinderella man" the shot at Baer's crown, and Braddock wrapped it up and took it home to the kiddies.

Foxx, Cramer And Higgins Likely To Go To Red Sox

(By NEA Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—With the Athletics so deep in red ink that the grand old die-hard, Connie Mack, is stumping the American league in the interests of night baseball, the venerable leader is expected to bail out the Philadelphia club and then some this fall by selling James Emory Foxx, Roger Cramer, and Pinky Higgins to the immensely rich Boston Red Sox.

That would be a fairly important deal.

After seeing a pronounced lead dissipated by the New York Giants for the second straight season, Bill Terry may not even wait for the world series to be concluded before handing the faithful Phillies Roy Parmelee, Hughie Critz, Mark Koenig, and $50,000 for Dolph Camilli and Curt Davis.

There is no question but that young Thomas Austin Yawkey is keenly disappointed with his fifth place Red Sox to whom the Hub patrons have remained so loyal. Joe Cronin realizes that the array will be even weaker in 1936 unless there are replacements.

"Wes Ferrell and Bob Grove can't be expected to carry on again next year the way they have this season," says Cronin. "It would be brutal to expect them to go out there and hurl winning ball day in and day out only to see us fail to hat in enough runs for them to win—especially Grove.

Mack Paves Way

"We need at least one great slugger and at least one other good hitter. Why, just the other afternoon we left 22 men on the bases in one game. Twenty-two! Imagine! Just think what a Foxx, a Hank Greenberg, or a Lou Gehrig would have meant to us that day. It's been that way all season. We're in the market. We'll talk business with anybody."

Gehrig and Greenberg are not for sale at any price, but, with the Athletics requiring ready cash and few in Philadelphia caring one way or the other, it is reasonable to suspect that Yawkey, who is down to his last $38,000,000, will purchase Foxx. And in disposing of his home-run hitter, Mack might just as well go all the way and get all he can for Cramer and Higgins, too.

Foxx has repeatedly expressed a desire to escape from Shibe park.

Mack's statement that only two members of his 1935 team, Wally Moses and little Rabbit Warstler, hustled is taken by many as a warning intended to muffle, if possible, the cries of the few Philadelphia fans interested enough to complain when the barter is disclosed.

Foxx and Higgins, the long range swatters, and Cramer, bidding for the batting championship, haven't been on their toes, according to the tall tactician. Any club with the price would like to have Foxx, Higgins, and Cramer.

Moses and Warstler have beared down, according to Mack. But Moses has a broken arm and Warstler would have a tough time landing another position in the majors if given his outright release.

A's Have Men

The Red Sox have given up on Babe Dahlgren, who would be succeeded by Foxx at first base. The Boston management has an idea that Bill Werber was a one-year wonder. He would be succeeded by Higgins at third base. Foxx and Higgins are the great sluggers of whom Cronin speaks, and Cramer the other good hitter.

Terry seeks Camilli as a replacement for himself at first base for the Giants.

Davis would be expected to fill the shoes of Parmelee, who in recent weeks has been shelled from the hillock as regularly as he formerly won.

Critz has slowed down, but in late games has proved an improvement over Koenig, who practically stopped after getting off to a fine start.

Al Cuccinello is slated to start the season at second base for the Giants next spring.

In face of his performances of 1933 and '34 and in the early going this year, Terry may be losing patience with Parmelee a bit too soon. But the Giants' collapsible tendencies require desperate measures.

BASTROP STARTS SEASON FRIDAY

Rams To Place Light And Inexperienced Grid Team On Field

BASTROP, Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Bastrop High school Rams will make their 1935 debut next Friday afternoon on the local gridiron when they will meet the Farmerville High school team here. The game will begin at 3:30 o'clock.

The Rams finished two weeks of strenuous practice Saturday and Coach "Dutch" Binino announced that with a few days more preparation, the Rams will be in good condition to usher in their 1935 season. During the past several days, the squad has been scrimmaging with a team from the Bastrop CCC camp.

Plans were announced this week by high school officials for the inauguration next week of an intensive advance sale of season tickets. Five games will be played in Bastrop this year, all with strong teams.

With only a handful of lettermen back from last year to form the nucleus of a team, Coach Binion is faced with the task this year of building up a team with practically new material. More than two-thirds of the members of the squad have not played football before. The team this year will be fast but light, as has been the case with all Ram teams during the past few years, the average weight of team not expected to be over 135 pounds.

One of the toughest schedules in years has been arranged for the Rams this season, with ten games on the program. A feature of the schedule is the resumption of football relations with the Haynesville Golden Tornado.

Other strong teams on the schedule are Crossett, Mangham, Oak Grove, Ouachita Parish, Ruston, Jonesboro, Rayville and Neville, in the order named. The Rams will play Neville here on Thanksgiving day and will meet the Ouachita Parish team in Monroe on October 24.

Linemen who have played football before are Tom Frank Naff, tackle, Francis Handy, captain and tackle, Chancey McCormick, guard, Ballard Duckworth, center, Rayford Hudson, end and center, Harley Rogers, end and A. G. Wren, guard. Experienced halfbacks are Edgar Harrison, Isaac Fife.

Boys who are bidding for backfield positions are Odell McDonald, O'Neal McDonald, Horace Haley, Ronald Daughty, Nick Anders, John Shuck, "Koot" Sawyer, Ed Braddock, Leonard Givens, Frank Sisk and Julius McKoin. Coach Binion is concentrating on Edgar Harrison and Isaac Fife for the position of calling signals on the team.

JENA STARTS WORK

JENA, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—The Jena Giants, high school football team, are beginning serious training for the coming season under the direction of Coach Hardtner Gaharan. M. J. Haynes is captain-elect for this year and Woodie Doshier is to serve as alternate captain. The first game on the Giants' schedule is to be played on Sept. 27, when they meet the strong high school team at Winnsboro.

LARUE AND MAYNARD MEET IN STADIUM FEATURE

RETURN MATCH IS EXPECTED TO BE 'GRUDGE BATTLE'

Frenchman Seeks Revenge For Previous Defeat By South African

Frenchie LaRue will have an opportunity to get revenge on Al Maynard Wednesday night. The two have been booked for a return match as the main event of the weekly wrestling show at Roosevelt stadium, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced last night.

LaRue and Maynard tangled a couple of weeks ago in a fast, wild match and Frenchie was about to win the third and deciding fall, after knocking Al from the ring four times, when Maynard reached over the ropes, pulled himself inside by Frenchie's head and then fell on top of LaRue as they struggled in the ropes. The referee quickly awarded the deciding fall to Maynard while LaRue protested that they were half out of the ring and the hold should have been broken. It looked that way to the crowd, also, but that didn't change the referee's decision.

LaRue asked for a return match with Maynard last week, but Promoter Bruscato decided to send the South African against Hank Metheney and let LaRue referee the match. Frenchie and Al clashed frequently during last Wednesday night's brawl and that didn't help the feeling between the two.

Following last week's show, LaRue asked for another shot at Maynard, and with both of 'em on the scene, Bruscato quickly got them on the dotted line.

Maynard has been battering his opponents into submission with regularity since he made his local debut about two months ago, and he said after he had signed for another match with LaRue that he would flatten the Frenchman again. The South African husky is about as rough a grappler as has shown here this summer, and he undoubtedly will "shoot the works" against his old enemy, LaRue.

Maynard weighs 222 pounds, and he knows plenty of holds besides the rough ones. However, he prefers to use shady tactics in beating his opponents and rarely resorts to scientific methods.

LaRue formerly gained quite a reputation as a "villain" here, but after an absence of several months, he returned to the stadium and has more or less behaved himself ever since. He occasionally reverts to his old rough and tumble tactics but not until his opponent has forced him to it.

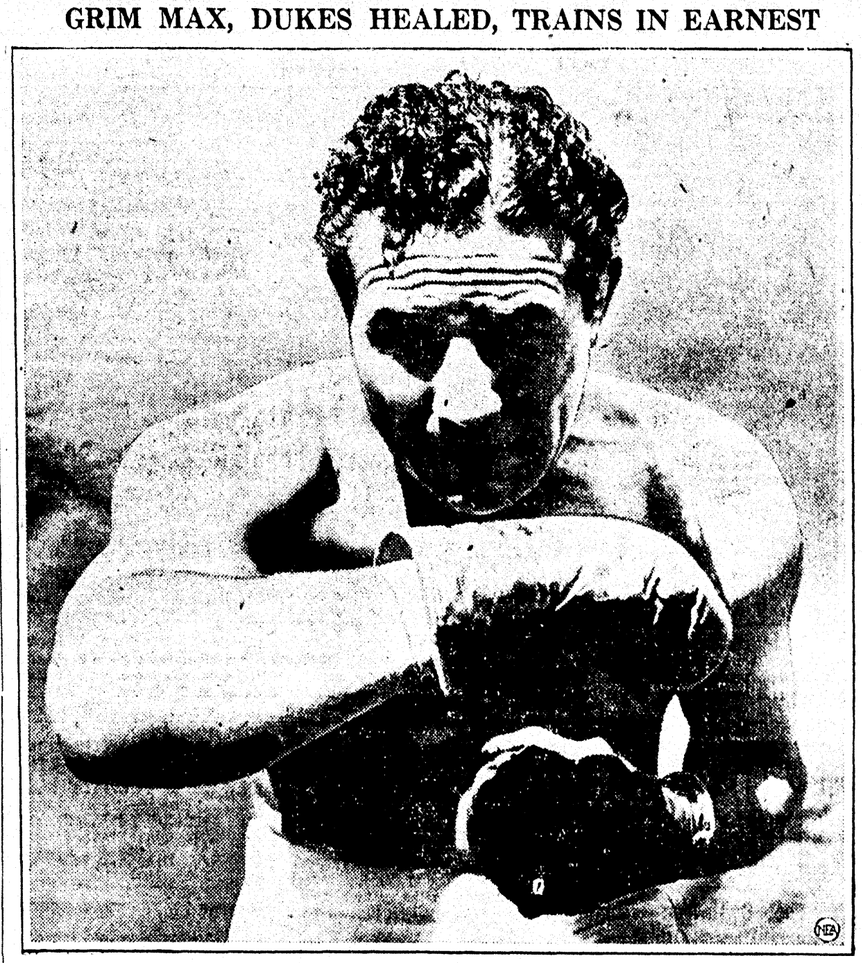

It is expected that he will have plenty of opportunity to battle Maynard along Al's own lines Wednesday night, however. Soon after the start of their previous match, Maynard began his rough stuff and after taking it for five or ten minutes, Frenchie was forced to defend himself with similar weapons. From then on out, it was a hectic battle that had the fans in an uproar.

LaRue will be spotting Maynard five pounds in weight, the Frenchman tipping the beam at 217.

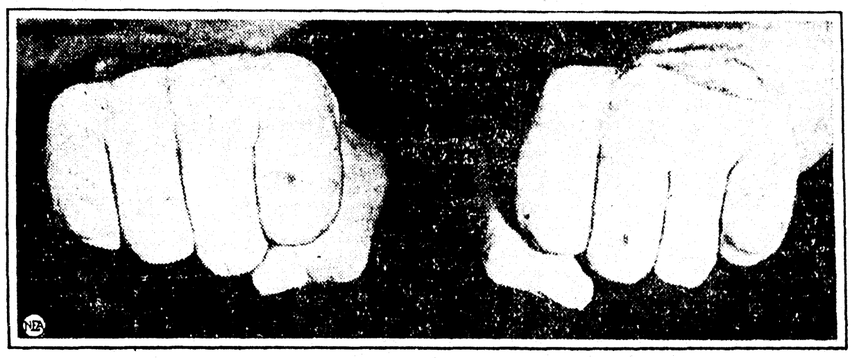

The bout will be best two out of three falls, with a two-hour time limit.

Bruscato announced last night that Bill Reilly, well known grappler and official, will referee the match. He said he was attempting to line up a good semi-final to complete the show.

GRIM MAX, DUKES HEALED, TRAINS IN EARNEST

Max Baer . . . grim-visaged and serious, is training at his Speculator, N. Y., camp for his fight with Joe Louis, all traces of his play-boy past vanished.

The hands that were swollen from injuries received in his fight with Braddock, and before that in an exhibition fray with Eddie Simms in Cleveland, have responded to treatment and now are the rock-like Baer fists of Maxie at his best.

Experts Pick Louis To Beat Baer By Knockout

General Concensus Is That Fight Won't Go Beyond Seventh

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Sports editors and fight experts from Boston to California, every man Jack of them eyewitnesses to the greatest accomplishments of both warriors, pick Joe Louis by a ratio of almost two to one to knock out Max Baer in the Yankee Stadium a week from Tuesday night.

The Associated Press asked these men to cast their ballots today on the probable outcome of a duel that promises to be the most sensational and richest in years. They went gallantly out on a limb, 41 of them picking the negro sensation to flatten the former heavyweight champion, and 23 choosing Baer by a knockout.

Strangely the average of all the rounds named for the knockout was the seventh for both sides, indicating the general belief that the battle should end less than half way along the fifteen-round route. A half a dozen picked Louis to win the decision, while eight named Baer by that method.

New York writers, almost to a man, pick the sable sphinx from Detroit to knock Max out, though Hype Igoe of the Journal likes Baer, and Paul Gallico of the News has picked both at one time or another. Cas Adams and Dick Vidmer of the Tribune, Joe Williams and Walter Stewart of the World-Telegram, James P. Dawson of the Times, Ed Frayne of the American, all pick Louis to win, mostly by early knockouts.

Mid-western experts leaned toward Baer, with the exception of Detroiters who voted solidly for the home boy, Louis, while Californians favored Baer in the main.

The Associated Press critics were evenly divided in their choices, all predicting a knockout. Alan Gould, the sports editor, picks Louis to win in sixth, while this writer thinks Baer will come through in tenth. Charles W. Dunkley, choosing from Chicago, names Louis in fifth, while Russ Newland in San Francisco likes Baer inside of ten.

BAER TURNS LOOSE

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs dropped into Max Baer's training camp today and saw the former heavyweight champion turn loose the best punching exhibition of his training grind for the match with Joe Louis at the Yankee stadium Sept. 24.

Willie McGee and Tony Cancela stood up against Maxie in the first four rounds, although absorbing plenty of punishment, but Paul Pross took a hard right to the chin and was unable to finish his two-round stint.

Jacobs expressed himself as much impressed by Baer's "fine condition, his steady boxing and punching skill." Joe Jacobs, manager of the ex-champion Max Schmeling, said he thought Baer "was punching harder than ever before in his career."

LOUIS IS 'HOT'

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Joe Louis put on a torrid exhibition of glove-throwing in his outdoor arena today, having braved the damp and chilly weather to accommodate a crowd of 1,500 that clamored to pay money at the gates.

It had been planned to hold the workout indoors but the gymnasium was far too small to accommodate the crowd. The bomber donned a heavy sweatshirt and traveled two rounds each with Paul Cavalier, Lew Flowers and Bob Moody and one with Roy Williams. The workout was featured by several furious exchanges between Louis and Cavalier, the latter standing toe to toe with the bomber and exchanging punch for punch.

RED SOX WHIP BROWNS

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Stewart Bowers, 19-year-old Gettysburg college sophomore, pitched the Red Sox to a 5 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns this afternoon. He gave eight passes and allowed eight hits but was effective with men on base.

St. Louis used four pitchers and the game virtually was decided in the seventh when a base on balls to Cooke by Walkup and Cronin's ninth home run of the season, off Knott, gave Boston a 5 to 2 lead.

SENATORS WIN AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A new Washington season record for successive victories—five straight—was hung up by the Senators today as they defeated the Cleveland Indians 5 to 1.

The Senators scored three in the second on three hits and a walk including triples by Bolton and Schulte, and added another in the fourth when Schulte doubled to score Kuhel. Washington's last run came in the seventh when, with the bases filled, Myer scored on Knickerbocker's error.

Bobby Jones Says

A letter from Elmhurst, Illinois, encloses two clippings, one of an article by Bob MacDonald, the other of a similar effort of my own. The writer has underscored a bit of each. He writes, "Next to your teachings, I have found Bob MacDonald's of great service. I have taken lessons at his driving range. The only difference I find is that you recommend a greater use of the hips than he does."

The underscoring invites a comparison of these portions of the two articles.

Of mine, he has underlined the statement, "It is safe to say that not one player in a thousand turns his hips enough."

And of MacDonald's: "Many golfers permit the hips to turn too freely. That puts the backswing too much into the body, and shows too that the right leg has not sufficiently resisted the body turning."

Employ Muscles of Waist, Back

Certainly, if MacDonald's statement should be construed to mean that most golfers turn their hips too freely, his experience and observations differ from my own. Earlier in the article of the clipping is the statement that "it is in the use of the muscles of the waist and back that the average golfer is most deficient." This is precisely as I see it. The flat-footed player, with meager leg-work and restricted wind-up, whose swing is fast and short, is still a quite familiar example. But when MacDonald writes that "many" golfers turn too freely, he may not mean that most of them do so.

He calls attention to the "absence of any sidewise thrust of the hips" in the backswing represented in the pictures accompanying his article, and then continues, "If the hips moved laterally, the right leg would be forced into an upright position underneath the body. Any such position is weak for the reason that the right leg cannot yield and at the same time resist." This, together with his reference to "putting the backswing too much into the body" causes me to believe that MacDonald is thinking of the kind of swing that moves head, shoulders, and hips around and backward without any groove or any semblance of anchorage. Such action is really not a swing at all and is rarely found elsewhere than among rank beginners or hopeless duffers. The faults are too gross to allow a classification under the simple heading of "restricted hip-turn."

Lateral Shift Unnecessary

Referring again to my article one will find the statement that "the correct swing travels around the body, carried there by the hips and shoulders turning around the spine as an axis." Certainly this implies "an absence of any sidewise thrust of the hips" during the backswing. No more than MacDonald am I able to see any need or reason for the lateral shift going back if the ball has been properly placed opposite the heel or instep of the left foot. The correct action is a simple turn about the axis I have described, which brings the outside of the right leg, seen in silhouette, into an approximately straight line, at moderate inclination to the vertical, according to the width of the player's stance.

The right leg does not resist the turning of the hips in the sense that it gets itself out in front and holds back the turn. How the hips can be turned at all without the cooperation of both legs, I am unable to understand. Plainly MacDonald can only mean that the right leg must resist any lateral movement of the hips; in other words, it must help in holding the body in place so that it can turn upon its axis. The only resistance to be offered to the turn comes from the other side when the hips can go no farther because of the tension in the muscles of the right leg.

Make the body turn in the backswing. Bobby Jones tells how in his latest leaflet: "Make Ample Use of the Legs and Hips." A three cent stamped self addressed envelope will bring it to your door.

While Bobby Jones will be glad to answer as many readers' questions in this column as possible, it will be impossible for him to answer letters personally. Write your problems to him care of Monroe Morning World.

victory for the fast-stepping Cubs and the 32-run total for the two teams set a new high mark for the season.

Seven flingers worked for Brooklyn and gave up 18 hits. The Dodgers tossed in four errors. The Cubs ran up an 8-0 lead in the first three innings and doubled the count in the sixth to make it 16-4.

The Dodgers, using 21 players, fought back and drove Charley Root to cover after pounding out five runs in the seventh with the aid of homers by Jim Buchel and Buster Mills.

Teddy Yarosz's Middleweight Crown Threatened By Navy Champ

By John J. Romano

Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buff were the only members of Uncle Sam's sea forces to win world's titles in the professional boxing ranks. Battling Skee, as he was known to his shipmates, did not live up to the traditions of a rip-snorting battler sailors love to see in action. Coming up at a time when the rank and file was devoid of two-fisted sluggers Sharkey boxed his way to a questionable decision over Max Schmeling to win the title and then lost it to Primo Carnera, as the result of an uppercut exploded under his jaw.

The Binghamton Lithuanian took the name of a grand navy battler who used to go over to Vallejo, Calif., on Saturday night leaves to match wallop for wallop with the best bruisers on the coast to the immense delight of his shipmates. The sailor's name was Tom Sharkey. He fought with stubbornness and distinction.

In that memorable fight against Jim Jeffries, the husky sailor went through 25 rounds with two broken ribs. The fight was recorded by the movies of that early day. Something went wrong with the lights and the men, to earn the few extra dollars, went through several extra rounds under blazing lights that took more out of them than the work involved. The Sharkey we knew in later years would not have gone through that ordeal for less than a good sized fortune. That was the difference between Tom and Jack Sharkey.

Johnny Lisky was a different fighter and a credit to the navy. He was only a mite in size but he carried a wallop in both hands. Under the name of Johnny Buff, he won the American flyweight title and the world's bantamweight championship.

Moran And His "Mary Ann"

Before Sharkey we had Frank Moran and his famous "Mary Ann." This was a roundhouse right which so many fighters thought easy to block. But Moran heaved it with such skill and speed that many knockouts resulted. Moran never got a chance at the title. The nearest he came to it was when Jess Willard consented to meet Moran at the old Madison Square Garden in a no-decision contest. Cautious after his victory over Jack Johnson at Havana, big Jess was not taking any chances with the former quartermaster of the U. S. S. Pittsburgh. It is a good thing he didn't because Moran outscored him and outpunched him all the way.

The record books are filled with accounts of sailor champions who failed to make the grade. At the present time Ford Smith, who boasts a technical knockout over Art Lasky, is the latest to make a bid for heavyweight honors. Smith has been beaten before and no one really has a line on his true ability. Opening an old cut over a rival's eye does not establish one's worth in the prize ring. A clean knockout or a decisive point decision is a better way to establish one's value in the eyes of the fans. Smith has not done that and so for the present time cannot be rated with the Sharkeys.

A lighter man in the person of Ken Overlin threatens to add his name to that of Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buff. Six years ago Overlin was just another carefree young man in his native Decatur, Ill. He was attracted to the navy by the highly colored posters offering his free board and clothes and a chance to see the world. Ken enlisted and was assigned to a battle cruiser making an extended voyage to the Orient. Athletics play a big part in the development of Uncle Sam's nephews. While in high school Overlin made his mark in basketball and football. He made the ship's team in both sports but shone in the former where he caged more baskets than any member of the team.

Has Commendable Record

In off seasons Overlin took up boxing. Blessed with a sturdy body, a keen eye and an aptitude for learning, it was not long before he was champion of the Asiatic squadron. Returning home too late to take part in the all-navy championships, Overlin was restric

LARUE AND MAYNARD MEET IN STADIUM FEATURE

RETURN MATCH IS EXPECTED TO BE 'GRUDGE BATTLE'

Frenchman Seeks Revenge For Previous Defeat By South African

Frenchie LaRue will have an opportunity to get revenge on Al Maynard Wednesday night. The two have been booked for a return match as the main event of the weekly wrestling show at Roosevelt stadium, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced last night.

LaRue and Maynard tangled a couple of weeks ago in a fast, wild match and Frenchie was about to win the third and deciding fall, after knocking Al from the ring four times, when Maynard reached over the ropes, pulled himself inside by Frenchie's head and then fell on top of LaRue as they struggled in the ropes. The referee quickly awarded the deciding fall to Maynard while LaRue protested that they were half out of the ring and the hold should have been broken. It looked that way to the crowd, also, but that didn't change the referee's decision.

LaRue asked for a return match with Maynard last week, but Promoter Bruscato decided to send the South African against Hank Metheney and let LaRue referee the match. Frenchie and Al clashed frequently during last Wednesday night's brawl and that didn't help the feeling between the two.

Following last week's show, LaRue asked for another shot at Maynard, and with both of 'em on the scene, Bruscato quickly got them on the dotted line.

Maynard has been battering his opponents into submission with regularity since he made his local debut about two months ago, and he said after he had signed for another match with LaRue that he would flatten the Frenchman again. The South African husky is about as rough a grappler as has shown here this summer, and he undoubtedly will "shoot the works" against his old enemy, LaRue.

Maynard weighs 222 pounds, and he knows plenty of holds besides the rough ones. However, he prefers to use shady tactics in beating his opponents and rarely resorts to scientific methods.

LaRue formerly gained quite a reputation as a "villain" here, but after an absence of several months, he returned to the stadium and has more or less behaved himself ever since. He occasinoally reverts to his old rough and tumble tactics but not until his opponent has forced him to it.

It is expected that he will have plenty of opportunity to battle Maynard along Al's own lines Wednesday night, however. Soon after the start of their previous match, Maynard began his rough stuff and after taking it for five or ten minutes, Frenchie was forced to defend himself with similar weapons. From then on out, it was a hectic battle that had the fans in an uproar.

LaRue will be spotting Maynard five pounds in weight, the Frenchman tipping the beam at 217.

The bout will be best two out of three falls, with a two-hour time limit.

Bruscato announced last night that Bill Reilly, well known grappler and official, will referee the match. He said he was attempting to line up a good semi-final to complete the show.

SOUTHERN SERIES OPEN WEDNESDAY

'Shaughnessy' Playoff System Being Used By League This Year

ATLANTA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Shaughnessy playoff system, "cussed" and discussed since the Southern association adopted the plan for the first time last spring, furnishes the coup de grace next week to the 1935 pennant battle.

Completing the regularly scheduled 154-game campaign, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis and Nashville will square off in the opening series of the playoff starting Wednesday. These four clubs were rewarded with the honor by finishing in the upper division of the eight-team league.

Atlanta and New Orleans clinched first and second places, respectively, several days ago. The results of today's play settled the other two positions, Memphis taking third place and Nashville fourth. Each has one game tomorrow, but the outcome cannot change their relative standings.

In the playoff, Atlanta's Crackers, who ran away with first place after leading most of the season, engage the fourth-place team, and New Orleans plays the third-place club in three-out-of-five game series. The victors then clash in the same number of contests for the championship pennant and the right to meet the Texas league winner in the Dixie series.

GRIM MAX, DUKES HEALED, TRAINS IN EARNEST

Max Baer . . . grim-visaged and serious, is training at his Speculator, N. Y., camp for his fight with Joe Louis, all traces of his play-boy past vanished.

The hands that were swollen from injuries received in his fight with Braddock, and before that in an exhibition fray with Eddie Simms in Cleveland, have responded to treatment and now are the rock-like Baer fists of Maxie at his best.

Experts Pick Louis To Beat Baer By Knockout

General Concensus Is That Fight Won't Go Beyond Seventh

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Sports editors and fight experts from Boston to California, every man Jack of them eyewitnesses to the greatest accomplishments of both warriors, pick Joe Louis by a ratio of almost two to one to knock out Max Baer in the Yankee Stadium a week from Tuesday night.

The Associated Press asked these men to cast their ballots today on the probable outcome of a duel that promises to be the most sensational and richest in years. They went gallantly out on a limb, 41 of them picking the negro sensation to flatten the former heavyweight champion, and 23 choosing Baer by a knockout.

Strangely the average of all the rounds named for the knockout was the seventh for both sides, indicating the general belief that the battle should end less than half way along the fifteen-round route. A half a dozen picked Louis to win the decision, while eight named Baer by that method.

New York writers, almost to a man, pick the sable sphinx from Detroit to knock Max out, though Hype Igoe of the Journal likes Baer, and Paul Gallico of the News has picked both at one time or another. Cas Adams and Dick Vidmer of the Tribune, Joe Williams and Walter Stewart of the World-Telegram, James P. Dawson of the Times, Ed Frayne of the American, all pick Louis to win, mostly by early knockouts.

Mid-western experts leaned toward Baer, with the exception of Detroiters who voted solidly for the home boy, Louis, while Californians favored Baer in the main.

The Associated Press critics were evenly divided in their choices, all predicting a knockout. Alan Gould, the sports editor, picks Louis to win in sixth, while this writer thinks Baer will come through in tenth. Charles W. Dunkley, choosing from Chicago, names Louis in fifth, while Russ Newland in San Francisco likes Baer inside of ten.

BAER TURNS LOOSE

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs dropped into Max Baer's training camp today and saw the former heavyweight champion turn loose the best punching exhibition of his training grind for the match with Joe Louis at the Yankee stadium Sept. 24.

Willie McGee and Tony Cancela stood up against Maxie in the first four rounds, although absorbing plenty of punishment, but Paul Pross took a hard right to the chin and was unable to finish his two-round stint.

Jacobs expressed himself as much impressed by Baer's "fine condition, his steady boxing and punching skill. Joe Jacobs, manager of the ex-champion Max Schmeling, said he thought Baer "was punching harder than ever before in his career."

LOUIS IS 'HOT'

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Joe Louis put on a torrid exhibition of glove-throwing in his outdoor arena today, having braved the damp and chilly weather to accommodate a crowd of 1,500 that clamored to pay money at the gates.

It had been planned to hold the workout indoors but the gymnasium was far too small to accommodate the crowd. The bomber donned a heavy sweatshirt and traveled two rounds each with Paul Cavalier, Lew Flowers and Bob Moody and one with Roy Williams. The workout was featured by several furious exchanges between Louis and Cavalier, the latter standing toe to toe with the bomber and exchanging punch for punch.

victorious 2 to 1 in the ten-inning nightcap.

The Sox staged a two-run rally in the ninth inning of the first game which gave Lyons the victory over Rookie Woodrow Upchurch, young lefthander.

Rip Radcliff singled in the tenth inning of the nightcap, advanced when Al Simmons walked, and came home with the winning run on Zeke Bonura's safety to, right.

RED SOX WHIP BROWNS

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Stewart Bowers, 19-year-old Gettysburg college sophomore, pitched the Red Sox to a 5 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns this afternoon. He gave eight passes and allowed eight hits but was effective with men on base.

St. Louis used four pitchers and the game virtually was decided in the seventh when a base on balls to Cooke by Walkup and Cronin's ninth home run of the season, off Knott, gave Boston a 5 to 2 lead.

SENATORS WIN AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A new Washington season record for successive victories—five straight—was hung up by the Senators today as they defeated the Cleveland Indians 5 to 1.

The Senators scored three in the second on three hits and a walk including triples by Bolton and Schulte, and added another in the fourth when Schulte doubled to score Kuhel. Washington's last run came in the seventh when, with the bases filled, Myer scored on Knickerbocker's error.

Bobby Jones Says

A letter from Elmhurst, Illinois, encloses two clippings, one of an article by Bob MacDonald, the other of a similar effort of my own. The writer has underscored a bit of each. He writes, "Next to your teachings, I have found Bob MacDonald's of great service. I have taken lessons at his driving range. The only difference I find is that you recommend a greater use of the hips than he does."

The underscoring invites a comparison of these portions of the two articles.

Of mine, he has underlined the statement, "It is safe to say that not one player in a thousand turns his hips enough."

And of MacDonald's: "Many golfers permit the hips to turn too freely. That puts the backswing too much into the body, and shows too that the right leg has not sufficiently resisted the body turning."

Employ Muscles of Waist, Back

Certainly, if MacDonald's statement should be construed to mean that most golfers turn their hips too freely, his experience and observations differ from my own. Earlier in the article of the clipping is the statement that "it is in the use of the muscles of the waist and back that the average golfer is most deficient." This is precisely as I see it. The flat-footed player, with meager leg-work and restricted wind-up, whose swing is fast and short, is still a quite familiar example. But when MacDonald writes that "many" golfers turn too freely, he may not mean that most of them do so.

He calls attention to the "absence of any sidewise thrust of the hips" in the backswing represented in the pictures accompanying his article, and then continues, "If the hips moved laterally, the right leg would be forced into an upright position underneath the body. Any such position is weak for the reason that the right leg cannot yield and at the same time resist." This, together with his reference to "putting the backswing too much into the body" causes me to believe that MacDonald is thinking of the kind of swing that moves head, shoulders, and hips around and backward without any groove or any semblance of anchorage. Such action is really not a swing at all and is rarely found elsewhere than among rank beginners or hopeless duffers. The faults are too gross to allow a classification under the simple heading of "restricted hip-turn."

Lateral Shift Unnecessary

Referring again to my article one will find the statement that "the correct swing travels around the body, carried there by the hips and shoulders turning around the spine as an axis." Certainly this implies "an absence of any sidewise thurst of the hips" during the backswing. No more than MacDonald am I able to see any need or reason for the lateral shift going back if the ball has been properly placed opposite the heel or instep of the left foot. The correct action is a simple turn about the axis I have described, which brings the outside of the right leg, seen in silhouette, into an approximately straight line, at moderate inclination to the vertical, according to the width of the player's stance.

The right leg does not resist the turning of the hips in the sense that it gets itself out in front and holds back the turn. How the hips can be turned at all without the cooperation of both legs, I am unable to understand. Plainly MacDonald can only mean that the right leg must resist any lateral movement of the hips; in other words, it must help in holding the body in place so that it can turn upon its axis. The only resistance to be offered to the turn comes from the other side when the hips can go no farther because of the tension in the muscles of the right leg.

Make the body turn in the backswing. Bobby Jones tells how in his latest leaflet: "Make Ample Use of the Legs and Hips." A three cent stamped self addressed envelope will bring it to your door.

While Bobby Jones will be glad to answer as many readers' questions in this column as possible, it will be impossible for him to answer letters personally. Write your problems to him care of Monroe Morning World.

victory for the fast-stepping Cubs and the 32-run total for the two teams set a new high mark for the season.

Seven flingers worked for Brooklyn and gave up 18 hits. The Dodgers tossed in four errors. The Cubs ran up an 8-0 lead in the first three innings and doubled the count in the sixth to make it 16-4.

The Dodgers, using 21 players, fought back and drove Charley Root to cover after pounding out five runs in the seventh with the aid of homers by Jim Buchel and Buster Mills.

PHILS TRIM PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A last inning three-run rally gave Philadelphia a 7 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today. The Phillies battered Cy Blanton for four hits in the final inning, after he had held them scoreless for five frames.

Blanton was pulled in favor of Waite Hoyt who finished without allowing a hit.

Teddy Yarosz's Middleweight Crown Threatened By Navy Champ

By John J. Romano

Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buff were the only members of Uncle Sam's sea forces to win world's titles in the professional boxing ranks. Battling Skee, as he was known to his shipmates, did not live up to the traditions of a rip-snorting battler sailors love to see in action. Coming up at a time when the rank and file was devoid of two-fisted sluggers Sharkey boxed his way to a questionable decision over Max Schmeling to win the title and then lost it to Primo Carnera, as the result of an uppercut exploded under his jaw.

The Binghamton Lithuanian took the name of a grand navy battler who used to go over to Vallejo, Calif., on Saturday night leaves to match wallop for wallop with the best bruisers on the coast to the immense delight of his shipmates. The sailor's name was Tom Sharkey. He fought with stubbornness and distinction.

In that memorable fight against Jim Jeffries, the husky sailor went through 25 rounds with two broken ribs. The fight was recorded by the movies of that early day. Something went wrong with the lights and the men, to earn the few extra dollars, went through several extra rounds under blazing lights that took more out of them than the work involved. The Sharkey we knew in later years would not have gone through that ordeal for less than a good sized fortune. That was the difference between Tom and Jack Sharkey.

Johnny Lisky was a different fighter and a credit to the navy. He was only a mite in size but he carried a wallop in both hands. Under the name of Johnny Buff, he won the American flyweight title and the world's bantamweight championship.

Moran And His "Mary Ann"

Before Sharkey we had Frank Moran and his famous "Mary Ann." This was a roundhouse right which so many fighters thought easy to block. But Moran heaved it with such skill and speed that many knockouts resulted. Moran never got a chance at the title. The nearest he came to it was when Jess Willard consented to meet Moran at the old Madison Square Garden in a no-decision contest. Cautious after his victory over Jack Joh

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Hedge selling appeared in volume in today's short session on the cotton market and active options lost from 8 to 10 points.

Trade buying on a scale down kept the decline from assuming large proportions and losses were held around 50 cents a bale.

With the new crop movement increasing in volume the absence of hedge offerings has provoked considerable comment in the trade, but offerings of this type appeared today and dominated the market.

October closed at 10.27, December at 10.30 and May at 10.47 with other months showing similar net losses.

Continued good weather also aided various sentiments and some sales by professionals and the trade were noted on this development.

Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 8 to 10 points.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The average price of middling spot cotton at 10 southern markets today was 10.38 cents a pound.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Cotton eased today under reports of continued good weather in the south and increased hedging which was supplemented by scattering week-end liquidation. Trade interests absorbed offerings on a scale down but December sold off to 10.35 and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net losses of 10 to 12 points.

Cotton futures closed barely steady 10 to 12 lower.

New York Stocks

By Frank MacMillen
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The stock market today plodded along dully in the short session, with a little mild profit-taking leaving the general run of prices slightly lower at the finish.

Some of Friday's enthusiasm for the non-ferrous metal shares carried over into today's dealings, and a few specialties were well taken.

The more cautious tone of brokerage advices in regard to the near term market movement, however, appeared to be reflected in a reluctance to reach very much for the recent favorites in the blue-chip group.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was .2 of a point lower at 50.2, with the industrials, rails and utilities sharing about equally in the decline.

Turnover in the stock exchange was only 632,130 shares, or at an hourly rate moderately under the previous full session.

U. S. government obligations were a soft spot in the bond market, particularly the guaranteed issues in some of which losses ran to more than 1-4 of a point.

News stimulus was lacking to stir traders out of their lethargy, although economic observers in Wall Street noted that the general tenor of week-end news continued cheerful.

Favorable comment was occasioned by the compilation of dividend actions for the week prepared by Standard Statistics company. Showing 39 favorable changes made, the most for any week in the past eight months, and compared with 20 in the previous week.

U. S. Smelting was again a leader of the rise in the metal shares with an extreme gain at one time of over 3 points, but at the close it was up 7-8 of a point at 102 1-8. Others in the group in several cases also shaded early advances. Net gains of fractions to a point were registered by American Smelting at 50 3-8, Anaconda at 21 1-4, Cerro De Pasco at 61 3-4, Howe Sound at 58 1-8, Phelps Dodge at 22 3-8 and Kennecott at 25 1-4.

Losses of fractions to nearly a point appeared at the finish in U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of N. J. and Union Pacific, while gains of about equal amounts were registered by American Telephone, General Motors, Bethlehem, Southern Pacific, Inland Steel, Seaboard Oil and McKeesport.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

STOUGH SELLS BEER IN CANS

New Package Proves Popular As It Does Away With Return Of Bottles

There is always one place in Monroe that is staying up with the newest things that are made. That is Stough's Bar, located in Hotel Monroe.

The latest is beer in cans. It is known as Pabst Export and can be served in the can or in glasses. It is good for picnics since there is no return of bottles. Stough's was the first in Monroe to have this new package, and they have only had it for three weeks. It was stated that this new way to handle beer has met the approval of the public and is in great demand.

Stough's is also noted for the finest mixed drinks that they serve. All the well known brands of liquors, wines and beer are sold. Package goods at an attractive price is also featured.

One of the finest bars in the south is located at Stough's. It was built by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, and it is reminiscent of the old style bar fixtures, yet with many modern features.

Mr. Stough is very pleased with the success of his new establishment which was opened last spring. Its popularity is shown by the number of patrons he has.

A visit to Stough's is most enjoyable, and friends will tell you that it is the friendliest place in town.

HART CARRIES ALL MAGAZINES

Monroe's Most Complete Stock Of Periodicals And Candies Is There

To the interested parts who likes to select their reading material from a large variety, L. J. Hart has the most complete stock in Monroe. He is located in the lobby of the Ouachita Bank building right in the main business section.

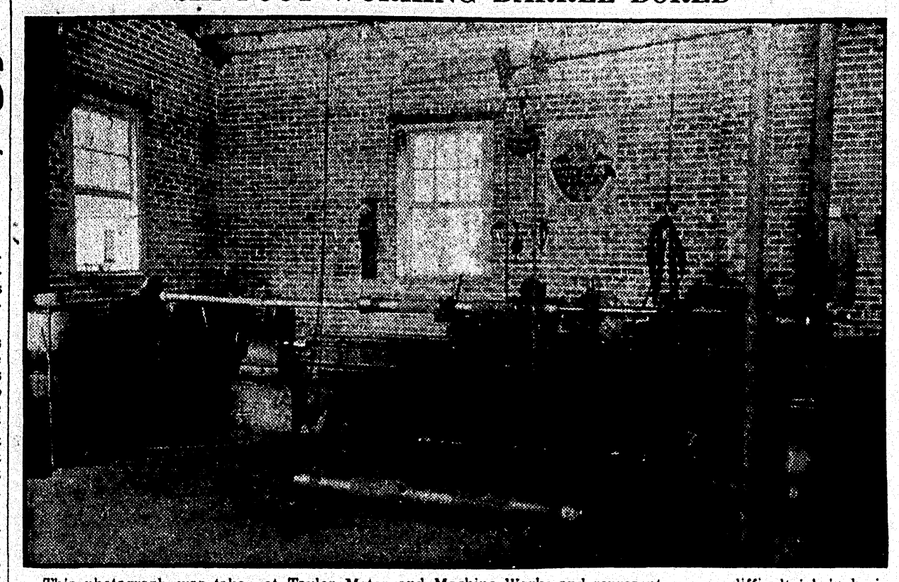

No matter what kind of periodical you want if you can't find it anywhere else, you can always find it there. Mr. Hart takes great pride in keeping the latest and up-to-date reading matter of the day.

There are magazines for those interested in radio, magazines for the ladies, magazines for the movie fan, and for the business man he has financial, and trade journals. The children can also find things that they will enjoy, in fact, there is something for everyone.

The next time that you are downtown stop by and have an ice cold drink, and see this complete stock. It will be just one stop for everything that you want to read. There are lots of delicious candies there, too.

SIX FOOT WORKING BARREL BORED

This photograph was taken at Taylor Motor and Machine Works and represents a very difficult job in boring a cast iron working barrel which is six feet in length and must be accurate. The working barrel is to be used in a new type pump for oil wells. The boring tool makes its own support as it it bores into the barrel. It must be straight and accurate. All of the tools and fixtures for this operation were made by H. T. Taylor.

NEW TYPE PUMP FOR OIL FIELD

Six Foot Cast Iron Working Barrel Bored With Monroe Built Machine

For the first time in the manufacture of oil well equipment a cast iron working barrel was bored by Taylor Motor and Machine Works here in Monroe. The barrel is six feet in length. Prior to this time short cast iron barrels were used fitted together to make the required length.

The advantage of the new barrel is that it can be rebored after it is worn and larger fittings installed, just as an automobile block can be rebored and oversize pistons replace the regular pistons. It is hoped that it will save thousands of dollars in oil production.

H. T. Taylor of Taylor Motor and Machine Works has spent ten years in research work in this field. He has had to his advantage the knowledge of machine work and for the past several years he has spent most of his time in the field in search of the most important needs in oil production. He has acquainted himself with the detail of this work and found what it takes to pump oil from the ground.

After all of this research he has developed this new type pump with new type valves, both standing and traveling. Also the solid cast iron working barrels have been developed.

A new sucker rod connection has been developed with a locking joint. The joint is constructed so that it locks by reverse threads. It makes it as one piece and there is no danger of it coming loose at any time. These connections form a guide in the traveling to support the rod and at the same time prevent it from parting.

Taylor Motor and Machine Works is just beginning the manufacture of this new equipment on a small basis. It is to be used in the Tullos and Urania fields. Later a larger production is expected.

The machines used in the manufacture of this equipment was made by Mr. Taylor. It is not manufactured. The boring bar is so made that it is straight aand accurate and makes its own support as it bores into the barrel.

Mr. Taylor came to Monroe through his connection with the Nash Automobile company in 1922. In 1928 he opened the Taylor Motor and Machine Works. It has been in the same location at Sixth and Olive ever since its opening. All kinds of precision gear jobs, tool making, etc., are done.

YEAR'S WORK TO BE MAPPED OUT

Monroe Legion Post Will Meet Monday For Important Session

The L. B. Faulk post, American Legion, will hold its regular meeting Monday at 8 p. m. This meeting will initiate the work of the new year for the post. The newly-elected officers will be hosts at a bounteous feast that will be served.

A special invitation has been extended to all members of the Ouachita Parish Veterans' council, the Burnett-Downs post and Walter L. Smith post.

Commander Bill Perhamus extended an invitation to all members of the post and all former post members, as well as to any man who is eligible for membership to be present.

All committees for the coming year will be named and plans will be worked out for the coming membership drive.

TIRE RETREADING PLANTS MERGED

Tire Buyers Cut Costs By Retreading, And Larger Space Is Needed

Due to the large volume of business the Twin City Tire Store and the Knowles-Elliott Tire Co. have had to move to larger quarters. Larper space has been acquired at the location at Hall and Harrison streets and the plant formally located in West Monroe has been consolidated with the former location. In this location they are able to carry ample stocks of retreaded and good used tires and at present have several thousands tires ready for use.

Knowles-Elliott Tire Company in West Monroe will still carry a line of used and retreaded tires and will receive tires to be retreaded.

The consolidation of the two plants will help to give better and faster service on tire retreading. This new and modern plant keeps seven men busy retreading and repairing tires every day. Car and truck owners who are interested in reducing their expenses bring their tires to this modern plant everyday.

"More and more people are learning true tire economy," K. S. Elliott of the tire concerns said. "When we first introduced tire retreading in Monroe many people were frankly skeptical about this process, but after rigid tests of our rebuilt tires the motoring public is now convinced that retreading cuts their tire bills in half."

"Many of our retreads," Mr. Elliott further stated, "have given over 25,000 miles of service and are still running."

A compact, self-contained apparatus which can be used to determine the brightness of self-luminous dials has been designed by technicians of the national bureau of standards.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Hedge selling appeared in volume in today's short session on the cotton market and active options lost from 8 to 10 points.

Trade buying on a scale down kept the decline from assuming large proportions and losses were held around 50 cents a bale.

With the new crop movement increasing in volume the absence of hedge offerings has provoked considerable comment in the trade, but offerings of this type appeared today and dominated the market.

October closed at 10.27, December at 10.30 and May at 10.47 with other months showing similar net losses.

Continued good weather also aided various sentiments and some sales by professionals and the trade were noted on this development.

Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 8 to 10 points.

AVERAGE SPOT PRICE

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Cotton eased today under reports of continued good weather in the south and increased hedging which was supplemented by scattering week-end liquidation. Trade interests absorbed offerings on a scale down but December sold off to 10.35 and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net losses of 10 to 12 points.

Cotton futures closed barely steady 10 to 12 lower.

New York Stocks

By Frank MacMillen
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The stock market today plodded along dully in the short session, with a little mild profit-taking leaving the general run of prices slightly lower at the finish.

Some of Friday's enthusiasm for the non-ferrous metal shares carried over into today's dealings, and a few specialties were well taken.

The more cautious tone of brokerage advices in regard to the near term market movement, however, appeared to be reflected in a reluctance to reach very much for the recent favorites in the blue-chip group.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was .2 of a point lower at 50.2, with the industrials, rails and utilities sharing about equally in the decline.

Turnover in the stock exchange was only 632,130 shares, or at an hourly rate moderately under the previous full session.

U. S. government obligations were a soft spot in the bond market, particularly the guaranteed issues in some of which losses ran to more than 1-4 of a point.

News stimulus was lacking to stir traders out of their lethargy, although economic observers in Wall Street noted that the general tenor of week-end news continued cheerful.

Favorable comment was occasioned by the compilation of dividend actions for the week prepared by Standard Statistics company. Showing 39 favorable changes made, the most for any week in the past eight months, and compared with 20 in the previous week.

U. S. Smelting was again a leader of the rise in the metal shares with an extreme gain at one time of over 3 points, but at the close it was up 7-8 of a point at 102 1-8. Others in the group in several cases also shaded early advances. Net gains of fractions to a point were registered, by American Smelting at 50 3-8, Anaconda at 21 1-4, Cerro De Pasco at 61 3-4, Howe Sound at 58 1-8, Phelps Dodge at 22 3-8 and Kennecott at 25 1-4.

Losses of fractions to nearly a point appeared at the finish in U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of N. J. and Union Pacific, while gains of about equal amounts were registered by American Telephone, General Motors, Bethlehem, Southern Pacific, Inland Steel, Seaboard Oil and McKesport.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

New Package Proves Popular As It Does Away With Return Of Bottles

There is always one place in Monroe that is staying up with the newest things that are made. That is Stough's Bar, located in Hotel Monroe.

The latest is beer in cans. It is known as Pabst Export and can be served in the can or in glasses. It is good for picnics since there is no return of bottles. Stough's was the first in Monroe to have this new package, and they have only had it for three weeks. It was stated that this new way to handle beer has met the approval of the public and is in great demand.

Stough's is also noted for the finest mixed drinks that they serve. All the well known brands of liquors, wines and beer are sold. Package goods at an attractive price is also featured.

One of the finest bars in the south is located at Stough's. It was built by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, and it is reminiscent of the old style bar fixtures, yet with many modern features.

Mr. Stough is very pleased with the success of his new establishment which was opened last spring. Its popularity is shown by the number of patrons he has.

A visit to Stough's is most enjoyable, and friends will tell you that it is the friendliest place in town.

HART CARRIES ALL MAGAZINES

Monroe's Most Complete Stock Of Periodicals And Candies Is There

To the interested parts who likes to select their reading material from a large variety, L. J. Hart has the most complete stock in Monroe. He is located in the lobby of the Ouachita Bank building right in the main business section.

No matter what kind of periodical you want if you can't find it anywhere else, you can always find it there. Mr. Hart takes great pride in keeping the latest and up-to-date reading matter of the day.

There are magazines for those interested in radio, magazines for the ladies, magazines for the movie fan, and for the business man he has financial, and trade journals. The children can also find things that they will enjoy, in fact, there is something for everyone.

The next time that you are downtown stop by and have an ice cold drink, and see this complete stock. It will be just one stop for everything that you want to read. There are lots of delicious candies there, too.

Beniamino Gigli, Italian tenor who left the Metropolitan a couple of seasons ago, will sing opera as well as concerts this fall in the United States.

SIX FOOT WORKING BARREL BORED

This photograph was taken at Taylor Motor and Machine Works and represents a very difficult job in boring a cast iron working barrel which is six feet in length and must be accurate. The working barrel is to be used in a new type pump for oil wells. The boring tool makes its own support as it bores into the barrel. It must be straight and accurate. All of the tools and fixtures for this operation were made by H. T. Taylor.

NEW TYPE PUMP FOR OIL FIELD

Six Foot Cast Iron Working Barrel Bored With Monroe Built Machine

For the first time in the manufacture of oil well equipment a cast iron working barrel was bored by Taylor Motor and Machine Works here in Monroe. The barrel is six feet in length. Prior to this time short cast iron barrels were used fitted together to make the required length.

The advantage of the new barrel is that it can be rebored after it is worn and larger fittings installed just as an automobile block can be rebored and oversize pistons replace the regular pistons. It is hoped that it will save thousands of dollars in oil production.

H. T. Taylor of Taylor Motor and Machine Works has spent ten years in research work in this field. He has had to his advantage the knowledge of machine work and for the past several years he has spent most of his time in the field in search of the most important needs in oil production. He has acquainted himself with the detail of this work and found what it takes to pump oil from the ground.

After all of this research he has developed this new type pump with new type valves, both standing and traveling. Also the solid cast iron working barrels have been developed.

A new sucker rod connection has been developed with a locking joint. The joint is constructed so that it locks by reverse threads. It makes it as one piece and there is no danger of it coming loose at any time. These connections form a guide in the traveling to support the rod and at the same time prevent it from parting.

Taylor Motor and Machine Works is just beginning the manufacture of this new equipment on a small basis. It is to be used in the Tullos and Urania fields. Later a larger production is expected.

The machines used in the manufacture of this equipment was made by Mr. Taylor. It is not manufactured. The boring bar is so made that it is straight aand accurate and makes its own support as it bores into the barrel.

Mr. Taylor came to Monroe through his connection with the Nash Automobile company in 1922. In 1928 he opened the Taylor Motor and Machine Works. It has been in the same location at Sixth and Olive ever since its opening. All kinds of precision gear jobs, tool making, etc., are done.

YEAR'S WORK TO BE MAPPED OUT

Monroe Legion Post Will Meet Monday For Important Session

The L. B. Faulk post, American Legion, will hold its regular meeting Monday at 8 p. m. This meeting will initiate the work of the new year for the post. The newly-elected officers will be hosts at a bounteous feast that will be served.

A special invitation has been extended to all members of the Ouachita Parish Veterans' council, the Burnett-Downs post and Walter L. Smith post.

Commander Bill Perhamus extended an invitation to all members of the post and all former post members, as well as to any man who is eligible for membership to be present.

All committees for the coming year will be named and plans will be worked out for the coming membership drive.

TIRE RETREADING PLANTS MERGED

Tire Buyers Cut Costs By Retreading, And Larger Space Is Needed

Due to the large volume of business the Twin City Tire Store and the Knowles-Elliott Tire Co. have had to move to larger quarters. Larper space has been acquired at the location at Hall and Harrison streets and the plant formally located in West Monroe has been consolidated with the former location. In this location they are able to carry ample stocks of retreaded and good used tires and at present have several thousands tires ready for use.

Knowles-Elliott Tire Company in West Monroe will still carry a line of used and retreaded tires and will receive tires to be retreaded.

The consolidation of the two plants will help to give better and faster service on tire retreading. This new and modern plant keeps seven men busy retreading and repairing tires every day. Car and truck owners who are interested in reducing their expenses bring their tires to this modern plant everyday.

"More and more people are learning true tire economy," K. S. Elliott of the tire concerns said. "When we first introduced tire retreading in Monroe many people were frankly skeptical about this process, but after rigid tests of our rebuilt tires the motoring public is now convinced that retreading cuts their tire bills in half."

"Many of our retreads," Mr. Elliott further stated, "have given over 25,000 miles of service and are still running."

A compact, self-contained apparatus which can be used to determine the brightness of self-luminous dials has been designed by technicians of the national bureau of standards.

CENTENARY OPENS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Largest Enrollment In Years Predicted For Shreveport School

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—September 18 marks the beginning of the eleventh session of Centenary college, when that institution will open its doors to receive an enrollment which, it is believed by authorities, will be far in excess of that of recent years. This increased enrollment, plus the many improvements made on the campus and the clear outlook for financial smooth sailing, has definitely made Centenary confident of a successful school term.

Several additions have been made to the college faculty, namely, Ernest Ralston, new director of music, who has, until recently, been connected with the Louisiana State university; Ralph A. Squires, head of the piano department, who formerly was soloist for the Minneapolis symphony orchestra; Miss Lita Muse, head of the new home economics department; and Professor L. B. Roberts, director of the physics and geology department, recent of Bowden college in Georgia. Professor R. R. Ewerz, just returned from doing graduate work at Columbia university in New York, will again head the department of education.

Registration for upper classmen begins Wednesday, September 18, continuing until 12 o'clock on Thursday. An assembly, held at 10 a.m., will begin the freshman exercises. On Thursday, September 19, registration for freshmen begins at 2 p.m. All students registering after that time will be required to pay the delayed registration fee. Classes will begin on Friday, Sept. 20.

Centenary will offer courses in the following fields: Art, Biblical literature, biology, chemistry, classical languages and literature, commerce, economics, education, English, expression, geology, government, history, journalism, library science, modern languages, mathematics, philosophy, physics and astronomy, physical education, psychology, home economics, public speaking and music.

CENTENARY OPENS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Largest Enrollment In Years Predicted For Shreveport School

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 14.—(Special)—September 18 marks the beginning of the eleventh session of Centenary college, when that institution will open its doors to receive an enrollment which, it is believed by authorities, will be far in excess of that of recent years. This increased enrollment, plus the many improvements made on the campus and the clear outlook for financial smooth sailing, has definitely made Centenary confident of a successful school term.

Several additions have been made to the college faculty, namely, Ernest Ralston, new director of music, who has, until recently, been connected with the Louisiana State university; Ralph A. Squires, head of the piano department, who formerly was soloist for the Minneapolis symphony orchestra; Miss Lita Muse, head of the new home economics department; and Professor L. B. Roberts, director of the physics and geology department, recent of Bowden college in Georgia. Professor R. R. Ewerz, just returned from doing graduate work at Columbia university in New York, will again head the department of education.

Registration for upper classmen begins Wednesday, September 18, continuing until 12 o'clock on Thursday. An assembly, held at 10 a.m., will begin the freshman exercises. On Thursday, September 19, registration for freshmen begins at 2 p.m. All students registering after that time will be required to pay the delayed registration fee. Classes will begin on Friday, Sept. 20.

Centenary will offer courses in the following fields: Art, Biblical literature, biology, chemistry, classical languages and literature, commerce, economics, education, English, expression, geology, government, history, journalism, library science, modern languages, mathematics, philosophy, physics and astronomy, physical education, psychology, home economics, public speaking and music.

Birds have four kinds of feathers: flight feathers, clothing feathers, downy feathers, and thread feathers.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES: The call for efficient young workmen in the printing industry far exceeds the supply. The industry itself (with very few exceptions) is not training new workers. For more than fifteen years the Southern School of Printing, which is splendidly equipped with modern machinery, has trained linotype operators, monotype operators, hand compositors and pressmen. Write V. C. Garriott, Director, 1514-16 South street, Nashville, Tenn., for catalog.

HIGH SCHOOL TRAINING
Finish your high school education at home within two years. All material furnished. Diploma granted. Positively meets university requirements. American School, Monroe, La. Telephone 1951-W.

LEARN A GOOD TRADE—Young men and young women seeking profitable employment should first learn a good trade. Printing is a good trade and a valuable asset. Fourteen hundred young men and young women have entered the printing industry by having learned linotype operating, monotype keyboard and caster operating, presswork, hand composition and other phases of the industry. A leading trade school for more than fifteen years is the Southern School of Printing. For complete information write V. C. Garriott, 1514-16 South Street, Nashville, Tennessee.

REPORT PROGRESS ON VARIOUS JOBS

Overpass Structure Near Completion; Levee Wall Goes Ahead

Excellent progress is being made on various construction projects in the Twin Cities and Ouachita parish, and one of the projects, the Missouri Pacific overpass structure at Sicard, is near completion. This week the steel span to be located above the rails will be installed and the concrete roadbed of the span will then be poured. The remainder of the roadbed of the structure has already been poured.

The concrete roadbed of the embankments or present dirt approaches has not been poured.

On Louisville avenue, in preparation for widening the thoroughfare and repaving, the old pavement has been taken up from North Seventh street westward to North Third street. Tearing up of the old pavement will be continued to Riverfront street. Eastward from North Seventh street to the intersection of the Sterlington and DeSiard roads, a new dirt roadbed is virtually ready for the pouring of concrete.

Satisfactory progress is being made by Reynolds and Sutton, contractors, on grading and filling a section of the Jonesboro road from near the Brown Paper mill to the intersection with the old Columbia road. The work of paving a section of this road from the end of the old pavement on Natchitoches street to the mill is more than 50 per cent completed. The Central Construction company has charge of this work.

The S. and W. company has completed one section of levee wall on South Grand street with the exception of backfilling, and is now pouring concrete for the other section, located opposite the Riverside sanitarium.

The G. A. Amberg company is making excellent progress in the construction of a levee wall to extend from the 1000 block of Trenton street southward to the traffic bridge.

Sheet piling for another section of levee wall, to be located immediately north of the Illinois Central railroad bridge, is being driven by the Fred Luttjohann company. From the north end of this piling to Pine street, the Forcum-James company is completing a dirt levee.

Steady progress is being made towards completion of steel work on the new state highway bridge.

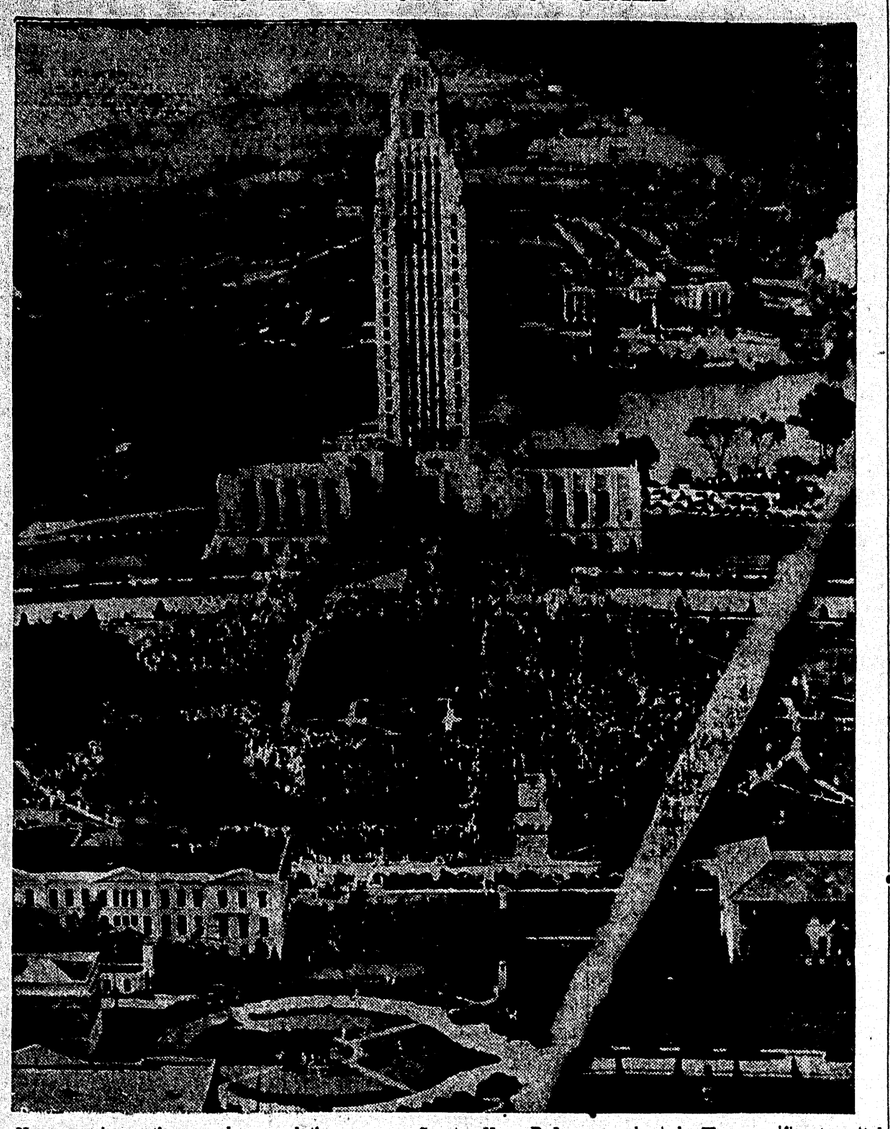

Labor for construction projects in the Twin Cities and Ouachita parish is provided by the Louisiana state employment service, 105 North Fourth street. Two of the contractors using the labor, the G. A. Amberg company and Forcum-James, display signs on their offices informing persons seeking jobs that all labor used on their projects is hired through the employment service.

EXTINGUISH FIRES

Firemen early yesterday afternoon extinguished a large grass fire on the old Columbia road about a mile south of the Louisiana Training school, and later in the afternoon extinguished a grass fire near the Mary Goss home, south of the intersection of the DeSiard and Sterlington roads.

AS HUEY LONG WAS BURIED

Here are shown the crowds around the grave as Senator Huey P. Long was buried. The magnificent capitol with its towering spire is seen and in the background and across the lake is the Our Lady of the Lake sanitarium in which Long died.

New Order Of Politics Died With Huey Long

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A new order of politics in the United States died with Huey Long.

The principles for which he strived with vindictive ruthlessness that cost him his life were as much a legend today as Long himself.

No man appeared strong enough to hold together the unique one-man empire he built in the state.

No leader appeared to champion his plan for redistributing the nation's wealth.

His passing removed from the political scene the only figure who might have led a formidable third party in next year's presidential campaign.

All Long's striving, with a subservient legislature, unlimited military power and a command of persuasive oratory, was for personal power to satisfy his every whim.

Any obstacle in his path was crushed at any cost or, if too imposing, adroitly avoided until a death blow could be struck.

He legislated officials from office, struck down municipal governments, discharged school teachers, directed the slugging of foes and, through his all supreme power, escaped retaliation.

Long was proceeding to make himself dictator of the United States when he was fatally wounded last Sunday by a bullet from a gun in the hands of Dr. C. A. Weiss in the skyscraper statehouse Long himself had built.

He was using the same methods which threw Louisiana into turmoil but nevertheless proved effective.

Long seldom compromised. He either converted citizens to his side or crushed them. There were no neutrals in Louisiana.

He was not the ordinary politician who goosestepped his way. He patterned his life after conquerers of history—Napoleon, Alexander.

From Niccolo Machiavelli, 17th century Florentine statesman, he drew the code that any methods were justifiable in maintaining strong central government.

From that stateman's book, The Prince, a guide for rulers, he learned precipitate action.

That was the story of Long's life. While his enemies remained quiet he did things, even though foolish. There was never a pause in his movement.

He died as he had lived—violently.

Many times he spoke of plots to murder him but when he was shot he said simply:

"Why did he do it?"

He hated to die, perhaps simply because it was one thing he could not conquer.

Just before he succumbed he said: "Oh, Lord, don't let me die for I have a few more things to accomplish."

But he left many things unaccomplished. Chief of them was his conquest of the nation which, if the precedent in Louisiana were to be believed, was likely.

Long, as president, would have subjected the nation just as he did his own state.

But Long is dead, and there is no one to take his place.

GARDEN LEADERS' MEET IS SCHEDULED TUESDAY

A meeting of garden leaders of home demonstration clubs of Ouachita parish will be held Tuesday, beginning at 10 a.m., at the residence of the parish home demonstration agent, Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, 2704 Lovers Lane. A study of orchard culture will be presented in the morning and in the afternoon the leaders will visit several flower gardens here.

Miss Bertha Lee Ferguson, garden specialist of the state extension service, will instruct the leaders in orchard culture in the morning. The gardens to be visited will be those at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Cooley and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Breard. Other families having especially interesting gardens and who will receive the garden leaders there are requested to communicate with Mrs. McQuiller.

Two garden leaders from each club will participate in the day's activities. Each leader will bring her own noon lunch.

Helen Seifert, 8-year-old deaf and blind Nebraska girl, has learned to speak 60 words and read a little Braille, at a Watertown, Mass., institution.

Y'S MEN GIVEN NATIONAL HONOR

John L. Madden And Justin Glass Recognized At New York Meet

Two members of the Monroe Y's Men's club were accorded high honors at the international convention of the Association of Y's Men's clubs held recently at Silver Bay, N. Y.

John L. Madden was named regional director of the southern area. Justin Glass was elected member of the international associational committee on the world outlook.

The regional director of the southern area will have charge of activities in Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and the republic of Mexico. Only nine such directors are named and the office carries with it considerable work and responsibility, having supervisory efforts over district governors and the scrutiny of reports and the giving of advice as to the conduct of the various clubs. Some travel will be entailed but Mr. Madden stated Saturday that he plans to do all work possible through correspondence.

Mr. Glass' duties will concern, as the name signifies, keeping a careful watch on the world outlook generally.

Both Mr. Madden and Mr. Glass have for several years been extremely active in Y's Men's club affairs and their selection to important posts meets with favor of the members, it was declared Saturday.

Firemen early yesterday afternoon extinguished a large grass fire on the old Columbia road about a mile south of the Louisiana Training school, and later in the afternoon extinguished a grass fire near the Mary Goss home, south of the intersection of the DeSiard and Sterlington roads.

Y'S MEN GIVEN NATIONAL HONOR

John L. Madden And Justin Glass Recognized At New York Meet

Two members of the Monroe Y's Men's club were accorded high honors at the international convention of the Association of Y's Men's clubs held recently at Silver Bay, N. Y.

John L. Madden was named regional director of the southern area. Justin Glass was elected member of the international associational committee on the world outlook.

The regional director of the southern area will have charge of activities in Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and the republic of Mexico. Only nine such directors are named and the office carries with it considerable work and responsibility, having supervisory efforts over district governors and the scrutiny of reports and the giving of advice as to the conduct of the various clubs. Some travel will be entailed but Mr. Madden stated Saturday that he plans to do all work possible through correspondence.

Mr. Glass' duties will concern, as the name signifies, keeping a careful watch on the world outlook generally.

Both Mr. Madden and Mr. Glass have for several years been extremely active in Y's Men's club affairs and their selectio. to important posts meets with favor of the members, it was declared Saturday.

New Order Of Politics Died With Huey Long

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A new order of politics in the United States died with Huey Long.

The principles for which he strived with vindictive ruthlessness that cost him his life were as much a legend today as Long himself.

No man appeared strong enough to hold together the unique one-man empire he built in the state.

No leader appeared to champion his plan for redistributing the nation's wealth.

His passing removed from the political scene the only figure who might have led a formidable third party in next year's presidential campaign.

All Long's striving, with a subservient legislature, unlimited military power and a command of persuasive oratory, was for personal power to satisfy his every whim.

Any obstacle in his path was crushed at any cost or, if too imposing, adroitly avoided until a death blow could be struck.

He legislated officials from office, struck down municipal governments, discharged school teachers, directed the slugging of foes and, through his all supreme power, escaped retaliation.

Long was proceeding to make himself dictator of the United States when he was fatally wounded last Sunday by a bullet from a gun in the hands of Dr. C. A. Weiss in the skyscraper statehouse Long himself had built.

He was using the same methods which threw Louisiana into turmoil but nevertheless proved effective.

Long seldom compromised. He either converted citizens to his side or crushed them. There were no neutrals in Louisiana.

He was not the ordinary politician who goosestepped his way. He patterned his life after conquerers of history—Napoleon, Alexander.

From Niccolo Machiavelli, 17th century Florentine statesman, he drew the code that any methods were justifiable in maintaining strong central government.

From that stateman's book, The Prince, a guide for rulers, he learned precipitate action.

That was the story of Long's life. While his enemies remained quiet he did things, even though foolish. There was never a pause in his movement.

He died as he had lived—violently.

Many times he spoke of plots to murder him but when he was shot he said simply:

"Why did he do it?"

He hated to die, perhaps simply because it was one thing he could not conquer.

Just before he succumbed he said: "Oh, Lord, don't let me die for I have a few more things to accomplish."

But he left many things unaccomplished. Chief of them was his conquest of the nation which, if the precedent in Louisiana were to be believed, was likely.

Long, as president, would have subjected the nation just as he did his own state.

But Long is dead, and there is no one to take his place.

GARDEN LEADERS' MEET IS SCHEDULED TUESDAY

A meeting of garden leaders of home demonstration clubs of Ouachita parish will be held Tuesday, beginning at 10 a.m., at the residence of the parish home demonstration agent, Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, 2704 Lovers Lane. A study of orchard culture will be presented in the morning and in the afternoon the leaders will visit several flower gardens here.

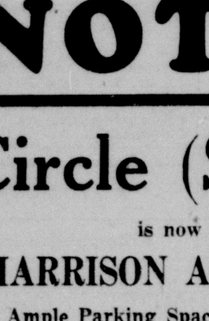

Miss Bertha Lee Ferguson, garden specialist of the state extension service, will instruct the leaders in orchard culture in the morning. The gardens to be visited will be those at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Cooley and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Breard. Other families having especially interesting gardens and who will receive the garden leaders there are requested to communicate with Mrs. McQuiller.

Two garden leaders from each club will participate in the day's activities. Each leader will bring her own noon lunch.

Helen Seifert, 8-year-old deaf and blind Nebraska girl, has learned to speak 60 words and read a little Braille, at a Watertown, Mass., institution.

September Brings Complete Change In Domestic Routine

'Summer Bachelors' Back To Normality

Tempo Of Activity Stepped Up As Autumn Season Arrives; Bustle Is Noted In Homes Throughout City

By Eve Bradford

The Midas touch of autumn always inspires poetic effusions. There is something about the fields of rippling gold where the golden rod sways in the soft breeze, the magic harvest moon, the caressing wind uttering prophecies and the deepening purple shadows that always conjures up our most flowery superlatives. The crimson Japanese persimmons now hang within reach and the luscious muscadine grows purple in the heat of the noon day sun. Squirrels scamper through the dry leaves harvesting their winter supply. Summer has flown.

September means a complete change of domestic scenery. Husbands and fathers who have enjoyed their freedom as "summer bachelors" are ready again for domestic routine, glad to abandon hurried restaurant breakfasts and to know that the beds will be made regularly once more. Trade revives after the slack months. Snappy new clothes in the shops replace the bargains of August sales.

Business men, back at their desks, "put on the pressure" in deals that have been pending all summer. There is activity in every home, where mothers cope with the business of getting the children ready for school.

All activity is not confined to homes where children are being made ready for school, by any means. The J. W. Platt home for instance, where Elizabeth, the lovely, dark-eyed daughter of the house, is planning for her wedding day. Elizabeth has at last named the day and John Dubuisson has returned to his home in south Louisiana to await the day when he brings his lovely bride to live in the midst of his own people, along the picturesque Bayou Teche. Elizabeth is undecided about her wedding plans, as her mother is anxious for a garden ceremony 'neath the spreading branches of the historic old oaks, where she, as a girl, was wooed and won by the man of her choice.

Maud Stubbs, despite the fact that she is getting a son and daughter off to college, remains calm and serene. We saw her a few evenings ago trailing black chiffon draperies over the floor of her beautiful drawing room and thought again, as in so many times past, how perfectly lovely she really is. By the way, did you know that the wide front door of her Riverside home that opens in such hospitable manner, came from the old plantation home near Alexandria where she was born? It was a spirit of sentimentality that promoted it, of course. And then, too, there is a little panel in the door that permits servants to peer through the opening without unlatching the door. This, however, is not an old southern custom, but prompted by these days of chance and change.

Loraine Matthews is quite the busiest person we have seen in a long time. She and Paul are having a handsome new fireplace built in their living room and are extending an invitation to all their friends to come warm their toes when winter comes.

The Clyde Brown home again glows with the shining presence of Anne, who has been flitting around all summer, first with her children in the north and then back east with Clyde. Anna, the glamorous, found northern Wisconsin not to her liking at all, so she pulled up stakes and bundled her children on the pullman, Chicago-bound. She found the Chicago Edgewater Beach hotel close to her heart's desire. And no wonder—it is just the right setting for her.

These first weeks of early autumn brought out some chic clothes. Especially smart looking was Mrs. David Silverstein in a broad brimmed white felt hat that set off to perfection her hair as black as a raven's wing. Saw Mrs. Charles Bennett at a reception recently and admired the stunning looking black and white ensemble she was wearing.

Joy Steele, off for the University of Texas last week, packed away, in her smart luggage, several models that were simply divine. One in particular, a perfect knockout, was a nut-brown corded silk dinner model, fashioned along princess lines with a high standing collar of white satin. When she waved goodbye from the steps of the sleeper, she was wearing a black crepe sport outfit with accessories of Hunter's green.

Lillie Thompson, who wears beautiful clothes so nonchalantly, packed away in her luggage, when she left for L. S. U., a perfect dream dress of purple crepe with a hip length metallic coat. The neckline is high and being quite backless makes the perfect evening dress when the coat is removed.

Dorothy Calvert, also L. S. U. bound, will receive much attention from the stag line when she dons a brown velvet evening model with apricot flowers at her throat and a glistening ornament at the waistline. A black velvet frock of nun-like simplicity with Irish lace trimming is also included in her winter's wardrobe.

It has been rather a splendorous week, if one reckons by viewing beautiful clothes, welcoming vacationists home, listening to wedding plans and extending a hand in greeting to interesting visitors.

That reminds us, lovely Marguerite Hill of Los Angeles is back in town and is being whisked from one home to another where hostesses are giving her a large sample of the southern hospitality that was part of her own life before she went west to live.

Visitors Entertained

Interesting guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Thornhill on St. John drive are Miss Marguerite Hill, Mr. Duncan Hill and Mr. Charles Winborne, who arrived last week, overland, in their automobile. The presence in the city of Miss Hill and Mr. Hill, former residents of Monroe, has inspired considerable entertaining of an informal nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill entertained at dinner and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kellogg were hosts at a barbecue. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Black and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brown were also hosts at dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seymour's compliment will be a barbecue tonight.

Sincerity At Test

The sincerity of purpose of women who have been promising to do certain things, just as soon as September arrived, is now about to be tested.

Life is rushing past so swiftly and so many things of value are being neglected, most women find themselves clutching desperately at the present, in a panic over the opportunities which are fading. This is the perfect time of the year to take a definite stand unless we wish to embark upon the kind of season we resolved never to repeat.

The thing to do, in addition to making a resolution, is to make plans for continuing the project regularly. If it is music, set aside a certain time. If it is typing, decide upon a certain amount of practice and get it in somehow, every day. Such a little actual time is required for any of these ventures. Nine-tenths of the difficulty lies in getting organized for the effort.

And then there are those women who have resolved to learn to say "No" in at least five languages, and to plow under ruthlessly at least every third opportunity to go places and render public service. Theirs is a difficult problem. They have the habit of full weeks. They count a week lost which does not contain committee meetings and lectures, book reviews, luncheons, bridge foursomes and good works in general. The excitement and the rush of such a life are like a poison in the blood. They are in such a nervous state they find no pleasure in the thought of doing quiet things, alone. They have the added strain of needing to resist flattery. It is hard to say no when the request is preceded by the assurance that your particular talents are needed so badly for the enterprise in question, and that no one else is really qualified to handle the matter. The wise ones will carry out their resolutions, knowing that there is more enjoyment in relaxing from choice than from necessity.

Those who once found joy in their music, but have let it slip away because the radio and records are so much easier, have been planning to pick up the well-nigh lost art again.

So few people ever do anything more about their personal desires in these directions than to have regrets and to resolve to do better. There is something so satisfying about making a good resolution that it can easily take the place of action. After all, when the good resolution has been made there are two more things to do. The first is, make a start. Break ground, as it were. Do something, be it ever so little, to set up the required processes.

If it is French, get out the little French reader (not the grammar), and try to find enough satisfaction in your first effort to give you impetus for the next day. If it is knitting, find the needles which have been idle since the World war, and order some thread.

There are many others. The woman who has resolved to brush up on her French this winter—the one who had French for two years in high school and now can understand nothing beyond "S'il vous plait"—will find, if she is not stern with herself, that fall canning and preserving, bridge parties and Thanksgiving are following each other with their usual swiftness, and before she realizes what has happened she will be making New Year resolutions.

Ornament Vogue Grows

This winter's evening coiffures will be decorated with ornaments of every size, color and shape under the sun. The smartest heads are going to be trimmed with vine leaves, monogrammed combs—everything in fact from silver daisies to small bird-of-paradise plumes. The gay young party-goer with a flair for fluffiness may very well pin a bandeau of blue and pink hyacinths atop her curls. The sophisticate will be flattered by gold feathers, curling from a tiny comb that takes away none of the sleekness from her suave hairdress. Also for the sophisticate is an emerald aigret, attached to the side of a narrow silver bandeau, and several other fantastic festoons, light in weight and easy to keep in place. In another category are the fruits, flowers and leaf ornaments which are created in velvet, metallic cloth and other materials.

Constitution Day

Tradition plays an important role in the nation-wide observance of Constitution day, planned by the Daughters of the American Revolution for September the seventeenth. Every autumn, since 1890, the organization has grasped this opportunity to impress upon the American people the need for study and understanding of the nation's most important document.

Mrs. Julian Gifford Goodhue, D. A. R. historian general, said:

"We regard the constitution as the basic guaranty of government that belongs to all of us. Never in our membership has there been any controversy or discussion about the merits of this document.

"It must not be forgotten that the men who were sent as delegates to the constitutional convention in 1787 were men of distinction, many of them college graduates and a large number of them students of government not only in a theoretical, but a practical way.

"There is a sad neglect today of study and understanding of the constitution. After all, it takes only 20 minutes to read it."

Mrs. Goodhue's elevation to the position of historian general is the reward of 15 years of conscientious work in the organization. She knows the program of the Daughters of the American Revolution as few of the officials know it, and she interprets it according to the organization's non-partisan, nonpolitical status.

"The Daughters of the American Revolution is based on a deep feeling the cause of independence," Mrs. Goodhue continued. "In no sense, however, are the members ancestor worshipers.

"They believe in providing for national defense as a peace measure. They do not believe in a militaristic government."

Beyond its patriotic program the "mother element" in the work of the Daughters of the Revolution is significant. It maintains a national revolving fund of $355,000 for student loans. It has founded and maintains two schools in the southern mountains. Tamassee in South Carolina prepares 150 boys and girls for college, while the Kate Duncan Smith school in Alabama provides education for 400 children. At Ellis Island an extensive program of occupational therapy is carried on in behalf of the convalescents in the marine hospital on the island.

Members of Fort Miro chapter, D. A. R., observed Constitution day with a special program Saturday afternoon at their picturesque little chapter house, one of the oldest buildings in this section of the state, with Mrs. Clarence Faulk, the new regent, presiding.

Assisting Mrs. Faulk in guiding the destiny of Fort Miro chapter this year will be Mrs. Alymer Montgomery, first vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Leigh, second vice-president; Mrs. Lewis Slator, recording secretary; Mrs. W. H. McGee, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Milling Bernstein, treasurer; Mrs. Ida Williams, chaplain; Mrs. David Garrett, registrar; Mrs. Reese Major, Sr., historian; Mrs. J. R. Wooten, librarian; Mrs. Bernice Nichols, Mrs. Fred Thatcher, Mrs. J. J. Potts and Mrs. Manning McGuire, curators; Mrs. J. J. Potts and Mrs. Manning McGuire, councillors; Mrs. Herbert Steed, Mrs. David Garrett and Mrs. Alymer Montgomery, year book committee members.

Entertain With Bridge

Mrs. Edwin E. Randall and Miss Janet Hixon entertained with a beautifully planned bridge affair at the home of Mrs. W. E. Hixon of Mangham, where the tables, covered with gayly colored linens and centered with silver vases holding pink roses, were grouped in the spacious sun porch.

The guests were invited to the dining room, where luncheon was served, buffet fashion. The table, overlaid with handsome Irish lace, was floral-ly adorned with an immense crystal bowl overflowing with pink radiance roses. Handsome silver candelabrum placed at the four corners supported tall pink tapers.

A delectable array of food was arranged for the convenience of the guests who enjoyed the luncheon hour at the small tables on the porch. Later bridge was introduced.

Guests present were; Mrs. F. C. Sheppard, Mrs. R. V. Jones, Mrs. M. K. McConnell, Mrs. J. W. DeMoss, Sr., Mrs. C. Noble Hatch, Mrs. E. T. Lee, Mrs. Morris Brown, Mrs. C. N. Underwood, Mrs. Strickland, Mrs. Claud Frey, Mrs. Mabel Nash, Mrs. Alex Watson, Mrs. B. N. Hixon, Mrs. Monroe Hixon, Mrs. C. Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Walsworth, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Barrier Mae Walsworth, and Mrs. G. W. Hutchison, who has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Walsworth, this summer, will motor to Nashville tomorrow. Miss Walsworth will resume her studies at Vanderbilt and with her mother will make her home with her grandmother, Mrs. Hutchison. Dr. Walsworth will return home in a few days.

Mrs. Leon Davenport and daughter, Mable Sharp Davenport, of Mer Rouge, left last week for Baton Rouge, where Mrs. Davenport has accepted a position as matron of the senior dormitory and Miss Davenport will enter the state university.

Miss Elizabeth Platt To Wed J. F. Dubuisson

Announcement Is Made; Bride-Elect Is Popular Local Girl; Prospective Bridegroom Is South Louisiana Resident

A wedding announcement in which the sincere and affectionate interest of many friends in this section of the state and in the southern section of Louisiana is centered, is made today by Mr. and Mrs. John Warren Platt, who announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Tucker Platt, to Mr. John Francis Dubuisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dubuisson of Opelousas, La.

Miss Platt, on of Monroe's loveliest and most delightful personalities, was born and reared in Monroe and was graduated from the Ouachita Parish High school, where her mother, the former Olive Reily, a great favorite in social, educational and club circles, was identified with the faculty of the city schools for many years. Miss Platt also attended Hollins college, Hollins, Va., and was graduated from Louisiana State university. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Dubuisson, member of an old, aristocratic southern family, attended Notre Dame university in Indiana and was graduated from the law department of Tulane university at New Orleans. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Mr. Dubuisson is a member of the law firm of Dubuisson and Sons of Opalousas.

Broussard-LaFleur

Of interest to friends was the marriage of Miss Inez LaFleur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. LaFleur and Mr. Frank Broussard of Alexandria, Tuesday, September the tenth, at the home of the bride's mother in Kinder, La.

The marriage was performed in the reception suite in a setting of beautiful pink columbia roses, palms and ferns. Myriad pink tapers burned in the background.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered with Mrs. Robert R. Rhymes, pianist, and Mr. Fred Allen, soloist.

The bride's attendant, her sister, Miss Cora Mae LaFleur, wore a smart ensemble of brown.

The bride who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Robert Rhymes, wore a handsome brown corded crepe tailleur with all accessories of the same color. She wore an exquisite corsage of Talisman roses.

The ceremony was performed by Reverend Paul Leeds.

Following the marriage service, Mr. and Mrs. Broussard left for Mexico, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Broussard are graduates of Louisiana State university. Mrs. Broussard is a member of Kappa Delta sorority and Mr. Broussard a member of Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Many out-of-town guests attended the wedding.

Pratt-Puckett

The announcement today of the marriage of Miss Clara Belle Puckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Puckett of Collinston and Dr. C. W. Pratt, claims the interest of friends.

The wedding ceremony was performed on the twenty-fourth of August at the Presbyterian manse in Bastrop, with Reverend O'Neal, officiating.

Mrs. Pratt, a graduate of the Louisiana state normal, is a member of the Beekman school faculty.

Dr. Pratt, a prominent young dentist of Collinston and Bastrop, was graduated from the Washington university of St. Louis. He is a member of Beta Sigma fraternity.

Dr. and Mrs. Pratt are now at home to their friends in Bastrop.

Tillinghast-Gordon

A marriage characterized by impressive dignity and charming simplicity and claiming the sincere and affectionate interest of friends in this section of the state was that of Miss Dorothy Gordon and A. Y. Tillinghast on Monday evening, September 9, at eight o'clock at the Park Avenue Methodist church, Shreveport. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Ware.

The bride wore a distinctive fall ensemble of rust crepe with brown accessories. Her attendants were Misses Ann and Glenn Walker of Mooringsport.

The bride, who possesses an unusually charming personality, is the talented and attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles J. Gordon of Sicily Island, La. She holds a B.A. degree and a diploma in voice from Louisiana State Normal, and is a member of the Tri Sigma sorority. She received her training on her master's degree at the University of Arkansas, and for the past few years has taught in Morringsport.

Mr. Tillinghast, who is a member of a pioneer family of north Louisiana, attended L. S. U. and is now associated with the Gulf Refining company at Mooringsport.

Following the ceremony they left for a short motor trip, after which they will make their home in Mooringsport.

Guess-Hodge

A wedding characterized by exquisite simplicity and one in which much interest throughout the state is centered is that of Miss Dorothy Hodge, lovely and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tobin R. Hodge, of Rayville, and Samuel Cain Guess, of Vicksburg, Miss., which was beautifully solemnized on last Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, at St. David's Episcopal church, in Rayville. Dr. E. F. Hayward, rector, performing the impressive ring ceremony.

The chancel was a mass of southern smilax and queen's wreath, which formed a beautiful background where myriad white tapers gleamed. Pink radiance roses lifted their heads from tall wicker floor standards and were massed against the altar in artistic array.

Mrs. J. Y. Abraugh at the organ rendered a pre-nuptial concert while the guests were being seated. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

The ushers were Messrs. Millard and Ernest Lipscomb.

The bride and her attendants were gowned in three shades of blue crepe. Little Sarah Aycock, junior bride's maid, wearing the lightest shade, carried a nosegay bouquet of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots. Miss Eleanor Hodge, sister of the bride, maid of honor, wore a darker blue crepe model with accessories to match and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Tobin R. Hodge, was a picture of lovliness in a smart blue tailleur and engaging little hat and face veil of same color, and an arm bouquet of some briarcliff roses completed the ensemble.

Mr. Guess and his best man, John T. Richardson, of Tennessee, awaited the bride at the altar. To the notes of Mendelssohn's Recessional the wedding party left the church and motored to the home of the bride where they received congratulations from their many friends, after which they left immediately on their honeymoon.

Mrs. Guess is a general favorite, as manifested in the numerous pre-nuptial affairs marking her engagement days, and the many beautiful wedding gifts received. She is a graduate of the Rayville high school, attended All Saints college, of Vicksburg, Miss., completing her education at the Louisiana State university and State Normal college. She is a member of the Chi Omega sorority. After finishing college she became a member of the faculty of the Rayville high school. One of the notable accomplishments of this charming and talented young lady is her voice, which has delighted friends on many occasions.

Samuel Cain Guess, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Guess, of Greenwood, Miss., is a graduate of the University of Mississippi and a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is connected with the United States waterways experiment station, at Vicksburg, Miss.

The out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Guess, Miss Sarah Guess, of Greenwood, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson, of Tennessee; Dr. C. H. Mosely, Misses Lallage and Gertrude Feazel, Miss Evelyn Hodge, Mrs. Ray Rhymes, of Monroe; J. Floyd Hodge, of New Orleans; Mrs. Clara B. Hodge, Simon Hodge, Irvin Hodge, of Calhoun; Mr. J. J. Grambling, and Miss Jean Grambling, of Jackson, Miss.

September Brings Complete Change In Domestic Routine

'Summer Bachelors' Back To Normality

By Eve Bradford

The Midas touch of autumn always inspires poetic effusions. There is something about the fields of rippling gold where the golden rod sways in the soft breeze, the magic harvest moon, the caressing wind uttering prophecies and the deepening purple shadows that always conjures up our most flowery superlatives. The crimson Japanese persimmons now hang within reach and the luscious muscadine grows purple in the heat of the noon day sun. Squirrels scamper through the dry leaves harvesting their winter supply. Summer has flown.

September means a complete change of domestic scenery. Husbands and fathers who have enjoyed their freedom as "summer bachelors" are ready again for domestic routine, glad to abandon hurried restaurant breakfasts and to know that the beds will be made regularly once more. Trade revives after the slack months. Snappy new clothes in the shops replace the bargains of August sales.

Business men, back at their desks, "put on the pressure" in deals that have been pending all summer. There is activity in every home, where mothers cope with the business of getting the children ready for school.

All activity is not confined to homes where children are being made ready for school, by any means. The J. W. Platt home for instance, where Elizabeth, the lovely, dark-eyed daughter of the house, is planning for her wedding day. Elizabeth has at last named the day and John Dubuisson has returned to his home in south Louisiana to await the day when he brings his lovely bride to live in the midst of his own people, along the picturesque Bayou Teche. Elizabeth is undecided about her wedding plans, as her mother is anxious for a garden ceremony 'neath the spreading branches of the historic old oaks, where she, as a girl, was wooed and won by the man of her choice.

Maud Stubbs, despite the fact that she is getting a son and daughter off to college, remains calm and serene. We saw her a few evenings ago trailing black chiffon draperies over the floor of her beautiful drawing room and thought again, as in so many times past, how perfectly lovely she really is. By the way, did you know that the wide front door of her Riverside home that opens in such hospitable manner, came from the old plantation home near Alexandria where she was born? It was a spirit of sentimentality that promoted it, of course. And then, too, there is a little panel in the door that permits servants to peer through the opening without unlatching the door. This, however, is not an old southern custom, but prompted by these days of chance and change.

Loraine Matthews is quite the busiest person we have seen in a long time. She and Paul are having a handsome new fireplace built in their living room and are extending an invitation to all their friends to come warm their toes when winter comes.

The Clyde Brown home again glows with the shining presence of Anna, who has been flitting around all summer, first with her children in the north and then back east with Clyde. Anna, the glamorous, found northern Wisconsin not to her liking at all, so she pulled up stakes and bundled her children on the pullman, Chicago-bound. She found the Chicago Edgewater Beach hotel close to her heart's desire. And no wonder—it is just the right setting for her.

These first weeks of early autumn brought out some chic clothes. Especially smart looking was Mrs. David Silverstein in a broad brimmed white felt hat that set off to perfection her hair as black as a raven's wing. Saw Mrs. Charles Bennett at a reception recently and admired the stunning looking black and white ensemble she was wearing.

Joy Steele, off for the University of Texas last week, packed away, in her smart luggage, several models that were simply divine. One in particular, a perfect knockout, was a nut-brown corded silk dinner model, fashioned along princess lines with a high standing collar of white satin. When she waved goodbye from the steps of the sleeper, she was wearing a black crepe sport outfit with accessories of Hunter's green.

Lillie Thompson, who wears beautiful clothes so nonchalantly, packed away in her luggage, when she left for L. S. U., a perfect dream dress of purple crepe with a hip length metallic coat. The neckline is high and being quite backless makes the perfect evening dress when the coat is removed.

Dorothy Calvert, also L. S. U. bound, will receive much attention from the stag line when she dons a brown velvet evening model with apricot flowers at her throat and a glistening ornament at the waistline. A black velvet frock of nun-like simplicity with Irish lace trimming is also included in her winter's wardrobe.

It has been rather a splendorous week, if one reckons by viewing beautiful clothes, welcoming vacationists home, listening to wedding plans and extending a hand in greeting to interesting visitors.

That reminds us, lovely Marguerite Hill of Los Angeles is back in town and is being whisked from one home to another where hostesses are giving her a large sample of the southern hospitality that was part of her own life before she went west to live.

Visitors Entertained

Interesting guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Thornhill on St. John drive are Miss Marguerite Hill, Mr. Duncan Hill and Mr. Charles Winborne, who arrived last week, overland, in their automobile. The presence in the city of Miss Hill and Mr. Hill, former residents of Monroe, has inspired considerable entertaining of an informal nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill entertained at dinner and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kellogg were hosts at a barbecue. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Black and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brown were also hosts at dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seymour's compliment will be a barbecue tonight.

Sincerity At Test

The sincerity of purpose of women who have been promising to do certain things, just as soon as September arrived, is now about to be tested.

Life is rushing past so swiftly and so many things of value are being neglected, most women find themselves clutching desperately at the present, in a panic over the opportunities which are fading. This is the perfect time of the year to take a definite stand unless we wish to embark upon the kind of season we resolved never to repeat.

The thing to do, in addition to making a resolution, is to make plans for continuing the project regularly. If it is music, set aside a certain time. If it is typing, decide upon a certain amount of practice and get it in somehow, every day. Such a little actual time is required for any of these ventures. Nine-tenths of the difficulty lies in getting organized for the effort.

And then there are those women who have resolved to learn to say "No" in at least five languages, and to plow under ruthlessly at least every third opportunity to go places and render public service. Theirs is a difficult problem. They have the habit of full weeks. They count a week lost which does not contain committee meetings and lectures, book reviews, luncheons, bridge foursomes and good works in general. The excitement and the rush of such a life are like a poison in the blood. They are in such a nervous state they find no pleasure in the thought of doing quiet things, alone. They have the added strain of needing to resist flattery. It is hard to say no when the request is preceded by the assurance that your particular talents are needed so badly for the enterprise in question, and that no one else is really qualified to handle the matter. The wise ones will carry out their resolutions, knowing that there is more enjoyment in relaxing from choice than from necessity.

Those who once found joy in their music, but have let it slip away because the radio and records are so much easier, have been planning to pick up the well-nigh lost art again.

So few people ever do anything more about their personal desires in these directions than to have regrets and to resolve to do better. There is something so satisfying about making a good resolution that it can easily take the place of action. After all, when the good resolution has been made there are two more things to do. The first is, make a start. Break ground, as it were. Do something, be it ever so little, to set up the required processes.

If it is French, get out the little French reader (not the grammar), and try to find enough satisfaction in your first effort to give you impetus for the next day. If it is knitting, find the needles which have been idle since the World war, and order some thread.

There are many others. The woman who has resolved to brush up on her French this winter—the one who had French for two years in high school and now can understand nothing beyond "S'il vous plait"—will find, if she is not stern with herself, that fall canning and preserving, bridge parties and Thanksgiving are following each other with their usual swiftness, and before she realizes what has happened she will be making New Year resolutions.

Thoughtful consideration for the living enables us to carry out the wishes of those bereaved with sympathy and understanding.

Ornament Vogue Grows

This winter's evening coiffures will be decorated with ornaments of every size, color and shape under the sun. The smartest heads are going to be trimmed with vine leaves, monogrammed combs—everything in fact from silver daisies to small bird-of-paradise plumes. The gay young party-goer with a flair for fluffiness may very well pin a bandeau of blue and pink hyacinths atop her curls. The sophisticate will be flattered by gold feathers, curling from a tiny comb that takes away none of the sleekness from her suave hairdress. Also for the sophisticate is an emerald aigret, attached to the side of a narrow silver bandeau, and several other fantastic festoons, light in weight and easy to keep in place. In another category are the fruits, flowers and leaf ornaments which are created in velvet, metallic cloth and other materials.

Constitution Day

Tradition plays an important role in the nation-wide observance of Constitution day, planned by the Daughters of the American Revolution for September the seventeenth. Every autumn, since 1890, the organization has grasped this opportunity to impress upon the American people the need for study and understanding of the nation's most important document.

Mrs. Julian Gifford Goodhue, D. A. R. historian general, said:

"We regard the constitution as the basic guaranty of government that belongs to all of us. Never in our membership has there been any controversy or discussion about the merits of this document.

"It must not be forgotten that the men who were sent as delegates to the constitutional convention in 1787 were men of distinction, many of them college graduates and a large number of them students of government not only in a theoretical, but a practical way.

"There is a sad neglect today of study and understanding of the constitution. After all, it takes only 20 minutes to read it."

Mrs. Goodhue's elevation to the position of historian general is the reward of 15 years of conscientious work in the organization. She knows the program of the Daughters of the American Revolution as few of the officials know it, and she interprets it according to the organization's nonpartisan, nonpolitical status.

"The Daughters of the American Revolution is based on a deep feeling the cause of independence," Mrs. Goodhue continued. "In no sense, however, are the members ancestor worshipers.

"They believe in providing for national defense as a peace measure. They do not believeve in a militaristic government."

Beyond its patriotic program the "mother element" in the work of the Daughters of the Revolution is significant. It maintains a national revolving fund of $355.000 for student loans. It has founded and maintains two schools in the southern mountains. Tamassee in South Carolina prepares 150 boys and girls for college, while the Kate Duncan Smith school in Alabama provides education for 400 children. At Ellis Island an extensive program of occupational therapy is carried on in behalf of the convalescents in the marine hospital on the island.

Members of Fort Miro chapter, D. A. R., observed Constitution day with a special program Saturday afternoon at their picturesque little chapter house, one of the oldest buildings in this section of the state, with Mrs. Clarence Faulk, the new regent, presiding.

Assisting Mrs. Faulk in guiding the destiny of Fort Miro chapter this year will be Mrs. Alymer Montgomery, first vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Leigh, second vice-president; Mrs. Lewis Slator, recording secretary; Mrs. W. H. McGee, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Milling Bernstein, treasurer; Mrs. Ida Williams, chaplain; Mrs. David Garrett, registrar; Mrs. Reese Major, Sr., historian; Mrs. J. R. Wooten, librarian; Mrs. Bernice Nichols, Mrs. Fred Thatcher, Mrs. J. J. Potts and Mrs. Manning McGuire, curators; Mrs. J. J. Potts and Mrs. Manning McGuire, councillors; Mrs. Herbert Steed, Mrs. David Garrett and Mrs. Alymer Montgomery, year book committee members.

Entertain With Bridge

Mrs. Edwin E. Randall and Miss Janet Hixon entertained with a beautifully planned bridge affair at the home of Mrs. W. E. Hixon of Mangham, where the tables, covered with gayly colored linens and centered with silver vases holding pink roses, were grouped in the spacious sun porch.

The guests were invited to the dining room, where luncheon was served, buffet fashion. The table, overlaid with handsome Irish lace, was floralÿ adorned with an immense crystal bowl overflowing with pink radiance roses. Handsome silver candelabrum placed at the four corners supported tall pink tapers.

A delectable array of food was arranged for the convenience of the guests who enjoyed the luncheon hour at the small tables on the porch. Later bridge was introduced.

Guests present were: Mrs. F. C. Sheppard, Mrs. R. V. Jones, Mrs. M. K. McConnell, Mrs. J. W. DeMoss, Sr., Mrs. C. Noble Hatch, Mrs. E. T. Lee, Mrs. Morris Brown, Mrs. C. N. Underwood, Mrs. Strickland, Mrs. Claud Frey, Mrs. Mabel Nash, Mrs. Alex Watson, Mrs. B. N. Hixon, Mrs. Monroe Hixon, Mrs. C. Miss Elizabeth Platt To Wed J. F. Dubuisson

Announcement Is Made; Bride-Elect Is Popular Local Girl; Prospective Bridegroom Is South Louisiana Resident

A wedding announcement in which the sincere and affectionate interest of many friends in this section of the state and in the southern section of Louisiana is centered, is made today by Mr. and Mrs. John Warren Platt, who announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Tucker Platt, to Mr. John Francis Dubuisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dubuisson of Opelousas, La.

Miss Platt, on of Monroe's loveliest and most delightful personalities, was born and reared in Monroe and was graduated from the Ouachita Parish High school, where her mother, the former Olive Reily, a great favorite in social, educational and club circles, was identified with the faculty of the city schools for many years. Miss Platt also attended Hollins college, Hollins, Va., and was graduated from Louisiana State university. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Dubuisson, member of an old, aristocratic southern family, attended Notre Dame university in Indiana and was graduated from the law department of Tulane university at New Orleans. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Mr. Dubuisson is a member of the law firm of Dubuisson and Sons of Opalousas.

Broussard-LaFleur

Of interest to friends was the marriage of Miss Inez LaFleur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. LaFleur and Mr. Frank Broussard of Alexandria, Tuesday, September the tenth, at the home of the bride's mother in Kinder, La.

The marriage was performed in the reception suite in a setting of beautiful pink columbia roses, palms and ferns. Myriad pink tapers burned in the background.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered with Mrs. Robert R. Rhymes, pianist, and Mr. Fred Allen, soloist.

The bride's attendant, her sister, Miss Cora Mae LaFleur, wore a smart ensemble of brown.

The bride who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Robert Rhymes, wore a handsome brown corded crepe tailleur with all accessories of the same color. She wore an exquisite corsage of Talisman roses.

The ceremony was performed by Reverend Paul Leeds.

Following the marriage service, Mr. and Mrs. Broussard left for Mexico, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Broussard are graduates of Louisiana State university. Mrs. Broussard is a member of Kappa Delta sorority and Mr. Broussard a member of Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Many out-of-town guests attended the wedding.

Pratt-Puckett

The announcement today of the marriage of Miss Clara Belle Puckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Puckett of Collinston and Dr. C. W. Pratt, claims the interest of friends.

The wedding ceremony was performed on the twenty-fourth of August at the Presbyterian manse in Bastrop, with Reverend O'Neal, officiating.

Mrs. Pratt, a graduate of the Louisiana state normal, is a member of the Beekman school faculty.

Dr. Pratt, a prominent young dentist of Collinston and Bastrop, was graduated from the Washington university of St. Louis. He is a member of Beta Sigma fraternity.

Dr. and Mrs. Pratt are now at home to their friends in Bastrop.

Tillinghast-Gordon

A marriage characterized by impressive dignity and charming simplicity and claiming the sincere and affectionate interest of friends in this section of the state was that of Miss Dorothy Gordon and A. Y. Tillinghast on Monday evening, September 9, at eight o'clock at the Park Avenue Methodist church, Shreveport. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Ware.

The bride wore a distinctive fall ensemble of rust crepe with brown accessories. Her attendants were Misses Ann and Glenn Walker of Mooringsport.

The bride, who possesses an unusually charming personality, is the talented and attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles J. Gordon of Sicily Island, La. She holds a B.A. degree and a diploma in voice from Louisiana State Normal, and is a member of the Tri Sigma sorority. She received her training on her master's degree at the University of Arkansas, and for the past few years has taught in Morringsport.

Mr. Tillinghast, who is a member of a pioneer family of north Louisiana, attended L. S. U. and is now associated with the Gulf Refining company at Mooringsport.

Following the ceremony they left for a short motor trip, after which they will make their home in Mooringsport.

Guess-Hodge

A wedding characterized by exquisite simplicity and one in which much interest throughout the state is centered is that of Miss Dorothy Hodge, lovely and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tobin R. Hodge, of Rayville, and Samuel Cain Guess, of Vicksburg, Miss., which was beautifully solemnized on last Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, at St. David's Episcopal church, in Rayville. Dr. E. F. Hayward, rector, performing the impressive ring ceremony.

The chancel was a mass of southern smilax and queen's wreath, which formed a beautiful background where myriad white tapers gleamed. Pink radiance roses lifted their heads from tall wicker floor standards and were massed against the altar in artistic array.

Mrs. J. Y. Abraugh at the organ rendered a pre-nuptial concert while the guests were being seated. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

The ushers were Messrs. Millard and Ernest Lipscomb.

The bride and her attendants were gowned in three shades of blue crepe. Little Sarah Aycock, junior bride's maid, wearing the lightest shade, carried a nosegay bouquet of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots. Miss Eleanor Hodge, sister of the bride, maid of honor, wore a darker blue crepe model with accessories to match and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Tobin R. Hodge, was a picture of lovliness in a smart blue tailleur and engaging little hat and face veil of same color, and an arm bouquet of some briarcliff roses completed the ensemble.

Mr. Guess and his best man, John T. Richardson, of Tennessee, awaited the bride at the altar. To the notes of Mendelssohn's Recessional the wedding party left the church and motored to the home of the bride where they received congratulations from their many friends, after which they left immediately on their honeymoon.

Mrs. Guess is a general favorite, as manifested in the numerous pre-nuptial affairs marking her engagement days, and the many beautiful wedding gifts received. She is a graduate of the Rayville high school, attended All Saints college, of Vicksburg, Miss., completing her education at the Louisiana State university and State Normal college. She is a member of the Chi Omega sorority. After finishing college she became a member of the faculty of the Rayville high school. One of the notable accomplishments of this charming and talented young lady is her voice, which has delighted friends on many occasions.

Samuel Cain Guess, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Guess, of Greenwood, Miss., is a graduate of the University of Mississippi and a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is connected with the United States waterways experiment station, at Vicksburg, Miss.

The out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Guess, Miss Sarah Guess, of Greenwood, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson, of Tennessee; Dr. C. H. Mosely, Misses Lallage and Gertrude Feazel, Miss Evelyn Hodge, Mrs. Ray Rhymes, of Monroe; J. Floyd Hodge, of New Orleans; Mrs. Clara B. Hodge, Simon Hodge, Irvin Hodge, of Calhoun; Mr. J. J. Grambling, and Miss Jean Grambling, of Jackson, Miss.

All Monroe Streets Will Lead To Schools Monday Morning

September Procession Is Once More At Hand

Teachers Return To Their Tasks From Summer Of Relaxation And Travel; Two Principals Back From State Normal

Vacation days are over and once again the younger generation comes to the boundary line of playtime.

We are again about to view the familiar September procession of bobbing curls and the less tractable male thatches with their scalp locks damp but still defiant to watery persuasion after a summer of neglect; of short, perky starched skirts and blouses strangely free from baseball lot smudges; of shining young faces, each a testimonial to soap's efficacy when employed under parental supervision.

Tomorrow the school doors will swing wide and across the threshold will walk the future citizens of Monroe.

Whitcomb Riley's well known lines, "The feet that creeping slow to school went storming out to playing," should be read in reverse action tomorrow, when scampering feet, with little show of reluctance, will all lead to the welcoming doors of the school house.

Teachers, fresh from a summer of complete relaxation and travel, have been pouring into the city for the past week. Those who live elsewhere have been busily engaged in seeking living quarters, with the small efficiency apartments more in demand than ever before. Hotel life also appeals to a great number of teachers who find the smooth running hostelry much to their liking after a trying day at school.

Two Monroe teachers who occupy their own special niche in the educational life of this city, Miss Julia Wossman, principal of the Barkdull Faulk school, and Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal of the Georgia Tucker school, spent their summer vacations hard at work at the state normal. Although they have years of splendid achievement to their credit and are constantly brushing up so as to keep step with life as it is lived today, they spend their vacations at some seat of learning, grasping for more knowledge and growth in their work. Their educational strides are appreciated beyond measure, as testified by the enthusiastic gathering of teachers from every school in the city attending the reception in their honor Friday afternoon at the Sherrouse school auditorium.

Without a doubt, Miss Wossman and Miss Rodgers are Monroe's most progressive women. They have realized that there is a new and scientific attitude toward public affairs. They have also met the interesting change in the psychological attitude toward women and have accepted those forms which will be applicable to the times.

Departing Girl Feted

The historic old oak tree at the Layton Place was the setting, Friday night, for an al fresco supper, with Beta Sigma Phi hostesses in honor of their departing member, Miss Bonnie Lynn, who left Saturday for Tyler, Texas, to attend school.

Mrs. W. J. Veazey, sponsor, was cohostess on this occasion and extended guests the hospitality of her home following the al fresco supper. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful parting gift to Miss Lynn.

Present were: Miss Lynn and Misses Lola Hersh, Virginia Simms, Louise Simms, Winifred Maroney, Kitty Barr, Diana Powers, Linda Erick, Mary McCord, Lucy Hanchey, Mary Elizabeth Jarmen, Evelyn Hill, Jerry Wilkes, Shirley Sawyer, Dorothy McComb, Odine Butler, Ruth Murphy, Dot Brown, Jane Warren, Jean Sholars, Dorothy Lively and Mrs. T. Cookie Problem Arises

Right on the heels of school clothes, books, pencil boxes and new alarm clocks comes the cookie-baking proposition for mothers. Cookies for school lunches, for recess, for after-school snacks bring on the search for the old favorites that are economical, substantial, appealing and easy to keep.

Suggestions will no doubt be welcomed by mothers who endeavor to keep the cookie jar filled during the school months. By the way, the stone crockery jars are the best for keeping the cookies fresh and crisp, while the tin cake and bread boxes are best for the moist, soft ones.

A few favorites have been popular with school children throughout a century. The rich molasses cakes, the spiced and crunchy oatmeal cookies, and the sharp-tanged and scalloped little ginger snaps are as generally favored by the small girls and boys today as they were by their grandparents, and they are just as coveted by the children in the city schools as by those who carry their lunches in tin pails to the district and country schools.

There are cookie makers who use a foundation formula for their small cake baking, varying the thickness, the sweetness, the spiciness, the shortness or the moisture for hard or soft, plain or fancy cookies, or for the cruller-like varieties. This is one of the time honored and standard formulas that will assure reasonable results and yet allow your tastes and originality full play.

4 cups flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1 cup milk.
1-4 cup butter.
1 cup sugar.
2 eggs.
Flavoring.

Mix and sift together the flour, salt and baking powder. Rub the butter and sugar to a cream, and add the well-beaten eggs, then add alternately to the eggs and sugar the dry mixture and the milk. Flavor with one-fourth teaspoon of grated nutmeg, mace, cinnamon, or half a teaspoon of vanilla or lemon extract. When the mixture is made into a compact mass, turn out onto a floured board and pat into shape. Roll out half an inch thick and cut into rings. Let stand a few minutes to stiffen slightly, then drop into deep boiling fat. Cook to a golden brown, turn once, then lift out with a skimmer and drain on paper. When cool, cover with powdered sugar mixed with a little cinnamon.

For a richer cruller omit half the milk and use only enough flour to make dough of proper consistency to roll. To make chocolate doughnuts, add 3 tablespoons of unsweetened chocolate, melted over hot water, to the butter and sugar mixture; then add the egg, milk, etc., and fry as usual. For jam crullers, roll the dough thin and cut in rounds; put a teaspoon of jam on each, moisten the edges and place another round on top, press edges together and fry in deep fat. For plain cookies, use the recipe without changes, rolling the dough very thin and cut in disks or fancy shapes. Sprinkle with granulated sugar, chopped nuts or chopped candied fruit. Roll slightly before baking. A cherry, raisin or nut meat may be placed in the center before baking. For rich cookies omit half the milk and use only enough water to allow you to roll the dough. For chocolate cookies, omit three or four spoons of flour and add an equal amount of melted chocolate or cocoa. Another variation is to add half a cup of freshly grated cocoanut to the dough before all the flour has been added to it, then make it just stiff enough to roll easily.

Keynote Is Struck

Education for living, not alone education for earning a living, will be the keynote of the General Federation of Women's clubs during this coming triennial term. This was the message relayed yesterday from Washington, D. C., by Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, newly elected federation president.

In explanation Mrs. Lawson said, "I hope to continue the constructive program set up by my predecessor, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole. Education for living will be the keynote, not education for earning a living alone, but that sort of education that teaches the real value of life and helps to solve current problems with fairness and intelligence."

Nine women well versed in the work of the federation, as well as in current affairs, have been selected as department heads to carry out the new term program. Chairmanship of the department of education has been awarded to Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, former president of the Maryland federation and vice chairman of the general federation's department of legislation. In the latter capacity Mrs. Whitehurst has served as liaison officer between the federation and congress.

Mrs. Elbert W. Shirk of Hollands, Cal., is the new chairman of the department of juniors, the newest federation department. Mrs. Shirk's mother, the late Mrs. J. A. Kimberly, was in no small measure responsible for the beginning of the junior movement.

Mrs. William Dick Sporberg, the efficient chairman of resolutions for the general federation during the last three years, will head the department of legislation the coming term. Mrs. Herbert F. French of Braintree, Mass., has been named extension secretary for international clubs, and Dr. Anna Lewis Chickasha of Oklahoma is the new chairman of the literature department. The are championship has been given to Mrs. Frederick B. Hall of St. Louis, while Illinois' own Mrs. William J. Piggott has been awarded the chairmanship of the music department.

Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt of Washington, D. C., former president of the District of Columbia federation, will preside over the radio department during the coming term, and Mrs. Howard B. Hancock, of Greenwich, N. J., will serve as chairman of the division of homemaking.

This fall and winter the general federation will be on the air once each week, beginning Oct. 4. The time for the radio broadcast has been set tentatively for 2:45 o'clock eastern standard time.

All Monroe Streets Will Lead To Schools Monday Morning

September Procession Is Once More At Hand

Teachers Return To Their Tasks From Summer Of Relaxation And Travel; Two Principals Back From State Normal

Vacation days are over and once again the younger generation comes to the boundary line of playtime.

We are again about to view the familiar September procession of bobbing curls and the less tractable male thatches with their scalp locks damp but still defiant to watery persuasion after a summer of neglect; of short, perky starched skirts and blouses strangely free from baseball lot smudges; of shining young faces, each a testimonial to soap's efficacy when employed under parental supervision.

Tomorrow the school doors will swing wide and across the threshold will walk the future citizens of Monroe.

Whitcomb Riley's well known lines, "The feet that creeping slow to school went storming out to playing," should be read in reverse action tomorrow, when scampering feet, with little show of reluctance, will all lead to the welcoming doors of the school house.

Teachers, fresh from a summer of complete relaxation and travel, have been pouring into the city for the past week. Those who live elsewhere have been busily engaged in seeking living quarters, with the small efficiency apartments more in demand than ever before. Hotel life also appeals to a great number of teachers who find the smooth running hostelry much to their liking after a trying day at school.

Two Monroe teachers who occupy their own special niche in the educational life of this city, Miss Julia Wossman, principal of the Barkdull Faulk school, and Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal of the Georgia Tucker school, spent their summer vacations hard at work at the state normal. Although they have years of splendid achievement to their credit and are constantly brushing up so as to keep step with life as it is lived today, they spend their vacations at some seat of learning, grasping for more knowledge and growth in their work. Their educational strides are appreciated beyond measure, as testified by the enthusiastic gathering of teachers from every school in the city attending the reception in their honor Friday afternoon at the Sherrouse school auditorium.

Without a doubt, Miss Wossman and Miss Rodgers are Monroe's most progressive women. They have realized that there is a new and scientific attitude toward public affairs. They have also met the interesting change in the psychological attitude toward women and have accepted those forms which will be applicable to the times.

Departing Girl Feted

The historic old oak tree at the Layton Place was the setting, Friday night, for an al fresco supper, with Beta Sigma Phi hostesses in honor of their departing member, Miss Bonnie Lynn, who left Saturday for Tyler, Texas, to attend school.

Mrs. W. J. Veazey, sponsor, was cohostess on this occasion and extended guests the hospitality of her home following the al fresco supper. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful parting gift to Miss Lynn.

Cookie Problem Arises

Right on the heels of school clothes, books, pencil boxes and new alarm clocks comes the cookie-baking proposition for mothers. Cookies for school lunches, for recess, for after-school snacks bring on the search for the old favorites that are economical, substantial, appealing and easy to keep.

Suggestions will no doubt be welcomed by mothers who endeavor to keep the cookie jar filled during the school months. By the way, the stone crockery jars are the best for keeping the cookies fresh and crisp, while the tin cake and bread boxes are best for the moist, soft ones.

A few favorites have been popular with school children throughout a century. The rich molasses cakes, the spiced and crunchy oatmeal cookies, and the sharp-tanged and scalloped little ginger snaps are as generally favored by the small girls and boys today as they were by their grandparents, and they are just as coveted by the children in the city schools as by those who carry their lunches in tin pails to the district and country schools.

There are cookie makers who use a foundation formula for their small cake baking, varying the thickness, the sweetness, the spiciness, the shortness or the moisture for hard or soft, plain or fancy cookies, or for the cruller-like varieties. This is one of the time honored and standard formulas that will assure reasonable results and yet allow your tastes and originality full play.

4 cups flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1 cup milk.
1-4 cup butter.
1 cup sugar.
2 eggs.
Flavoring.

Mix and sift together the flour, salt and baking powder. Rub the butter and sugar to a cream, and add the well-beaten eggs, then add alternately to the eggs and sugar the dry mixture and the milk. Flavor with one-fourth teaspoon of grated nutmeg, mace, cinnamon, or half a teaspoon of vanilla or lemon extract. When the mixture is made into a compact mass, turn out onto a floured board and pat into shape. Roll out half an inch thick and cut into rings. Let stand a few minutes to stiffen slightly, then drop into deep boiling fat. Cook to a golden brown, turn once, then lift out with a skimmer and drain on paper. When cool, cover with powdered sugar mixed with a little cinnamon.

For a richer cruller omit half the milk and use only enough flour to make dough of proper consistency to roll. To make chocolate doughnuts, add 3 tablespoons of unsweetened chocolate, melted over hot water, to the butter and sugar mixture; then add the egg, milk, etc., and fry as usual. For jam crullers, roll the dough thin and cut in rounds; put a teaspoon of jam on each, moisten the edges and place another round on top, press edges together and fry in deep fat. For plain cookies, use the recipe without changes, rolling the dough very thin and cut in disks or fancy shapes. Sprinkle with granulated sugar, chopped nuts or chopped candied fruit. Roll slightly before baking. A cherry, raisin or nut meat may be placed in the center before baking. For rich cookies omit half the milk and use only enough water to allow you to roll the dough. For chocolate cookies, omit three or four spoons of flour and add an equal amount of melted chocolate or cocoa. Another variation is to add half a cup of freshly grated cocoanut to the dough before all the flour has been added to it, then make it just stiff enough to roll easily.

Enthusiastic Traveler Tells Of Sights Seen On Voyage

Miss Beryl Madison Describes Her Trip

Returning Vacationist Gives Description Of Places Visited In England And Scotland During Summer

Lake homing pigeons, summer travelers have all returned and are under their own roofs, refreshed and happy and possessing a wealth of precious memories that depression, war conditions and the march of time can never deprive them of.

One of the most enthusiastic vacationists is Miss Beryl Madison, who spent the summer touring the British Isles. So impressed was she with the Isles of Scotland told by her fellow passengers on board her steamer en route to England, she keenly anticipated her visit to this beautiful land.

Miss Madison gives a graphic description of Staffa, island of the Inner Hebrides of Scotland, known for its Cave of Fingal, its majestic entrance made glorious with basaltic columns from twenty to forty feet in height. The Gaelic name for Fingal is "The Cave of Music," expressive of the sounds and tones of the sea around and within it. Today it is the home of seals and birds.

Miss Madison also spoke of the beauty of Clyde river, where, alongside the banks, Harry Lauder "went roaming in the gloaming." The river is so narrow, passengers on board a steamer going up to Glasgow can carry on a conversation with persons standing on the shore.

Miss Madison also speaks of the charms of Edinburgh. Rising from the terraced gardens in the center of the city is that famous stronghold, Edinburgh Rock, on top of which is Edinburgh castle, famous in the history of Scotland. The view is unsurpassed. Here is the chapel, the oldest Christian church in Scotland. In the castle one glimpses the room in which Mary Queen of Scots and James VI were born. Of interest also is the view from the window from which the royal infant was lowered in a basket, three hundred feet, that he might be baptized secretly in the Catholic church. In one of the towers is found the crown jewels of Scotland. Scotland owes the discovery of these rich treasures to Sir Walter Scott. Several gates lead from the castle to an open court, where guards wearing kilts of the Highland pace up and down.

Miss Madison said, "We went back to the city, down the sloping hills of Lammermuir, where crystal clear lakes dot the valleys, where sheep lie in the sun-drenched, grassy meadows and black birds fly thickly from tree to tree. The setting seemed perfect for proud old families, historic castles, history and romance."

Continuing, she said, "The English lakes, rimmed by high hills, like the foothills of the Rockies, lived up to their advertisement for beauty. 'Mere' is the old English word for lake. The drive from Keswick, past Grassmere, where Wordsworth wrote some of his most famous poems, down to Windermere, was continuously beautiful. It was Sunday and Windermere was overrun with Britishers on holiday—'holyday' is the way they pronounce it. 'Holiday' is a sacred institution in England.

"Ripon, a fine old cathedral town, has a unique institutiuon, the wakeman. The wakeman, for more than 1,000 years, has blown his horn four times every night on the market square. On the Ripon town hall is the inscription, 'Except the Lord keep the city the wakeman waketh in vain.'"

NEW MEMBERS OF FACULTY AT LOUISIANA TECH

Here are pictures of three new faculty members appointed at Louisiana Tech for the school year opening on Monday, Sept. 16. Left to right: Miss Martha Vaught, instructor in physical education for women; James A. Smith, band director and instructor in music, and Miss Helen Johnson, assistant dean of dormitory women. Miss Vaught, a native of Ruston, holds degrees from Louisiana Tech and the University of Alabama. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Michigan State Normal college and the University of Michigan. Miss Johnson graduated from Louisiana college and did advanced work at Louisiana State university.

CHAPTER XXV

"Enjoying the moon, Jo?"

This time the girl recognized the voice as belonging to Bret Paul. With another stride Bret stepped from the shadows of the path and into the clear moonlight reflecting up from the shimmering lake.

"I was just going to walk along the shore of the lake," Jo told him with a cordial smile. "Want to come along?"

He hesitated the fraction of a moment—long enough for Jo to sense that he had other plans. But he managed at last to say, "I'd like to very much, Jo."

She smiled quizzically. "Perhaps you'd better not, Bret, if you have an appointment."

"I haven't an appointment," he answered stiffly. "Babs said she might take a walk tonight, and I told her I might run into her, that's all."

Jo was somehow enjoying his discomfort thoroughly. "Well, if we should meet her there's no reason why we can't make it a three-some hike, is there? Or do you think three and the moon is a crowd?"

Bret fell into step with her. "Don't start kidding me, Jo. I don't feel like beng kidded."

"Oh . . ." she put surprise into her ejaculation. "Then it's that serious?"

"Don't be a fool," he told her roughly. "You know darned well I've never been serious about Babs Montgomery. Only a fellow gets mighty lonesome up here, Jo."

"Lonesome? With all this mob."

He nodded. "Oh, it's all right for you. But I don't belong, and I don't want to, really. I'm just the life guard."

"And I'm just the hostess," Jo laughed.

"But you're a girl, and a darned pretty one. You've all the men chasing you, so of course you're not lonely."

"Not all, Bret," objected Jo with a laugh.

When he answered, his voice was touched with faint anger. "Do you want any more? This aviator fellow, and Marsh—and this crazy Fragonet . . ."

"That's not quite true, Bret. I'll admit that Mr. Fragonet has been a little—well, silly. But Todd Barston is just a good friend, and Douglas Marsh is only my employer."

"Does your work include having dinner with him at the Lone Tree Tavern?"

"Bret . . ." Jo put a hand on his arm. "Bret, let's not get started on that again. Besides, you've been listening to the veranda chorus, I'm afraid."

"I haven't been listening to anything," Bret said. "I'm not altogether blind." He turned to her suddenly. "Jo, I don't want to be unpleasant every time we meet. But it hurts me to see you acting like this."

"Hurts you?" repeated Jo, bewildered.

He nodded. "Of course it does. Good Lord, Jo! Do you think I could love you as much as—as I did and not care what you do now?"

"That's true, Bret," admitted Jo slowly. "That's why I don't want our friendship to be spoiled ever. But somehow we seem to be unable to avoid argument." She looked out across the lake for a silent moment, then added, "If you could just believe in me, Bret. Why can't you now? You used to believe in me."

"You've changed," he told her quickly. "I don't believe you realize yourself how much you've changed—and that's what makes it hurt all the more."

Jo faced him squarely, and when she spoke again her words were slow, careful, measured. "Perhaps I have changed. Do you really think a girl could be just the same after what happened, Bret?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I loved you, Bret. I doubt if you ever realized how much, because I don't think any man ever realizes how much a woman loves him. He's so wrapped up in himself, so intent with his own love—" She stopped, biting her lips. "Bret, I'd have followed you anywhere, I'd have done anything in the world for you. I thought there wasn't any man in the world quite like you."

"But, Jo—"

"Please let me finish," Jo interrupted. "I thought there wasn't any man in the world like you, Bret—and then you walked into the apartment that night and showed me you'd take the word of someone else against mine."

"You'd lied to me already," Bret reminded her. "You told me you had to work, and then I found you'd been dancing with Marsh."

"I know, Bret. I'm not trying to defend myself. I'm only trying to explain why I changed. I lied to you, I think, because I was all confused. I'd never had to have a job before, and then suddenly a job was the most important thing in the world. But you wouldn't listen to me even for a minute that night—"

"I didn't want you to come down here," Bret said quickly.

"I had to come, don't you see? And when I did come you were finished. Do you remember what you said?"

Bret nodded, as though he did not want to hear the words repeated. "I remember, Jo."

She was silent a moment, and then went on again, slowly. "I didn't feel like living, Bret. I suppose that was the most terrible night I'll ever spend in my whole life. "But . . ." she smiled up at him bitterly, "the morning came—and I was still alive. I was still alive and I had to go out and start my job. It was a shock at first when I'd stop and realize that there were hours, even whole days, when I didn't think of you at all, Bret."

"You don't need to walk on the body, Jo."

"I'm not trying to be cruel. But don't you see a girl can't go through a thing like that and be the same? Don't you see that when she comes out of it she's—she's a little harder than before?"

They walked along the lake then for several yards before either spoke again. Finally Bret said, "Perhaps you're right, Jo. But that doesn't explain your actions down here. I've known what's between you and Fragonet, and—"

"There's nothing at all between us. He wants to divorce his wife, and, so he insists, marry me."

"A thing like that doesn't come out of the blue sky," Bret said. "He must have had some reason."

"Do you mean to say you think I encouraged him?" asked Jo.

"Maybe you didn't encourage him, exactly, but—" he stopped. "Tell me this. Fragonet's going to be up here again. What do you propose to do?"

"Do? Why, I'll just go along as I have been."

"You won't refuse to see him?" Bret wanted to know.

Jo shook her head. "I couldn't refuse to see him, Bret. You can't avoid a man in a place like this."

"Perhaps you'll even return to Hollywood with him?" suggested Bret.

For a moment Jo was too incensed to speak. Bret's continual barrage of questions aoout Fragonet had made her increasingly angry. And now his insinuation that she would carry on what Bret obviously believed to be an affair—

"Perhaps I will," Jo said, meeting his eyes defiantly.

Suddenly Bret grasped her shoulders in his strong fingers, brought her nearer to him. "Jo, I want you to leave Crest Lake before Fragonet arrives."

That, Jo told him quietly, was impossible. "And please let go of me, Bret. I'm going back to the Inn."

"I won't let you go until you've promised me that you'll leave this place before he comes."

Startled at the fanatical gleam in Bret's eyes, Jo had difficulty in finding her voice again. But then her anger mounted once more and she jerked herself fiercely from his grip.

"Bret Paul, you've gone insane," she told him hysterically. "I'll leave Crest Lake when I'm ready and not a minute before."

"That means only one thing to me," he answered, glaring at her in the half-light. "It means—"

"You don't have to tell me what it means to you," Jo replied quickly. "It could mean only one thing to you. And I think we'd best keep away from each other in the future."

Bret rushed toward her along the path, and before Jo could protect herself he had taken her roughly in his arms. "Jo—Jo, there's no use in my trying to pretend. I still love you and I guess I always will. That's why I'm so insane. That's why I can't stand to see you changing like this."

Two Smart Patterns

PATTERN 2393 AND 2392

Both the one-piece and the dressy-blouse-with-skirt frock are in high favor this fall, especially when they're of the "go anywhere" type, as these are. You'll be tempted to keep your back turned all the time, when appraising eyes rest upon your new satin or velvet frock—pattern 2393 with its arresting two-score button trim, although you're equally proud of the pleated jabot in front. There's a glorified peasant influence in the tunic blouse of pattern 2392, with its sleeves and yoke cut all-in-one, and a saucy flare to the separate skirt of wool or velveteen. The blouse may be of crepe or satin.

Pattern 2393 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34 36 38 and 40. Size 16 tunic takes 2 1-4 yards 39 inch fabric; skirt takes 2 1-8 yards. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK for Fall and Winter is just out! In its forty handsomely-illustrated pages, you'll find just the smart and easy-to-use pattern designs you want—to keep yourself and family well dressed all season through. Exclusive designs for every occasion—home, business, school, parties, coats, frocks, undies . . . even doll wardrobes. Fascinating specialties to make for gifts. Helpful advice on fabrics, accessories, beauty, etiquette of dress. SEND FOR YOUR COPY TODAY! PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Two Smart Patterns

PATTERN 2393 AND 2392

Both the one-piece and the dressy-blouse-with-skirt frock are in high favor this fall, especially when they're of the "go anywhere" type, as these are. You'll be tempted to keep your back turned all the time, when appraising eyes rest upon your new satin or velvet frock—pattern 2393 with its arresting two-score button trim, although you're equally proud of the pleated jabot in front. There's a glorified peasant influence in the tunic blouse of pattern 2392, with its sleeves and yoke cut all-in-one, and a saucy flare to the separate skirt of wool or velveteen. The blouse may be of crepe or satin.

Pattern 2393 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34 36 38 and 40. Size 16 tunic takes 2 1-4 yards 39 inch fabric; skirt takes 2 1-8 yards. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK for Fall and Winter is just out! In its forty handsomely-illustrated pages, you'll find just the smart and easy-to-use pattern designs you want—to keep yourself and family well dressed all season through. Exclusive designs for every occasion—home, business, school, parties, coats, frocks, undies . . . even doll wardrobes. Fascinating specialties to make for gifts. Helpful advice on fabrics, accessories, beauty, etiquette of dress. SEND FOR YOUR COPY TODAY! PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

MODEL CLINIC SUCCESS, SETS U. S. PATTERN

Mortgage Plan Is Explained With Actual Cases At Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio.—Received with unprecedented enthusiasm, the Model Mortgage Clinic conducted here by the Federal Housing administration stimulated 688 individuals to seek insured mortgage loans totaling $1,652,000 in the first two days of operation.

Approximately 1,200 attended the clinic held at the Toledo Chamber of Commerce, August 22-24. The clinic met with such a general response from the public that it was decided to continue its operation through August 31.

The Toledo clinic was organized in such a fashion as to be a model for clinics to be conducted in other cities in the near future. Through the "mortgage clinic," the general public, lending institution executives, contractors, architects, and others are acquainted with the manner in which the mutual mortgage insurance plan operates by witnessing the handling of actual cases.

Notification of the continuation of the clinic was given to Toledo by Assistant Administrator Stewart McDonald in which he stated that the closing date would be extended because of the splendid cooperation offered the Federal Housing Administration by citizens of Toledo.

During the first two-day period of the clinic it became necessary to call in Federal Housing workers from outside of Toledo to handle the rush. Prior to the opening of the clinic, a clinic meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce, August 21, when 635 persons were in attendance.

Local newspapers devoted front page space to the event throughout the week. It was expected that by the close of the week ending August 31 a large additional volume of business will have been handled.

Plans are now under way to conduct the second model mortgage clinic in a city to be announced in the near future.

DISAPPEARING TABLE

Many house owners who do not have a dining room and use the living room for dining find that a disappearing table is very advantageous. It save space in the room and maintains the harmony of the living area. A table may be bolted to the wall and hidden by a simple paneled door. This method is also being used by house owners who have small dining rooms to take care of larger groups of guests.

Air Condition Trade Places, Current Trend

Since the extension of the amount insurable by the Federal Housing administration under the modernization credit plan to $50,000 on commercial-residential and industrial properties increased interest in the possibilities offered by air-conditioning equipment is being reported from many sources.

In many types of concerns air conditioning is now regarded as a necessity without which weather conditions create obstacles detrimental to business. Originally adapted most widely to industrial use, in cases where control of air conditions was necessary to produce certain commodities properly, it has made tremendous strides in the past four or five years for general commercial use in such establishments as restaurants, theaters, department stores, specialty shops, funeral homes, beauty salons, barber shops, and a variety of other businesses. In such cases it has been found that air conditioning usually pays for itself in increased profits.

Merchants have observed that a comfortable customer selects merchandise more quickly and buys more freely and confidently than a tired, uncomfortable one. The public, experiencing the benefits of air conditioning more and more every day in theaters, railroad trains, hotels, and restaurants, knows its advantages and will patronize places where comfort is assured, according to merchandising experts. Time after time places of business have noted large increases of the customary summer slump after in business and the total elimination installing conditioning equipment. Many find that they obtain their greatest volume in the summer when they gain business from competitors who do not match their facilities for comfort. Many storekeepers have reported that, with air conditioning, they not only have more customers but the average sale per customer is greater.

In the course of a year, the average man speaks 11,000,000 words.

INSURANCE PLAN IS AID TO TAX COLLECTIONS

Various Governmental Groups Report Benefits From FHA Payment

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Collection of city, state and county taxes on properties bearing federal housing administration insured mortgages is definitely assured, such levies being included in the regular monthly payments made by borrowers to their respective lending agencies, Acting Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald pointed out recently.

The long-term nature of the payments also provides for a convenient method for owners to meet tax obligations.

"Tax collection on real property has presented a problem to municipal, county and state governments of recent years," he said. "Through the operation of the mutual mortgage insurance plan the benefits are felt both by local government agencies as well as by the home owner."

Budgets Suffer

In many sections of the country, it has been found, inability to collect real estate taxes has materially crippled municipal budgets, thus curtailing much public improvement activity. With the definite need for refinancing existing mortgages and the need for new building, the tax problem is immediately solved through the function of the mutual mortgage insurance plan, the acting administrator pointed out. Over the maximum period of 20 years, as long us the borrower meets his obligation, the taxes on the property under mortgage are paid along with the principal, interest and insurance in the regular monthly payments. The tax-collecting agencies merely have to call upon the bank or other lending agency for the tax monies due which are included in these payments to the lending agency.

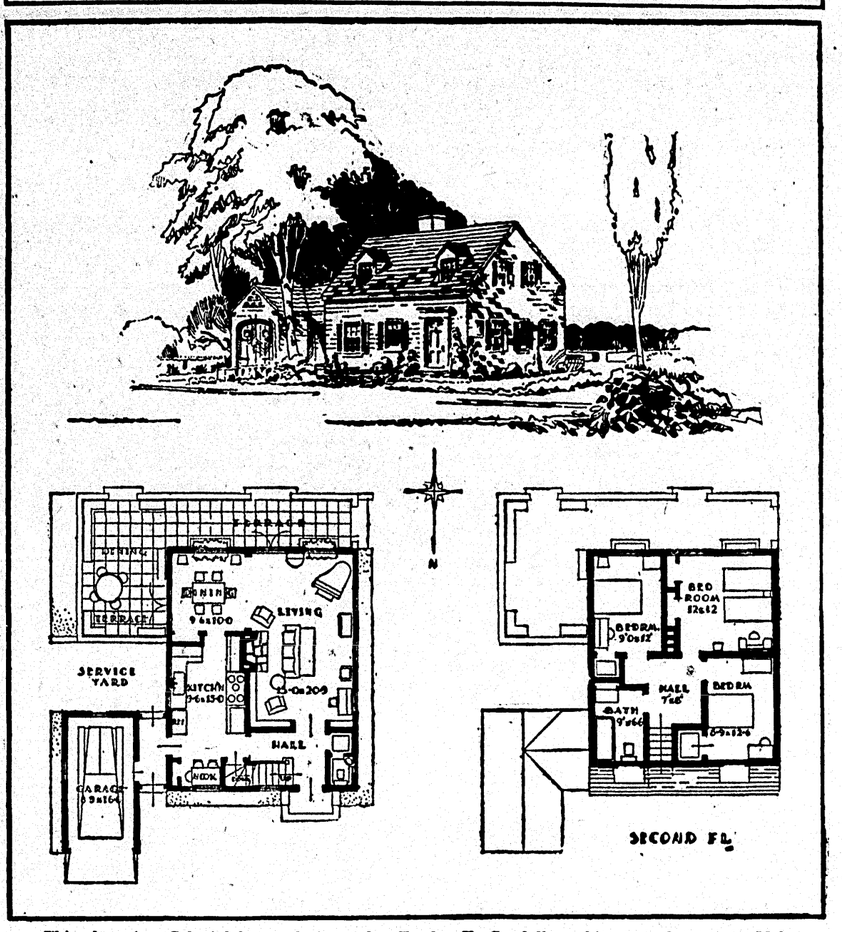

"Even as it provides for a long-term method of payment of a home, the mutual mortgage insurance plan also provides for a long-term, easy method of meeting tax obligations, giving the local governments a higher expectancy percentage and also giving the owner a means of payment well within his capacity to pay," he said.

Eliminates Cost

The acting administrator further pointed to the elimination through the insured mortgage plan of much cost and labor pertaining to tax collection. The procedure simplifies collection, as the collector merely has to make one visit to the lending agencies in a given section each month and there collects the taxes on all houses upon which those agencies hold mortgages.

Careful Planning, Better Homes

This charming Colonial house designed by Charles F. Goodall, architect, is located in Melrose, Mass., and was financed under a Federal Housing Administration insured mortgage. Its location on the property is particularly well studied—the service and garden areas are well segregated and the terrace off the living room and dining alcove has an unobstructed view of the garden. The garage and kitchen are conveniently located and have access to the main entrance hall. Throughout the house all space is economically used, and yet no room is crowded. Construction of this home was begun on National Better Housing Day, June 15.

Foundation Decay Is Cause Of Serious Loss

Inadequate or decaying foundations are the most costly impairments to a house, in the opinion of contractors, for they constitute a constant drain on the pocketbook for repairs in almost every part of the home.

Weak, crumbling foundations mean a sagging, cracking, and falling-down process of the house generally which affects every floor and wall. Many home owners pay out hundreds of dollars for floor and wall repair work without realizing that the same amount of money expended on the foundation would stop the cause of the continual financial drain.

Good, permanent foundations can be given every house easily and economically. Using jacks as supports for the house, workmen excavate for a basement. Then concrete or other permanent walls can be built.

Home owners should not overlook the recreational opportunities opened up by the excavated space under the house. This space, instead of being allowed to remain idle or be used as a depository for refuse, may with but little expense be turned into a recreational center for the entire family.

To begin with, the basement walls may be finished. New partitions can be added which will divide the basement into various recreational rooms, such as children's rainy-day play room, lounge, study, and workshop combinations. Interesting and charming designes in interior finish may be effected.

Much-needed foundation improvements are now made possible by the plan established in the National Housing act. This law enables the home owner to go to his bank, trust company, or building and loan association and, with no red tape, borrow up to $2,000 for the renovizing of his home. These agencies make these loans, because they are insured by the federal government, against loss up to 20 per cent of the total credit they extend. The government itself lends no money.

Contractors agree that one of the best improvement investments is that designed for the strengthening of the foundation, for in this way the life of the entire house is lengthened, repair bills for other parts of the home are lowered, and in many cases wiped out entirely, and livability is also increased by the recreational use of the basement resulting from the improvements.

CLOTHES HAMPER

A solled-clothes hamper may be built into the bathroom and will add to the convenience of this room.

The hamper should be properly ventilated, both at the floor level and near the top.

If its is sturdily built, the hinged cover may be upholstered with waterproof cloth and be used as a bench.

FHA LAUNCHES DRIVE AGAINST FIRE HAZARDS

Effect Of Plan On Reduction Of Menace Stressed By Agency

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Upon receipt of several communications suggesting that the federal housing administration cooperate with agencies observing National Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12, the administration has launched a program through which the public is to be informed of the possibilities of fire-hazard reduction through the Modernization Credit Plan.

Cooperation with fire-prevention agencies and industry and business as a whole in observing National Fire Prevention Week was announced by Assistant Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald in a communication sent to the National Fire Waste Council, national organization that asked the housing administration to participate in the observance.

"In view of the active interest of this administration," Mr. McDonald said, "in fire prevention through modernization of existing buildings and construction of new houses in accordance with high standards, I should like to say that the federal housing administration will be glad to cooperate in every way possible with the National Fire Prevention Week program."

Members of the National Fire Waste Council include the American Institute of Architects, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Municipal Association, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Boy Scouts of America, Factory Mutual Inspection Department, International Asscciation of Civitan Clubs, International Association of Fire Fighters, International Association of Fire Chiefs, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Mutual Fire Prevention Bureau, National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, National Association of Credit Men, National Association of Insurance Agents, National Automatic Sprinkler Association, National Board of Fire Underwriters, National Safety Council, Railway Fire Protection Association, Underwriters' Laboratories, United States Forest Service, United States Bureau of Mines, United States Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States Bureau of Standards, Western Actuarial Bureau, National Fire Protection Association, National Committee Boys' and Girls' Club Work (4-H Clubs).

The Modernization Credit Plan offers the general public, business, and industry an effective means of minimizing fire hazard through conversion, improvement, or repair, the housing administration pointed out. High standards required of new urban homes to be insured under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Plan also act toward reducing fire-loss frequency.

Many industries have already intimated that they would point out the advantages to be derived from the federal housing administration's program in their own observances of Fire Prevention Week.

$10,000 INTEREST ON OLD MORTGAGE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Add financial tragedies:

The heirs of an estate in Pittsburgh recently paid off a $2,500 mortgage made in 1868 on a little farm. The institution which disclosed this information pointed out that the estate had paid in more than $10,000 in interest on the mortgage. This figure did not cover renewal fees, which must have been a considerable item, whether the mortgage was a three- or five-year mortgage, nor does it cover taxes. It presents a sorry picture when contrasted with the new mutual mortgage insurance plan. Under this system the mortgage would have been amortized in 20 years, the monthly payments covering interest, principal and taxes. There is no renewal clause.

BUILDING GAIN INDICATED BY PERMIT TOTAL

Nationwide Upturn Is Evident By Comparison With Past Year

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Building permits for July 1935 abstracted from the official records of metropolitan cities in a large majority of the 48 states indicate the nation-wide trend of current residence construction. This home-construction wave has immersed all sections in a manner that has seen no parallel in recent years.

"In the past," Assistant Administrator Stewart McDonald said, "the actuating force was frequently the speculative builder. In the current movement the impetus is coming mainly from persons who are building for their own occupancy."

The following list of cities from almost every section of the country gives a comparison of the building permits records for July of this year with that of last year.

These totals take into consideration only those premises that are to house from one to four families and do not include any federally financed projects or large apartment, flat, or other multi-family structures:

City	1935	1934

Saved by Modernization

"Before and after" views of a home in Palos Park, Ill., are shown here. The lower picture shows the antiquated, rapidly deteriorating frame structure before workmen tackled it. The house pictured above was the result of their efforts. Several changes in the general plan of the house, inclusion of a new and charming entrance doorway, a coating of cement stucco, and a new tiled roof recreated a structure that fast was falling into rack and ruin.

WIRING SHOULD BE MODERNIZED

Plan Makes Increased Safety Possible In Home, Other Buildings

Electric wiring systems in homes, stores, and other buildings may often be modernized profitably. Two principal reasons for a change, in many cases, are the fact that old wiring may be dangerous or ugly, and the fact that modern electrical appliances make it advisable to have more outlets than are usually present in old installations.

Wiring systems that passed official inspection when they were new may now be out-of-date from a standpoint of convenience, or downright hideous because of weaknesses brought about by years of service.

That part of electric wiring concerned with lighting can often be replaced or remodeled with beneficial results. Modern knowledge of the better distribution of light in homes, business establishments, churches, hospitals, and other buildings shows that many old installations are out-of-date and sometimes harmful to eyesight.

The increasing use of electricity for many purposes has, in many buildings rendered existing wiring inadequate for its purpose. Wires carrying too much of a load should be replaced, to prevent possibility of fire, short circuit, or blown fuse.

Installations of wiring, outlets, and many types of electrical appliances in almost any sort of building can be financed cheaply and easily under the Modernization Credit Plan directed by the Federal Housing Administration, through which credit up to $50,000 may be obtained from local financial institutions.

Selecting The Right Material Is Important

After the basic work on the new residence has been completed, the owner is called upon to make choice of hardware, electric fixtures, finish paint colors, and many other items. As a rule, the architect will arrange for appointments with those firms which supply these materials.

It is advisable for the owner to be accompanied by his architect or contractor. While he may feel confident in his own choice of designs or colors, he will often not be familiar with materials. Quality is an important factor in reducing maintenance costs, and the best quality which is allowed by the cash allowances should be chosen. If an interior decorator is furnishing the house, he should be called in at this time so that all interior finishes and hangings, wallpaper, etc., will harmonize.

When the various items have been chosen, samples should be kept in the architect's office. Many misunderstandings will be prevented if samples of all choices are initialed by the owner, architect, contractor, and, in cases of interior finish, the interior decorator.

At this stage in the building process difficulties often arise if the owner wishes to incorporate expensive items which were not allowed for in the original cost estimates. Often it is difficult to adhere to the predetermined allowances when the owner is inspecting the materials offered. The costs were originally set up on a proper apportionment of the total cost to the size of the structure and the quality of the materials to be used.

If changes are made which will increase the total cost, the owner must be prepared to pay for them. It is important that the architect or contractor have written agreements which are signed by the owner at the time he makes additions. This will prove to be a convenience both for the owner and those who are responsible for the erection of his house. Often in the rush of making choices numerous small items may not be added to the original costs, and both owner and architect are surprised at the total amount of additional money which will be needed for "extras."

COOL PORCH

If your house has no porch, or only one facing the sun in the afternoons, add a small porch or terrace on the side of the house which is coolest during the summer. Built-in wooden benches, boxes for flowers, or lattice for vines may be added, and this space will become a welcome addition to the summer living space.

NEW KITCHEN FAUCETS

Many old houses have obsolescent two-faucet systems.

The modern kitchen has an improved mixer type of faucet. This removes the danger of the housewife scalding her hands with the steaming hot water from the single hot-water outlet. The temperature of water from the mixer type faucet can be controlled.

One town in Louisa county, Va., is known as Cuckoo.

Yard Enclosure Presents Many Possibilities

In landscaping a yard, a home builder will frequently find it advantageous to enclose it with a fence of masonry, concrete, wood, wire, or wrought metal.

The tendency in modern living is to spend the greater amount of time at home in the rear of the house. As the result, increased care and attention is being given by home owners to the beautification of the rear yard.

Solid surrounding walls may or may not be embellished with vines if desired. In cases where fencing of rails, pickets, or wire is used it is frequently found desirable to cover with ivy. In some instances rambling roses or other flowering vines are popular, both for decoration and to increase the privacy of the yard.

A large area is not necessary to obtain beautiful effects in yard landscaping. Through utilizing the services of the skilled landscaping architect numerous charming results have been obtained in very small areas. Through his expert knowledge maximum beauty and space utilization is achieved.

Modernization credit for landscaping, including the utilization of various kinds of enclosures, pools, gardens, and lawns is available at private financial institutions approved by and cooperating with the federal housing administration, which insures such institutions against loss.

LIBRARY-GUEST ROOM FOR SMALL HOME PLANNED

Today's small apartments and houses seldom provide extra space for guest rooms.

A library or other major room may be designed so that it may be converted into a guest room with a minimum of trouble.

Bookshelves may be hidden by long curtains, which, during the time that the room is used as a library, may be drawn into a corner enclosure.

The desk may be provided with an extra drawer and shelf area which will be left for the use of the guest, and a glass or other washable top will make an appropriate dressing-table surface.

Either a studio couch or an in-a-door bed may be used, and either of these will not be in the way while the room is used as a library.

A desk lamp, placed on an end table, will make a satisfactory bedside table and lamp.

The colors in the furnishings and on the walls should be kept light in tone.

Properly planned, a double-purpose room may be made both efficient and attractive.

BUILDING GAIN INDICATED BY PERMIT TOTAL

Nationwide Upturn Is Evident By Comparison With Past Year

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Building permits for July 1935 abstracted from the official records of metropolitan cities in a large majority of the 48 states indicate the nation-wide trend of current residence construction. This home-construction wave has immersed all sections in a manner that has seen no parallel in recent years.

"In the past," Assistant Administrator Stewart McDonald said, "the actuating force was frequently the speculative builder. In the current movement the impetus is coming mainly from persons who are building for their own occupancy."

The following list of cities from almost every section of the country gives a comparison of the building permits records for July of this year with that of last year.

These totals take into consideration only those premises that are to house from one to four families and do not include any federally financed projects or large apartment, flat, or other multi-family structures:

City	1935	1934
Providence, R. I.	$46,100	$4,600

'Steamboat Round The Bend' Called Will Rogers' Greatest

Hilarious Comedy At Paramount

Irvin S. Cobb And Anne Shirley Included In All-Star Cast

THE battle of the century is on at the Paramount theater where Fox Film's "Steamboat Round the Bend" presents Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb in a hilarious, high-comedy rivalry that is tops for the season's film offerings.

"Steamboat Round the Bend" is warm in sentiment, rich in characterizations, replete with thrills and reveals Rogers in a new and more human light—in what is probably the greatest role of his career.

As captain of the "Claremore Queen," a ramshackle old tub, Rogers is involved in the romance of Anne Shirley and John McGuire. Their happiness is threatened when McGuire kills a man in the girl's defense, gives himself up on Rogers' advice and is condemned.

Of course, the girl and Will Rogers blame each other for the boy's plight, but their desire to help him draws them together in a rich friendship. While they strive to earn enough money to pay for his appeal, Rogers is indulging in his old rivalry with crusty Irvin S. Cobb, captain of the shiny "The Pride of Paducah."

The two dramatic currents blend when Rogers steams down to New Orleans to save McGuire and is involved in the big steamboat race. The climax, packed with suspense and explosive comedy, brings the film to a happy conclusion.

In the leading role, Rogers tops the best of his previous performances. Anne Shirley is unusually effective in the romantic lead and rotund, jovial Irvin Cobb lives up to his reputation as one of the funniest men in America.

"Steamboat Round the Bend" owes much of its effectiveness and color to the work of scenarists Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti, and to Director John Ford, all of whom worked with Rogers in "Judge Priest" and who surpass their earlier fine performance with "Steamboat Round the Bend."

Home construction in Canada is to be stimulated by government aid, the minister of finance entering into contracts with other lending agencies to advance as much as 80 per cent of house construction costs.

Remember the meanie of "Bright Eyes"? That was only a sample.

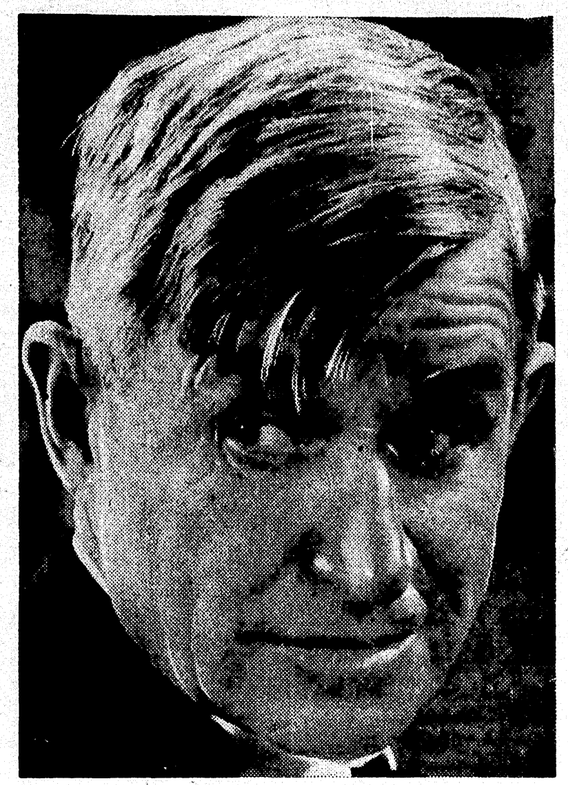

Stars Who Will Be Seen In Local Screen Attractions This Week

Shirley Temple is revealed as she really is in her sunny Fox Film production, "Curly Top," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday. America's darling sings and dances in this tuneful treat. Others in the cast include John Boles, Rochelle Hudson, and Jane Darwell. "Curly Top" is a story of a little girl who captures the heart of a lonely bachelor and makes both their dreams come true.

All aboard for a Cook's tour of laugh-land with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in their feature length comedy, "Bonnie Scotland," the attraction at the Paramount theater for Tuesday and Wednesday. Insane in India, stymied in Scotland . . . but wherever they take you on their fun cruise, they show you why they are the world's favorite comedy team. June Lang, William Janney, Anne Grey, David Torrence and James Finlayson are in the supporting cast.

Will Rogers, the most lovable American whose homely humor will live forever. See and remember him as the lovable character in his latest human drama, "Steamboat 'Round the Bend," the attraction at the Paramount theater oday and Monday. Irvin S. Cobb, Anne Shirley, Eugene Pallette and Stepin Fetchit are in the supporting cast. It is a romance of the old Mississippi and Dixie.

For years one of fiction's favorite cowboys, "Hop-along Cassidy," western hero of more than twenty books written by Clarence E. Mulford and read by thousands, makes his initial flesh and blood screen debut with William Boyd in the title role at the Capitol theater today and Monday. "Hop-along Cassidy" becomes the screen's newest "two-gun fighter" with all the color and action that typified the days of the early West. It's a Paramount picture.

One of the most dramatic stories yet filmed, the tale of a girl torn between two worlds who gives up her identity to save a woman's life, has been booked for showing at the Capitol theater Wednesday. The film is "Alias Mary Dow," produced by Universal and starring Sally Eilers. Others in the cast include Ray Milland, Henry O'Neill, Lola Lane, Katherine Alexander and Chick Chandler.

Jane Withers, as a lovable tenement tomboy, looks after her foster-uncle, O. P. Heggie and scraps with Jackie Searl, a pampered scion of a Park Avenue family in the comedy, "Ginger," the attraction at the Paramount theater Thursday and Friday. Remember the meanie of "Bright Eyes"? Now this marvelous girl weaves a magic spell and gloriously fulfills her promise with a triumphant performance in "Ginger."

Warner Baxter rides again as the great lover and gaucho rogue of the Argentine plains. Warner Baxter co-stars with Ketti Gallian in Fox Film's thrilling romance, "Under the Pampas Moon," coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday. It tells the story of a carefree, hard riding, handsome gaucho who mixes romance with exciting adventure. Veloz and Yolanda, America's dancing sensation, introduce the new "Cobra Tango" in "Under the Pampas Moon."

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD. — Watching the wheels go around:

A makeup man is painting a cut over Dick Powell's eye. Another makeup man, with a spray gun, is dousing Dick with oil. "Not too much sweat," says Director Frank Borzage. "This is only the first round. Then Nick Foran, who is Powell's opponent, gets a few shots of perspiration.

Nick, bigger, broader and heavier than Dick, could easily knock him out—and right through the ropes into the camera's lap. But he doesn't. He takes a few pokes at Powell and then, apparently, smiles at a girl in the audience. Off his guard, supposedly, Foran is clouted by Powell and goes down for the count. It took no longer to shoot this scene for "Anchors Aweigh" than it takes to tell it.

Always A Saloon

There always is a saloon in a horse opera, just as there always are horses, and cowboys in tight-fitting get-ups, and a gal with a heart of gold, and a villain who'd eat little children. "Powder Smoke Range" has all these elements in addition to practically all of the cowboy stars in town. In the saloon, the Red Bull, we find Sam Hardy behind the bar. He is ordering Harry Carey to get out of town because "I guess you-all made a mistake comin' here, pardner." Pardner Carey doesn't agree, pulls a gun and the director says "Cut." Directors always are saying that at the crucial moment. Guess I'll have to see the picture to find out what Harry does with his gun.

The "Hi, Gaucho" company finds a South American background in a canyon just off Hollywood boulevard. There are scrub oaks and short bushes and a narrow dirt road. Rod LaRocque, who will turn out to be the villain, is trying to prevent John Carroll (who was Julian LaSaye in New Orleans) from tipping over Steffi Duna's buggy. Although Rod is much taller and stronger than the Gable-esque Carroll, the latter wins the bout. And then he saves Steffi from a broken neck, or worse, by taking her out of the buggy before his gauchos tip it over.

He Perspires Anyway

"Romance in a Glass House" was the title of a musical with Dolores Del Rio and Everett Marshall, but "love" has become such a popular title word that it will do duty here. Someone suggested "I Live to Love," and it caught on. Dolores, who will be the "South American dancing sensation, Donna Alvarez," isn't on this set—a theater lobby—but Marshall is. He is gaily singing "La Paloma," accompanied by a comedy band of three pieces.

No need to spray him with oil. The sun is so hot that he perspires anyway. So makeup men with fans and powder and grease paint have to touch him frequently. Keeping cool on a movie set, these hot days, becomes a technical problem.

Odds And Ends

Hero and heavy always clasp hands after those rough-and-tumble fights that invariably climax western films. It's an old Hollywood tradition.

The last eight beauty contest winners to arrive in Hollywood for screen careers possessed either black or brown hair. Blonds and redheads seem to be out.

Adrian, the movie gown designer, uses some 36,000 feet of silks and satins each year.

Film stars who indorse commercial products for newspaper and magazine advertisements receive from 4 to 10 per cent of gross sales.

The babyish voice you hear in the "Oswald the Rabbit" screen cartoons is that of a 45-year-old woman.

Operatic Crooner

Lawrence Tibbett is Hollywood's most recent recruit to the ranks of crooners. In his new picture, "Metropolitan," the grand opera star will croon one song. And he says he has the utmost admiration for crooners.

Freak Gifts For George

A varied assortment of strange gifts has been received by George O'Brien during his 10 years of screen stardom. Admirers from all over the world have sent him, among other things, a Tibetan lama's prayer-wheel, a home-made diving helmet with explicit instructions as to its use, and a sandalwood box containing powdered reindeer horn guaranteed as a cure-all by its Chinese donor.

The western star's latest gift was received on location at Sonora, Calif., during filming of Zane Grey's "Thunder Mountain." O'Brien became friendly with an old Scotch "sourdough" who, in return for a small loan to aid him in buying prospecting supplies, presented the star with a novelty bagpipe made of toy balloons and drinking straws.

Film Story Of Old West At Capitol Today

Boyd Heads Cast In 'Hop-A-Long Cassidy,' Mulford's Hero

WITH the transference of the first of the "Hopalong Cassidy" stories from the pages of fiction to flesh and blood counterparts on the screen, new life and color has been breathed into the vitals of Western films which have by no means suffered from lack of popularity on the part of film fans.

The debut of the famous Clarence E. Mulford characters in film form at the Capitol theater, augurs well for the future screen Cassidys. With William Boyd in the title role, the perfect screen prototype of the famous fiction hero, as a dashing, courageous personable cowboy riding the ranges in the picturesque cattle rustling days of the Old West, "Hopalong Cassidy" is a sure-fire romantic comedy drama, packing all the action, romance and adventure that goes into every high-spirited entertaining western.

All the beloved and villainous characters of Mulford's widely read books come to startling familiar life in "Hopalong Cassidy." Jimmy Ellison, a clean-cut youth showing future picture promise, wears his role of "Johnny Nelson," one of Hopalong's pals, with the ease, impulsiveness and careless manner that characterized him in the book. Frank McGlynn, Jr., portrays the third pal, "Red Connors." Paula Stone, daughter of the stage comedian, Fred Stone, who makes her screen bow in the film, plays the role of lovely Mary Meeker in a way above Western heroine style, showing no mean ability as a budding starlet. George Hayes as "Uncle Ben." Charles Middleton as "Buck Peters," owner of the Bar-20 ranch, Kenneth Thomson as the rascally Jack Anthony, and Willie Fung as "Salem" who step out of the pages of many Cassidy stories.

The story of "Hopalong Cassidy" centers around the adventurous exploits of Boyd, Ellison and McGlynn, Jr., three loyal cowboy comrades impulsive, fearless, straight shooting, daredevil riders of the Bar-20 ranch. When the cattle of H-2 ranch trespass on the water rights of the Bar-20 antagonism springs up, aided by the ruthless cattle rustlings and false brandings by Anthony and his gang whose hideout is on Thunder Mesa. After constantly inciting trouble between the two ranches, Boyd realizes that a third party is the guilty one. Together the two ranchers unite in forces and attempt to round up Anthony and his band.

Unable to gain entrance to their hideout, the three boys decide to scale the cliff and surprise them. Paula Stone discovers the secret entrance to the cave and warns the boys of a dynamite fuse ready to blow them to bits. The three "musketeers" finally mete out justice to the lawless band men and avenge their wrongs in a hair raising climax.

SOCIAL AGENCIES GROUP WILL MEET ON FRIDAY

The monthly meeting of the Council of Social Agencies will hold its monthly meeting at the First Christian church on Friday, Sept. 20.

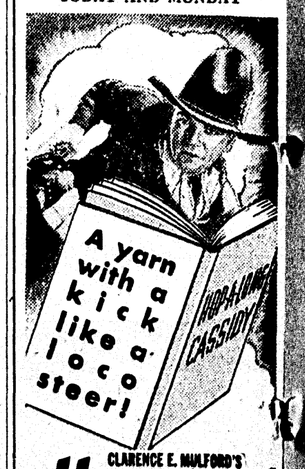

The speaker of the occasion will be Walter Craddock, of New Orleans, field worker for the bureau of transients. Mr. Craddock will explain the federal government's plans for the winding up of the operations of the transient bureaus.

Toy shop committees will make reports of the progress of their work.

'Steamboat Round The Bend' Called Will Rogers' Greatest

Hilarious Comedy At Paramount

Irvin S. Cobb And Anne Shirley Included In All-Star Cast

THE battle of the century is on at the Paramount theater where Fox Film's "Steamboat Round the Bend" presents Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb in a hilarious, high-comedy rivalry that is tops for the season's film offerings.

"Steamboat Round the Bend" is warm in sentiment, rich in characterizations, replete with thrills and reveals Rogers in a new and more human light—in what is probably the greatest role of his career.

As captain of the "Claremore Queen," a ramshackle old tub, Rogers is involved in the romance of Anne Shirley and John McGuire. Their happiness is threatened when McGuire kills a man in the girl's defense, gives himself up on Rogers' advice and is condemned.

Of course, the girl and Will Rogers blame each other for the boy's plight, but their desire to help him draws them together in a rich friendship. While they strive to earn enough money to pay for his appeal, Rogers is indulging in his old rivalry with crusty Irvin S. Cobb, captain of the shiny "The Pride of Paducah."

The two dramatic currents blend when Rogers steams down to New Orleans to save McGuire and is involved in the big steamboat race. The climax, packed with suspense and explosive comedy, brings the film to a happy conclusion.

In the leading role, Rogers tops the best of his previous performances. Anne Shirley is unusually effective in the romantic lead and rotund, jovial Irvin Cobb lives up to his reputation as one of the funniest men in America.

"Steamboat Round the Bend" owes much of its effectiveness and color to the work of scenarists Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti, and to Director John Ford, all of whom worked with Rogers in "Judge Priest" and who surpass their earlier fine performance with "Steamboat Round the Bend."

Home construction in Canada is to be stimulated by government aid, the minister of finance entering into contracts with other lending agencies to advance as much as 80 per cent of house construction costs.

Stars Who Will Be Seen In Local Screen Attractions This Week

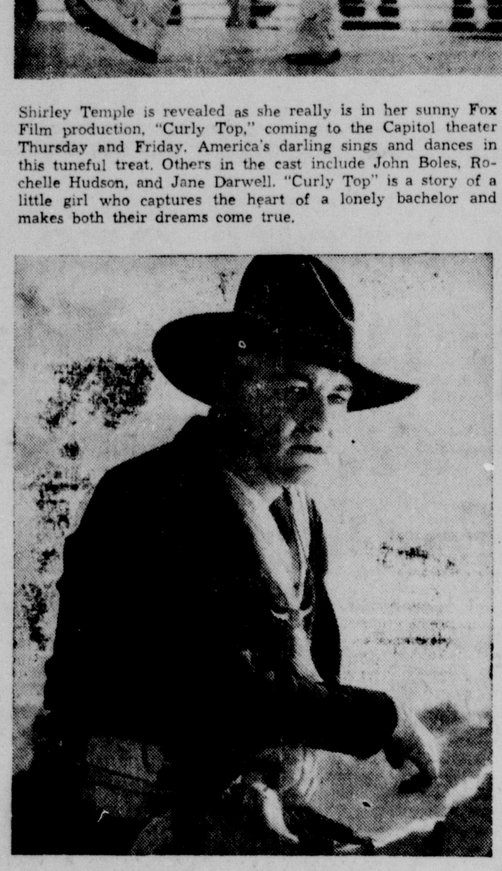

Shirley Temple is revealed as she really is in her sunny Fox Film production, "Curly Top," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday. America's darling sings and dances in this tuneful treat. Others in the cast include John Boles, Rochelle Hudson, and Jane Darwell. "Curly Top" is a story of a little girl who captures the heart of a lonely bachelor and makes both their dreams come true.

All aboard for a Cook's tour of laugh-land with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in their feature length comedy, "Bonnie Scotland," the attraction at the Paramount theater for Tuesday and Wednesday. Insane in India, stymied in Scotland . . . but wherever they take you on their fun cruise, they show you why they are the world's favorite comedy team. June Lang, William Janny, Anne Grey, David Torrence and James Finlayson are in the supporting cast.

Will Rogers, the most lovable American whose homely humor will live forever. See and remember him as the lovable character in his latest human drama, "Steamboat 'Round the Bend," the attraction at the Paramount theater oday and Monday. Irvin S. Cobb, Anne Shirley, Eugene Pallette and Stepin Fetchit are in the supporting cast. It is a romance of the old Mississippi and Dixie.

For years one of fiction's favorite cowboys, "Hop-along Cassidy," western hero of more than twenty books written by Clarence E. Mulford and read by thousands, makes his initial flesh and blood screen debut with William Boyd in the title role at the Capitol theater today and Monday. "Hop-along Cassidy" becomes the screen's newest "two-gun fighter" with all the color and action that typified the days of the early West. It's a Paramount picture.

One of the most dramatic stories yet filmed, the tale of a girl torn between two worlds who gives up her identity to save a woman's life, has been booked for showing at the Capitol theater Wednesday. The film is "Alias Mary Dow," produced by Universal and starring Sally Eilers. Others in the cast include Ray Milland, Henry O'Neill, Lola Lane, Katherine Alexander and Chick Chandler.

Jane Withers, as a lovable tenement tomboy, looks after her foster-uncle, O. P. Heggie and scraps with Jackie Searl, a pampered scion of a Park Avenue family in the comedy, "Ginger," the attraction at the Paramount theater Thursday and Friday. Remember the meanie of "Bright Eyes"? Now this marvelous girl weaves a magic spell and gloriously fulfills her promise with a triumphant performance in "Ginger."

Warner Baxter rides again as the great lover and gaucho rogue of the Argentine plains. Warner Baxter co-stars with Ketti Gallian in Fox Film's thrilling romance, "Under the Pampas Moon," coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday. It tells the story of a carefree, hard riding, handsome gaucho who mixes romance with exciting adventure. Veloz and Yolanda, America's dancing sensation, introduce the new "Cobra Tango" in "Under the Pampas Moon."

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD. — Watching the wheels go around:

A makeup man is painting a cut over Dick Powell's eye. Another makeup man, with a spray gun, is dousing Dick with oil. "Not too much sweat," says Director Frank Borzage. "This is only the first round. Then Nick Foran, who is Powell's opponent, gets a few shots of perspiration.

Nick, bigger, broader and heavier than Dick, could easily knock him out—and right through the ropes into the camera's lap. But he doesn't. He takes a few pokes at Powell and then, apparently, smiles at a girl in the audience. Off his guard, supposedly, Foran is clouted by Powell and goes down for the count. It took no longer to shoot this scene for "Anchors Aweigh" than it takes to tell it.

Always A Saloon

There always is a saloon in a horse opera, just as there always are horses, and cowboys in tight-fitting get-ups, and a gal with a heart of gold, and a villain who'd eat little children. "Powder Smoke Range" has all these elements in addition to practically all of the cowboy stars in town. In the saloon, the Red Bull, we find Sam Hardy behind the bar. He is ordering Harry Carey to get out of town because "I guess you-all made a mistake comin' here, pardner." Pardner Carey doesn't agree, pulls a gun and the director says "Cut." Directors always are saying that at the crucial moment. Guess I'll have to see the picture to find out what Harry does with his gun.

The "Hi, Gaucho" company finds a South American background in a canyon just off Hollywood boulevard. There are scrub oaks and short bushes and a narrow dirt road. Rod LaRocque, who will turn out to be the villain, is trying to prevent John Carroll (who was Julian LaSaye in New Orleans) from tipping over Steffi Dunna's buggy. Although Rod is much taller and stronger than the Gable-esque Carroll, the latter wins the bout. And then he saves Steffi from a broken neck, or worse, by taking her out of the buggy before his gauchos tip it over.

He Perspires Anyway

"Romance in a Glass House" was the title of a musical with Dolores Del Rio and Everett Marshall, but "love" has become such a popular title word that it will do duty here. Someone suggested "I Live to Love," and it caught on. Dolores, who will be the "South American dancing sensation, Donna Alvarez," isn't on this set—a theater lobby—but Marshall is. He is gaily singing "La Paloma," accompanied by a comedy band of three pieces.

No need to spray him with oil. The sun is so hot that he perspires anyway. So makeup men with fans and powder and grease paint have to touch him frequently. Keeping cool on a movie set, these hot days, becomes a technical problem.

Odds And Ends

Hero and heavy always clasp hands after those rough-and-tumble fights that invariably climax western films. It's an old Hollywood tradition.

The last eight beauty contest winners to arrive in Hollywood for screen careers possessed either black or brown hair. Blonds and redheads seem to be out.

Adrian, the movie gown designer, uses some 36,000 feet of silks and satins each year.

Film stars who indorse commercial products for newspaper and magazine advertisements receive from 4 to 10 per cent of gross sales.

The babyish voice you hear in the "Oswald the Rabbit" screen cartoons is that of a 45-year-old woman.

Operatic Crooner

Lawrence Tibbett is Hollywood's most recent recruit to the ranks of crooners. In his new picture, "Metropolitan," the grand opera star will croon one song. And he says he has the utmost admiration for crooners.

Freak Gifts For George

A varied assortment of strange gifts has been received by George O'Brien during his 10 years of screen stardom. Admirers from all over the world have sent him, among other things, a Tibetan lama's prayer-wheel, a home-made diving helmet with explicit instructions as to its use, and a sandalwood box containing powdered reindeer horn guaranteed as a cure-all by its Chinese donor.

The western star's latest gift was received on location at Sonora, Calif., during filming of Zane Grey's "Thunder Mountain." O'Brien became friendly with an old Scotch "sourdough" who, in return for a small loan to aid him in buying prospecting supplies, presented the star with a novelty bagpipe made of toy balloons and drinking straws.

WHEN THE SHIPS HAD BEEN LASHED TOGETHER, TARZAN LED HIS VIKING FIGHTING MEN ABOARD THE ENEMY VESSEL.

WITH THE APE-MAN IN THE VANGUARD GROWLING LIKE A BEAST, THE BATTLE WAS JOINED WITH SAVAGE FURY.

STEADILY TARZAN'S VALIANT COHORTS DROVE BACK THE FOE TOWARD THE PROW OF THE SHIP.

THEN ERIK SUMMONED ANOTHER SHIP, LEAPED ABOARD WITH THE REMNANT OF HIS COMPANY, AND ORDERED IT DRAWN AWAY.

BUT NOW A FEARSOME SHOWER OF FIREBRANDS BEGAN TO RAIN UPON THE VESSEL WHICH TARZAN AND HIS MEN HAD CAPTURED.

QUICKLY IT TOOK FIRE AND THREATENED THE FLAGSHIP OF THE THALGAARD FLEET EVEN AS IT WAS CUT ADRIFT.

TO THE AMAZEMENT OF HIS WARRIORS, TARZAN REMAINED ABOARD THE BLAZING VESSEL AND SEIZED THE HELM.

"BRING YOUR CRAFT TO THE STERN," HE SHOUTED TO THEM, "AND DRIVE MY SHIP FORWARD."

THUS PROPELLED, TARZAN GUIDED THE BURNING VESSEL INTO THE MIDST OF THE ENEMY FLEET.

BUT NOW, AS THE FIRE SWEPT BACK TOWARD HIM, THE APE-MAN WAS FORCED TO JUMP FOR HIS LIFE.

LITTLE STANLEY

F. Fox

"DON'T HANG BACK; WE MUST GET TO THE DOCTOR'S OFFICE BEFORE HE LEAVES."

"I'M GONNA HAVE THE DOCTOR GIVE HIM AN INOCULATION BEFORE KINDERGARTEN STARTS."

"NOW, YOUNG MAN, YOU JUST ROLL UP YOUR SLEEVE, I GUARANTEE THIS WON'T HURT."

"THIS WILL BE ABOUT THE FIFTEENTH ONE OF THESE INJECTIONS I'VE GIVEN THIS WEEK!"

OW!

"LIKE FUN IT WASN'T GONNA HURT!"

HAIL TO DER HEROES!

HUZZAH!

UM PAH!

G'BY, MAMA. DON'T FORGET TO SEND ME DER CAKE.

IT'S LIKE A GRAND AND GLORIOUS PICNIC, AS NIKKATEENA GOES TO WAR. BANDS, PARADES, BUGLE CALLS, AND TROOP TRAINS.

THEN COMES NEWS FROM THE FRONT.

MINE HIMMEL! DER ARMY ISS BEATEN!

WELL, WHAT THE BLAZES THEY EXPECT, USING A LOT O' OLD, DINKY MUZZLE-LOADERS?

PAGING CAPTAIN EASY! PAGING CAPTAIN EASY!

HERE I AM, BUDDIE. WHAT'S UP?

QUICK! INTO DER SPEEDSTER.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, CORPORAL, UND GIFFER DER PETROL.

FASTER, YOU LUMMOX! FASTER!

G.H.Q.

TO EASY'S SURPRISE, HE'S USHERED BEFORE NONE OTHER THAN THE PRINCESS, THREE GENERALS, AND THE CZAR.

LET'S NOT WASTE WORDS, CAPTAIN.

WE'RE UNPREPARED FOR WAR. NO PLANES. NO AVIATORS. YOU HAVE A PLANE. WE BEG OF YOU, SIR, TO JOIN US IN OUR HOUR OF NEED.

NOT ON YOUR LIFE, SUH. WHY, THAT OLD HACK O' MINE'S NO FIGHTER. IT'D BE SHOT DOWN IN TWO MINUTES.

POOF! DER ENT ANY ENEMY PLANES TO SHOOT IT DOWN.

LOOK! VE GIF MEDALS.

OH, PLEASE DON'T DISAPPOINT ME. I'VE TOLD THEM HOW BRAVE YOU ARE.

BUT ARE YOU SURE THERE ARE NO ENEMY PLANES?

DOT'S VOT OUR SPIES SAY. COME, I GIF YOU YOUR UNIFORM.

MAN ALIVE! A WAR AFTER MY OWN HEART—ALL GLORY AND NO DANGER.

PLOW!

BA-WOOM!

BLOOM!

POW POW!

DICK TRACY

By CHESTER GOULD

LIKE EVERY PRISON RIOT, THIS ONE IN THE WOMEN'S PRISON, WHERE TOBY TOWNLEY IS BEING HELD, ENDS WITH DISASTER ON EVERY HAND!

THE WOMEN'S CELL HOUSE IS BURNED TO THE GROUND.

WHAT'S THE COUNT, WARDEN?

IT'S HARD TO SAY, RIGHT NOW - BUT IT LOOKS LIKE APPROXIMATELY TWENTY FATALITIES AND SEVENTY-FIVE WOUNDED.

TEAR GAS VICTIMS! IT WAS OUR ONLY WAY.

IF I'D ONLY GOT HERE SOONER! I'VE GOT PAPERS FOR THE RELEASE OF TOBY TOWNLEY! BLAKE CONFESSED THE DONOVAN MURDER AND CLEARED HER.

SHE'S NOT IN THIS CROWD, DICK.

YOUR ONLY CHANCE IS THAT -- SHE'S AMONG..THESE!

SHE'S NOT HERE, DICK!

GREAT SCOTT! THE WORST HAS HAPPENED!

HOW LONG BEFORE THOSE RUINS WILL BE COOL ENOUGH TO SEARCH, WARDEN?

PROBABLY, AT LEAST ANOTHER 24 HOURS!

LISTEN! WHAT'S THAT?

HEAR THAT TAPPING NOISE?

TAP TAP

THAT'S A CLOSET WE USED FOR SUPPLIES!

GIVE ME THAT AX!

TAP TAP

TOBY!

GREAT SCOTT! THE PLACE IS FULL OF TEAR GAS!

15.

A GAS BOMB MUST HAVE ROLLED IN THERE AT THE SAME TIME SHE ENTERED..AND THE DOOR HAS A SPRING-LOCK ON IT.

TOBY..YOU'RE FREE! YOU'RE CLEARED... BLAKE CONFESSED! CAN YOU HEAR ME?

YES..YES.. YES..I HEAR YOU..BUT I.. I....

MY —!! BLIND!
